What's the deal with all those 'buddy benches'?

The Fort Knox Environmental Management Division partnered with several organizations in March 2023 to collect plastic caps in a twofold effort to cut down on pollution while also providing encouragement to Fort Knox personnel. The cap collection gets turned into "buddy benches" and placed around the installation.

They have been successful enough so far to branch out and also start producing picnic tables. To date, they have produced 14 benches and five tables.

QUARTERLY AWARDS 2.24

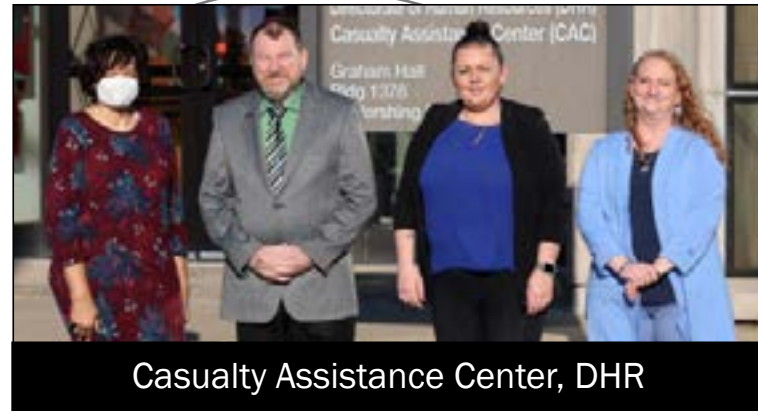

As the Natural Resources Branch chief, Brandenburg has fostered an average retention length of 11 years in his office. He seeks training and educational opportunities for employees and works with state officials to tackle invasive tree and plant species. The branch saw an 8% growth in revenue during the 2022 deer season. He has found a way to save DOD millions of dollars in lime sludge removal.

Leader of the Quarter

Michael Brandenburg
DPW Environmental

Team of the Quarter

Casualty Assistance Center, DHR

The busiest in the Army, Fort Knox CAC has tracked seven Summary Courts Martial Officer reports with zero reported failures in meeting the 30-day report timeline, ensuring family members received personal effects on time. They have developed creative ways to improve installation programs, including work with county coroners on mass storage capabilities should an emergency occur, which will save the Army over $200,000. Members volunteered over 100 hours last quarter.

Employee of the Quarter

Kent Shaw
DFMWR Lindsey Golf

Though hired as a flex sales clerk, Shaw has developed into a critical administrative assistant and go-to for all things golf, especially when the manager is away. He functions as the training coordinator, producing detailed schedules on a spreadsheet for each employee and training them when needed. Shaw ensures everything runs smoothly, freeing the manager to focus on leader tasks.

Service Culture Campaign Employee of the Quarter

As the POC for all TAP-hosted employer events, Quaye independently works events through constant communication with corporate recruiters and others. She represents TAP on numerous committees that support veteran talent. She carried the bulk of the load for Hiring our Heroes in November 2023, ensuring its success. Quaye's sacrifices have led to many hiring successes for transitioning veterans.

Jennifer Quaye
DHR Transition Services

Crafts & Trades Professional of the Quarter

R.M. Baugh
DFMWR Houston Bowling

Playing a crucial role at Houston Bowling Center, Baugh regularly improves customers' bowling experiences, whether he's improving aging pinsetters or implementing adjustments and upgrades that have notably reduced interruptions in the game. He has found efficient ways to reduce costs by as much as $6,000. He also helps others at the bowling center, including in the Pro Shop.

MONTHLY SPOTLIGHT

JANUARY

The Fort Knox Security office manages security for installation personnel, information and industrial programs and support to the command and staff. Three personnel oversee OpSec, CAC applications for contractors, and official foreign visits to Garrison as well as assisting mission partners. The team facilitates background investigations for assigned personnel and security screenings for new employees; they also provide fingerprinting services to Garrison and select installation partners. The team's efforts ensure eligibility standards are established, validated and maintained to safeguard sensitive and classified information, systems and equipment. During a recent higher headquarters inspection, the office received a 100% rating in all areas.

FEBRUARY

Nine personnel make up the Fort Knox Staff Judge Advocate's Claims and Administrative Law offices, which include two from U.S. Army Cadet Command. Five personnel from Claims adjudicate tort claims filed against the Army from accidents in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and most of Kentucky. The team also asserts affirmative medical claims whenever an Army Tricare beneficiary in its jurisdiction is injured from negligence. The Affirmative Claims Program routinely recovers over $1 million each year for medical treatment facilities and the U.S. Treasury. Four Administrative and Civil Law attorneys provide general counsel or city attorney support for employment, contract, environmental, business, municipal and many other ethics issues.

MARCH

The eight-member ID Card/DEERS Branch enrolls eligible customers and provides Common Access Cards to Soldiers, retirees, civilian and contract employees and families: world-class service to over 2,000 customers each month. The team performs all functions and related tasks required to issue and maintain government ID cards, including PIN resets and certificate and email updates. The team also reviews, researches and verifies source documentation to ensure 100% eligibility of benefits prior to the issuance of any government ID. They also prepare personal agent authorization letters for eligible customers to receive services at the Exchange and Commissary.

FORT KNOX IN THE NEWS

Two awards: Fort Knox editor Eric Pilgrim in January won two Army Materiel Command David G. Harris awards for 2023. He earned one award for a commentary he wrote Nov. 9 about how Flanders Fields remain in Soldiers' hearts. The second award was for a photo he took Sept. 19 during the annual emergency response exercise that incorporated DODEA schools notification and reunification protocols for the first time.

GET TO KNOW ...

"My favorite travel spot is 'Flamenco Beach' -- a tiny island off the coast of mainland Puerto Rico. This is one of the best beaches in the entire Caribbean with the softest sand on Earth and the most turquoise water I have ever seen."

"My favorite team is my family. Like any team sport, being part of a military Family has been the most difficult, rewarding, terrible, wonderful, gut wrenching and incredible experiences in my life. As a team, we face challenges and celebrate achievements together."

"I have been the Child & Youth Services administrative support assistant at Fort Knox Directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation since May 2023. I was born and lived my formative years in Humacao, Puerto Rico."

"I CANNOT LIVE WITHOUT COFFEE. I HONESTLY CAN'T EVEN THINK OF A DAY WHERE I HAVEN'T HAD COFFEE. NOTHING IS BETTER THAN A GOOD LATTE TO START YOUR DAY!"

Yanira Morales Garcia

"My biggest influence has been my parents. My mother always has a smile on her face no matter how hard she works. She taught me to love everyone because you will never know the battles they are struggling. My father's commitment to intellectual curiosity greatly influenced my approach to education and through sports taught me that great achievements are the result of hard work, discipline and determination."

"My secret? I am a black belt in Judo and three times the Puerto Rico Olympic Wrestling National Champion."

"I love helping other people because it makes me feel very grateful working for CYS, an organization that commits itself to positive changes for military Families. My work is not boring; I feel challenged, empowered, and it forces me to be creative every day. What I enjoy most is getting to know and support the CYS staff and be surrounded with wonderful people who love their jobs and are giving 110% each day."
