Preserving Heritage, Sustaining Communities US Army Garrison Hawai`i Cultural Resources Program

Palm Circle, Fort Shafter

Amelia Earhart

with Lockheed

Vega, 1935.

Kilauea Military Camp

ample lawns, and large growth of trees. Today, the oldest military post in Hawaii also stands in the forefront of the Army's transformation.

Palm Circle residences after renovation in from 1920 included additions prior to the award-winning renovation in 2010.

the Japanese 1941 could still be seen in the windows at Hanger 206 before the restoration in 2006. The damaged windows were sent to the Smithsonian for preservation.

1943 Hawaii Ordnance Depot Headquarters converted into a Survivor Outreach Services Center at Fort Shafter.

Historic Landscapes & Neighborhoods

residences

Schofield Quadrangle Barracks

Schofield's fire house was converted to office space and a curation facility for the USAG-HI Cultural Resources Program in 2007.

Quad F Theater, Schofield Barracks

in historic districts

broaden the appreciation of military heritage.

All the quads were constructed with theaters for troop entertainment on weekends. Most of the theaters were converted to gymnasiums during the late 20th century. Quad F, however, retains it original theater features, including classical columns, carved medallions, decorative moldings, and a coffered ceiling decorated with stenciled wood paneling. These features were restored in preparation for the Centennial Celebration of Schofield Barracks in 2009.

During the theater's restoration, a mural was discovered under several layers of paint on either side of the stage. The mural was painted by artists from the Works Progress Administration in the 1930s and depicts US Army soldiers from the Revolutionary War up to World War II.

