STUDENTS PROGRAM FOR SUCCESS AT KSS STEM LAB

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

Elementary school-aged students are studying STEM—science, technology, engineering and mathematics—in a new lab and makerspace at George Seitz Elementary School with the help of some big teamwork and little robots.

A program within the K-12 STEM initiative launched this year, students meet at the lab for STEM lessons and afterschool activities that combine practical physics with coding, electronics, environmental science and visits from the island’s technical experts. The facility is annexed to the school library—a special status that allows homeschool students to utilize its resources.

Check out the lab, and what you find may surprise you. The shelves bulge with tools for botany and materials for prototyping models. Lego boards are fixed to a wall near displays of lab glassware. Some gear was specially ordered, like the blacktop science lab tables for group collaboration. Some resources and equipment came from remodeled classrooms, such as the unlikely find of more than 10 student microscopes.

However, it was the community’s response which most surprised the lab’s creator, 5th and 6th grade math and science teacher, Misti French.

Over the summer, island volunteers donated and moved materials, plastic storage totes of curriculum, learning aids and a myriad of other supplies into the lab. Others asked to visit the classrooms. Word of the lab traveled fast.

“It’s super-cool,” said French, of the enthusiasm. She is excited to involve the island’s technical experts in future activities, and to help her students grasp concepts relevant to atoll life like the lack of fresh water available in the outer islands and the limits of sustainable farming at sea-level.

One volunteer, parent and MIT LL Scientific Advisor Dr. Karyn Lundberg, stepped forward to challenge and nurture critical thinkers at George Seitz with a new activity. She teamed up with French and started a Robotics Club.

Currently, the students are building and training programmable robots to perform tasks. The materials and learning resources were sourced by Lundberg and provided by the FIRST LEGO League program, an international STEM-based learning initiative.

“I wanted to have a club where STEM-minded kids could meet and challenge each other, as well as the chance to offer robotics exposure to the broader student community,” Lundberg said.

While Lundberg enjoys the challenge of providing a new STEM-based activity, much more is in store.

Afterschool Science

During a September club meeting, student teams “dug right in,” Lundberg said, and reviewed video instructions for programming their small robots to complete “Cargo Connect” challenges. They fastened sensors onto the small chassis to help the bots discern directives from audio and visual stimuli via a Bluetooth connection.

“They’re working toward completing any number of 16 missions with the theme of modernization of cargo transport,” said Lundberg. “Their first goal is to learn to drive their robots to a central location on a large city map. Other challenges require different levels of dexterity. Tasks include teaching small robot vehicles to ‘platoon’ or connect to other vehicles, to build with blocks and to deliver packages.”

By day three, something unexpected happened.

“There is a robot dancing in there,” called one parent volunteer to the students.

“You should come check it out.”

Students left bins of components and colorful roadmaps and gathered around a library table to see it for their own eyes—a miniature vehicle, dutifully moving in the circular path of travel programmed by Robotics Club member Michael Melody.

There were cheers, laughter—and several students raced back to their seats to work on their robot’s response skills.

Students will take what they’ve learned on an upcoming tour of operations and logistics sites. Their lab tasks simulate real-world activities conducted at Bucholz Army Airfield and Echo Pier, like offloading a payload and following a route between checkpoints.

With support from the Kwajalein Marine Department and LOGCAP Directorate of Services, they will observe the real-world application for their lab work—vehicles and work crews engaged in operations much like what they’ve programmed their robots to accomplish.

It is an opportunity French and Lundberg had hoped for.

“We’re going to seize on that energy in the community,” said French. “Look at where we live. [It’s] science island!”

Our parents are mathematicians and scientists. We will have the full advantage of the expertise and enthusiasm of our community and its members.”

Volunteers in the island’s science community who are interested to help the STEM initiative should contact Misti French and join the waiting list of science enthusiasts. Currently, it includes members of island organization like MIT LL; U.S. Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 5, Detail Marshall Islands; the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers; and Department of the Army civilian employees.

As Lundberg knows, they’ll be in for an exciting and fun experience.

“We at MIT LL are so lucky to have Misti as a partner,” Lundberg said. “Her enthusiasm and energy are invaluable.”

FAMILIAR FACES AT KWAJALEIN ENTRY AND EXIT

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

The next time you visit the Kwajalein Entry & Exit Office, be sure to greet the teammates from Chenega Global Protection.

Officers Aine Riketa and Nakita Capelle work to ensure travelers have a seamless enjoyable experience while maintaining security standards at the checkpoint. The duo assists in baggage and travel documentation checks and offer friendly smiles and conversation as travelers make their way to their destination.

Capelle, who performed contract security work in northern Salem, Oregon, appreciates Kwajalein's sunshine. He fondly remembers the weather in the Pacific northwest—but he doesn't miss it.

"It's raining, there," he jokes.

Capelle reminds the community that E&E officers take security for inter-atoll travel seriously and verify that passengers do not remove endangered species or transport unauthorized materials on their journey.

"There are some shells we are not allowed to take," Capelle said.

It is important for all travelers, regardless of destination, to adhere to those rules to protect the people and environment of the atoll community. Those with questions can contact the Environmental office at 5-1135.

Riketa, who has worked in the past as a marine engineer, enjoys the chance to interact more with members of the community. For him, the reward of security work is getting to help others.

"I like working with people," said Riketa. "I enjoy customer service."

NOVEMBER IS NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE MONTH

HOURLASS REPORT

Compiled from the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute

It is time to celebrate the rich and diverse cultures, traditions, and histories of Native Americans and Alaskan Natives, the first people of the United States. November is National Native American Heritage Month.

Throughout the month, The Kwajalein Hourglass will share pieces of the rich cultural heritage and contributions of these communities.

On record at the New York Public Library American History Desk Reference are some surprising facts about Native American history in North America:

- More than half of the U.S. states trace their names to Indian origins: Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Wisconsin and Wyoming.
- Aspects of American Indian and Alaska Native culture have remained a staple of modern American life. The hammock, common in many different Indian cultures, found its way onto Navy and merchant-marine ships as a space-saving bed. Nowadays, they can be found in our own backyards.

The Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute has surprising statistics. According to the 2020 U.S. Census, the nation's population of Native Americans and Alaska Natives, including those of more than one race, was 9.7 million. Currently, there are 574 federally recognized Native American and Alaska Native tribes and more than 100 state-recognized tribes across the United States. Each have their own unique Native history, beliefs, governance structure, and culture.

The U.S. Department of the Interior, Bureau of Indian Affairs, reminds us that Native Americans and Alaska Natives come from a multitude of different cultures with diverse languages, and for thousands of years used oral tradition to share familial and cultural information among generations of tribal members.

As contact between Native Americans and non-Native Americans grew, so did the necessity of learning of new languages. Even into the 20th century, many Native Americans and Alaska Natives were multi-lingual because of learning to speak their own language, as well as English, French, Russian, or Spanish, or even another tribal language.

Even so, according to Library of Congress records, in 1924, Congress passed the Indian Citizenship Act, also known as the Snyder Act, giving Native Americans the right to vote. A 1938 survey found that eight states still prohibited Native Americans from voting. Several cases were brought to the Supreme Court. Utah, Minnesota, and Arizona were the last states to allow the vote. It wasn't until 1965 that all barriers to Native American suffrage were eliminated in the United States.

Former U.S. President Barack Obama prompts us to remember the contributions of Native Americans to history, and American life: "Every year, our Nation pauses to reflect on the profound ways the First Americans have shaped our country's character and culture."

The first stewards of our environment, early voices for the values that define our Nation, and models of government to our Founding Fathers—Native Americans and Alaska Natives helped build the very fabric of America. Today, their spirit and many contributions continue to enrich our communities and strengthen our country."

The Department of Defense along with the rest of our nation, celebrates the first people to live on the land we all value. Native Americans and Alaska Natives have bravely defended and shaped our country's character and our cultural heritage. A new generation has assumed this charge from their elders, and they continue to serve not only their nations but the United States with dignity and honor.

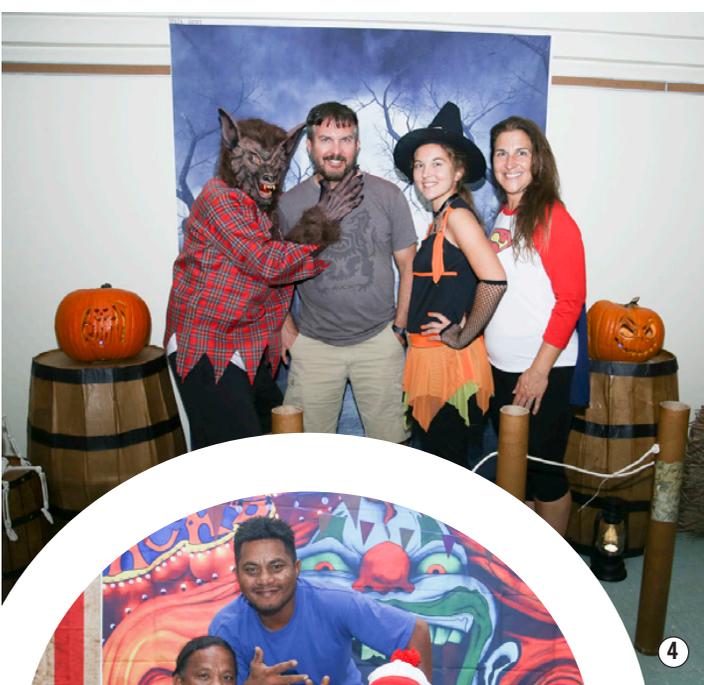

Hunting alloween

Ghosts, goblins and guests roamed the streets of Kwajalein this Halloween. The Kwajalein Hourglass stepped out to with a soul-stealing camera (just kidding) to snap photos of the fun. We hope you will enjoy these photos from fall celebrations and Halloween night on U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll.

U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll appreciates your efforts to keep your yards and quarters neat and clean. Do your part to help the command team by protecting island lawncare equipment.

Before you Mow.

For your safety, and the safety of all passersby, pick up and remove sticks, rocks and crushed coral from your yard that could become caught in lawn mower blades. Please rake leaves or other shrubberies versus mowing them over with the lawn mower.

Now, you mow—and mowing is half the battle.

Take Cover.

Don't leave lawn equipment in the rain. When finished mowing, cover the lawn mower with its cover, as it was delivered.

Power Up.

Fully charge lawn equipment after each use, so it is ready for the next operator.

You can extend the use of lawn care tools by treating them as if they were your own. Your neighbors will appreciate your diligence, and you can check out your positive impact on your next neighborhood walk.

U.S. SPACE AND MISSILE DEFENSE COMMAND HISTORY

BY SHARON WATKINS-LANG, USASDMC HISTORIAN

Who's who in U.S. Space and Missile Defense Command history? This week, we remember the contributions of the U.S. Department of Defense civilian employee workforce. The many technical experts and specialists working in the late 1980s laid the groundwork the future systems and program supports for the multi-domain Warfighter.

In honor of their 30th anniversary, the U.S. Army Strategic Defense Command hosted a reception at the Alabama Space and Rocket Center Nov. 4, 1987.

The public affairs office has unveiled a new display for the museum depicting the history of American ballistic missile defense.

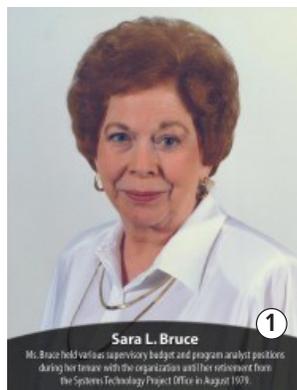

During the event, command leaders announced the winners of the student writing contest to explore how the Strategic Defense Initiative could fulfill a constitutional mandate to “provide for the common defense.”

Employees received awards for outstanding achievements and inducted the first eight former USASDC civilian employees into the hall of fame.

Award recipients included the following personnel: Administrative leadership Award recipient Jerry Cavender; Advanced Technology award recipient Susan Embry, for her work in neutral particle beam interactive discrimination; Engineering Award recipient Rene Riviere, for his demonstration of one of the most efficient lateral-thrust rocket engines ever tested; Patricia Cribbs, awarded recognition for contract management; and Bernard Davis, recipient of the Test and Evaluation award, for his work in systems evaluation and modeling.

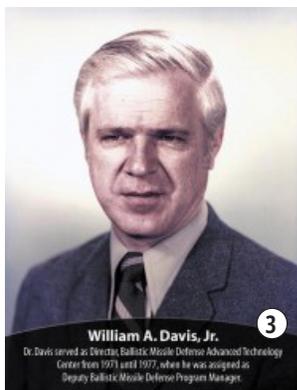

Today, the Hall of Fame displays inductee photos from the 1987 celebration, and includes the following personnel: Julian Davidson, deputy program manager of Ballistic Missile Defense; Charles Richardson, Jr., deputy commander of BMD Systems Command; William Davis, Jr., deputy program manager and director of the Advanced Technology Center; Fred Stevenson, radar expert in the Systems Technology Project office; Sara Bruce, Budget and Program analyst; William Graves - For leadership during the development of the SPRINT, SPARTAN and other missile projects; William Turney, chief contracting officer; and Paul Phillips, Jr., chief scientist and chief engineer.

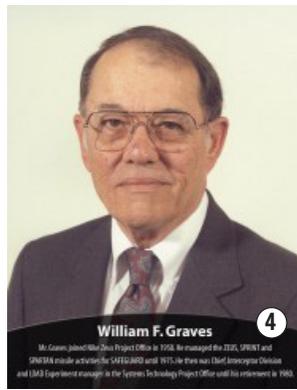

Sara L. Bruce
Ms. Bruce held various supervisory budget and program analyst positions during her tenure with the organization and her retirement from the Systems Technology Project Office in August 1978.

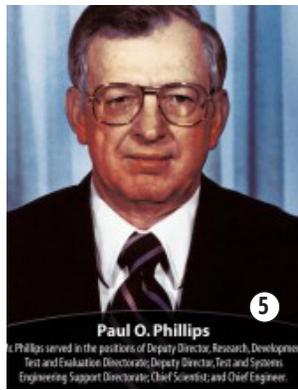

Julian Davidson
Dr. Davidson served in the positions of Chief, Threat Analysis and Systems Effectiveness Branch; Director, Advanced Ballistic Missile Defense Agency; Special Assistant for Strategic Subarea System Office; and Deputy BMD PA.

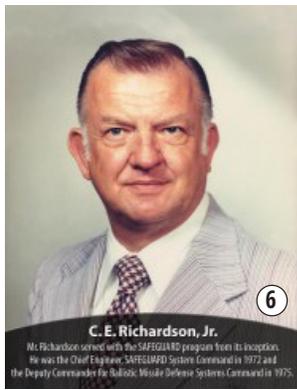

William A. Davis, Jr.
Dr. Davis served as Director, Ballistic Missile Defense Advanced Technology Center from 1971 and 1977, when he was assigned as Deputy Ballistic Missile Defense Program Manager.

William F. Graves
Mr. Graves joined the Operations Project Office in 1958. He managed the SPRINT and SPARTAN missile activities for SAFEGUARD until 1975. He then was Chief, Inventory Division and LMA Experiment manager in the Systems Technology Project Office until his retirement in 1983.

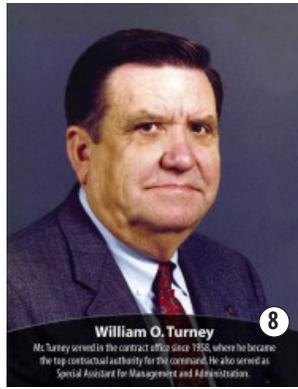

Paul O. Phillips
Mr. Phillips served in the positions of Deputy Director, Research, Development, Test and Evaluation Directorate; Deputy Director, Test and Systems Engineering Support Directorate; Chief Scientist; and Chief Engineer.

C. E. Richardson, Jr.
Mr. Richardson served with the SAFEGUARD program from its inception. He was the Chief Engineer, SAFEGUARD System Command in 1972 and the Deputy Commander for Ballistic Missile Defense Systems Command in 1975.

Fred Stevenson
Mr. Stevenson was the Program Manager for the Radar Site Radar (RSR). The Radar Site Radar was a major element of the Ballistic Missile Defense System. He was the top contractual authority for the command. He also served as Special Assistant for Management and Administration.

William O. Turney
Mr. Turney served in the contract office since 1958, where he became the top contractual authority for the command. He also served as Special Assistant for Management and Administration.

1987 inductees to the Strategic Defense Command Hall of Fame received recognition for employee excellence during a command awards ceremony that same year. 1) Sara Bruce; 2) Julian Davidson; 3) William Davis, Jr.; 4) William Graves; 5) Paul Phillips; 6) C.E. A KERNEL OF TRUTH ABOUT DAD'S MOVIE NIGHT

One would think we did nothing for entertainment on this island with how fast rumors travel.

Here is one I recently heard: "Dad's movie nights are only for dads and kids. No moms allowed."

That's a good one—and of course, it's not true. The fact that a rumor exists about a fun event night is proof enough of victory achieved.

Want to go?

Teenage elf brothers Ian and Barley embark on a magical quest to spend one more day with their late father. Like any good adventure, their journey is filled with cryptic maps, impossible obstacles and unimaginable discoveries. But when dear Mom finds out her sons are missing, she teams up with the legendary manticore to bring her beloved boys back home.

In the few short months since he arrived on island, Col. Thomas Pugsley's goal to reboot the community's love of outdoor fun is working like a charm.

Pugsley's "Dad's Movie Night" is now a monthly activity. It's his invitation to dads to spend time with their young children. The objective is simple: Roll up to a free movie theater, grab a bag of popcorn and enjoy a show.

With the strategic advantage of never-ending fresh, hot MWR popcorn available at each event, the "popcorn colonel" couldn't lose, but his enthusiasm hasn't flagged, either. Pugsley continues to attend each of the movie nights with his youngest family members.

The event is not as exclusive as some might have guessed. Motion Picture Association film ratings aside, anyone can attend the movies, and all are invited. However, aimed at parents, the activity does give some the option to hang out with the kids for an evening and to give their partners a few hours to themselves.

The number of attendees has increased since the summer. Better still, the island's private organizations are getting in on the fun. During last month's event, the Yokwe Yuk Welcome Club sold fall treats outside the theater for patrons to enjoy.

Don't let a rumor keep you from enjoying an evening outdoors. Investigate your tall tales. Go to the source—or better yet, go to the movies, and join in the fun. There is plenty of popcorn for everyone.

ISLAND VACCINE AND TRAVEL UPDATES

Night Shift Workers' Flu Clinic
Wednesday, Nov. 17
7 – 8 a.m.
Kwajalein Hospital

Attention Night Shift Workers: Kwajalein Hospital will hold a special flu vaccine clinic for night shift workers who cannot visit the hospital during regular hours of operation. Please call the Kwajalein Hospital 5-2223 to schedule your vaccine appointment.

U.S. Entry Requirement for Unvaccinated Travelers Entering the United States

Attention unvaccinated residents and TDY personnel departing Kwajalein via United Airlines

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention now require unvaccinated passengers to have a negative Covid-19 test one day prior to departure.

How does this impact you?

If you are traveling to the U.S., you must visit the Kwajalein Hospital during regular business hours the week before your departure to pay for your Covid-19 test and to schedule your weekend swab. The hospital is open 8 a.m. – 4:30 p.m.

For more information, contact US-AG-KA Health Systems Specialist Suzanne Mosier at 5-2354 or call the Kwajalein Hospital at 5-2224.

HEALTH CONNECTION

BY KWAJALEIN HOSPITAL

Q) What type of toothbrush and toothpaste should I use?

It is recommended for people to brush their teeth for at least two minutes twice a day using fluoridated toothpaste and a toothbrush that has soft bristles. Firmer brushes can be too abrasive, leading to tooth and gum damage. Replace toothbrushes every three to four months, or more often if the bristles are visibly matted or frayed. Either manual or powered toothbrushes can be used effectively.

When it comes to selecting oral care products such as toothbrushes and toothpaste, look for the ADA Seal of Acceptance. A product earns the ADA Seal of Acceptance by providing scientific evidence that demonstrates safety and efficacy, which the ADA Council on Scientific Affairs carefully evaluates according to objective requirements.

Q) Since it is not easy to travel off island for yearly medical checkups, what services and capabilities are provided for preventive medical exams at the Kwajalein Hospital?

Preventive care falls into two essential categories: health maintenance and screening examinations based on age and family history.

Available services include the following: routine women's healthcare, cervical cancer screening and breast examinations, skin examinations and the treatment of many common skin conditions. Abnormal findings during these screening examinations may warrant off-island referral.

The hospital can also assist with the management of new or persistent health conditions such as the following: hypertension, diabetes, elevated cholesterol, thyroid disease, asthma, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, smoking cessation, and anxiety/depression.

Advanced screening examinations like colonoscopies, mammography, or CT scans, are not available at the Kwajalein Hospital. Please reference the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force website for guidelines associated with routine screening recommendations online at <https://www.uspreventiveservicestaskforce.org/uspstf/recommendation-topics/uspstf-and-b-recommendations>

WEATHER WATCH

RTS WEATHER STATION STAFF

After an active period of weather for the workweek due to a combination of the Intertropical Convergence Zone, a low-level wave and general instability, conditions look to settle down to start the weekend.

An enhanced subtropical ridge in the mid-Pacific will push stronger than usual trade winds into the region, leaving more stable and generally drier conditions over the next few days.

After showers clear for Friday, only isolated showers are expected through most of the weekend, especially for the first half.

On Monday, expect more activity with enhanced low-level convergence ahead of a resurgence of the ITCZ next week. Winds will be predominantly east-northeasterly at speeds in the low teens throughout the weekend, eventually shifting more east-southeasterly and decreasing in speed by Tuesday.

As a reminder, the "fall season" represents the rainy season for Kwajalein Atoll, and despite a large outlier month with August, September and October have followed the normal trends. November looks to be no different thus far, so expect more rainy days for the rest the month.

SATURDAY and SUNDAY: Mostly sunny with isolated showers. ENE-E at 9-14 knots with occasional higher gusts.

MONDAY: Partly sunny with widely scattered showers. ENE-ESE at 10-15 knots with higher gusts near showers

NEXT WEEK: ITCZ returns early Tuesday to bring showers through the midweek period. Winds will decrease and become more variable.

The Corlett Recreation Center is reserved from 6 p.m. Nov. 6 through 7 a.m. on Nov. 9 for the RMI Trade Fair. Please contact MWR at 5-3331 with any questions.

HOW OUR NEWSPAPER GOT ITS NAME

The shoulder sleeve insignia of the 7th Infantry Division consists of two black, equilateral triangles placed vertically on a red circular disc giving it an hourglass shape. The hourglass of the insignia was consequently used in the title of the island newspaper, The Kwajalein Hourglass.
