Fort Bliss MMRP Team:

The operational range inventory team has confirmed that the Dona Ana Range Camp MMRP site (Fort Bliss Dona Ana Range) is an operational range. The operational range status was verified during the Operational Range Inventory Sustainment (ORIS).

For the purposes of the Fort Bliss MMRP Site Inspection, this site will not be investigated, since it is not MMRP eligible.

Lance: Can you please forward to the New Mexico NGB representative that attended the Fort Bliss MMRP SI kickoff meeting earlier this month?

Tom,
From our phone conversation regarding this issue;
This MMRP site does fall on an active Army National Guard site (Dona Ana Range Camp).

Thanks,
Brad

Niki and Lisa:

I recently attended the Fort Bliss MMRP Site Inspection Kickoff meeting and had an after meeting action to check the status of the NGB Dona Ana Range Camp ORIS.

During the CTT Inventory, Fort Bliss and the Dona Ana Range Camp were inventoried separately. It turns out that the one MMRP site identified during the CTT Inventory on Dona Anna Range Camp is actually on Fort Bliss property.

The NGB representative at the Fort Bliss meeting indicated that the MMRP site on Dona Ana Range Camp (Fort Bliss Dona Anna Range) is operational range property. Can you verify this?

I am attaching the map from the CTT Inventory of Dona Anna Range Camp, for your reference.

Thanks for your help.

Tom

Tom -

Any news regarding the Dona Ana Range? We have made contact with the NGB (LT Elizabeth Foott), and are in the process of requesting/obtaining information. When we hear/get something we will let you know.

Have a great weekend.
