Company Overview

INVISTA You may know us by brand names like STAINMASTER® and CORDURA®. Our polymers and chemical intermediates are the foundation for many of the plastics you use every day, and our fibers can be found in many of the clothes you wear.

But you might also know us by another name: Koch Industries. Because, as a subsidiary of Koch since 2004, we've applied Market-Based Management® to our business to create value for not only our customers, but society as a whole – and continue to be a leader in many value chains, from intermediates to the ultimate consumer.

We've created carpeting that resists stains and lasts longer. Developed biodegradable solvents that clean up but break down. And crafted long-lasting performance fabrics that help athletes and first responders push the limits of human possibility.
