AWARDS & ACCOMPLISHMENTS

MONTHLY SPOTLIGHT

JULY

The Fort Knox Public Affairs Office is dedicated to telling the story of our central Kentucky Army post and Families. These efforts are centered on informing internal and external publics about installation happenings. Continuous outreach with civic organizations, leaders and the community at large; regular interface with news media; and daily production and dissemination of Fort Knox News are among the public affairs staff's routine actions to deliver timely, accurate and helpful information while also enabling two-way communication. The award-winning team uses several means to achieve successful communication and pursues innovative approaches to meet audiences where they are, in ways that resonate.

AUGUST

The Administrative Services Division (ASD) is essential for maintaining Garrison efficiency across administrative functions. It manages Freedom of information Act (FOIA) requests, ensuring transparency, and is responsible for upholding the Privacy Act. The division oversees records management and congressional affairs. ASD provides critical editing services to ensure accuracy and consistency in official documents and communications, and manages official mail, ensuring its secure, timely delivery. The division oversees production and dissemination of official publications, and creates and maintains user-friendly forms. Finally, it reviews and updates regulations and policies to ensure they remain current and compliant.

SEPTEMBER

Lindsey Golf Course was constructed in 1933 under the guidance of Maj. Gen. Julian R. Lindsey, the 7th Cavalry Brigade commander at the time, who designed it. The course, originally an officer-only club, opened its doors to the public when the enlisted club at Anderson Golf Course closed in 2003. Lindsey's primary goal is to provide the premier golf experience to installation Soldiers, Family members and those in surrounding communities. According to staff, meticulous focus on course conditions by the maintenance team has led to the course being highly regarded. Lindsey also frequently hosts public events, such as professional fitting and demo days, golf scrambles and more. All profits are invested back into the program to continue making it the best course the Army has to offer.

GOLD STANDARD ACHIEVEMENTS

The Fort Knox Transition Assistance Program received the Connections Certificate of Excellence for small installations during the annual TAP Symposium held Aug. 27 through Aug. 29. The accolade celebrates the teams ability to create meaningful interactions, inspire conversations, and build a loyal audience through innovative and creative posts on social media.

GET TO KNOW ...

Justin Wagoner is originally from Naples, Florida. After retiring from the service Wagoner took up permanent residence in Mount Washington, Kentucky. Wagoner joined the USAG-Fort Knox team in April of 2020 and serves as a training instructor with the DPTMS Training Support Center. He says that his favorite part about working at USAG-Fort Knox is the fact that he can continue his service to the Army while maintaining a more normal life.

"As a retired senior leader this job scratches that itch I have to continue to instruct and develop Soldiers in the military. It's the best of both worlds, staying involved with the military but without the deployments to not-so-fun places."

GG: What do you like to do outside of work?

JW: Outside of work I'm a husband and girl dad. I enjoy anything automotive. I'm an active rally driver for Rally North America, which is a charity organization that raises funds for multiple organizations like C.O.P.S (Concerns for Police Survivors) and Camp Sunshine, a nonprofit that helps parents and children with rare diseases.

GG: What is your favorite food and least favorite food?

JW: Going to have to go with Simple Americana. A good hamburger with bacon and cheese. I hate pizza; although, if I was forced to choose one place to eat it from I'd go with Jet's...the crust is amazing.

GG: What cartoon character would you most like to switch lives with?

JW: Wile E. Coyote. His persistence is commendable.

GG: If you were stuck on an island, what three things would you bring?

JW: A dog, a case of dill pickles and some matches...I hate being cold.

GG: Who has been your biggest influence and why?

JW: My father has always been my biggest influence. He was a great husband and dad and instilled the values in me that helped me become a successful leader in the Army as well as a good husband and father in my own family.

GG: What is your hidden talent?

JW: I know all the lyrics to Vanilla Ice's "Ice, Ice baby"...and can sing it.
