The 20's came back with a bang—a fireworks display at Emon Beach by U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll Morale, Welfare and Recreation. The days ahead were full of the promise of progress, and Kwaj residents looked forward to the new year.

1) Members of Parsons, Inc. broke ground on Bucholz Army Airfield in mid-January. 2) Why not celebrate the beginning of the year with dental work? Pictured here, Kwaj dentist Dr. Scott Berry and hygienist Blanche Adcock work on a patient. 3-5) Construction crews recovered a wallet that had been lost for more than 60 years inside old Kwajalein masonry. Using the scant few pieces of identification found in the wallet, Kwaj archaeologists were able to begin tracing the family of the owner. He was a U.S. Navy Sailor named Homer Bollinger. 6) January is a great time to begin adopting resolutions, but some early birds got a jump on their weight loss goals in the fall of 2019, thanks to the Kwajalein Hospital. Pictured here, MJ Jackson displays her weight loss score card. A rigorous routine of fasting and regular exercise helped Jackson lose more than 50 pounds and claim a cash prize for being the weight loss program's "Biggest Loser."

1) Members of the Republic of the Marshall Islands government and ambassadors to the RMI from the United States, Taiwan and Japan meet together in Majuro's Nitijela chamber following the inauguration of new RMI President David Kabua. 2) When U.S. Navy Seabees aren't at work, they take photos of sunsets, like this shot provided by Chief Rouel Agustin. 3) This tough little dog went down in history as

4 FEBRUARY 1945

February is a busy month on Kwajalein with school activities, winter sports and ceremonies on Ebeye and Kwajalein to honor historic dates in atoll history. Island residents took their lawn chairs to North point to watch for the telltale re-entry glow of an unarmed Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missile test.

Developing news of an illness in China seemed like a distant concern, and travelers from Kwajalein continued to take annual leave. Late in the month, some residents were stranded by travel restrictions in their respective airports. Big changes loomed ahead.

1) Kwajalein photographer Linn Ezell captured this nice shot of an ICBM test launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, California, February 5. The Emon Beach Scuba Shack is visible to the right. 2) Well, that's one way to block an opponent. Turbo Turtle Brian Charleton, right, is a defensive flotilla of one for Spartans' Brent Cote during the 2020 Inner Tube Water Polo Season Championship Game. 3) In February, the Island Memorial Chapel celebrated the anniversary of its consecration with a special ceremony. The original house of worship was built and rebuilt during the early post-WWII era. Over the years, the footprint of the religious campus has grown to include the Religious Education Building and a stained-glass window dedicated on the island's 50th anniversary of WWII. Myriad historical photographs capture changes in chapel architecture over the years, like this courtesy photo from Bill Remick. 4) Officers from the George Seitz Elementary School Student Council met with DI personnel to address reducing waste in the Ri-Katak school lunch program. 5) From left: USAG-KA Protocol Office Rick Krewson, Deetz Orłowski, Joe Orłowski and USAG-KA Commander Col. Jeremy Bartel. The colonel sponsored the Orłowskis so that Joe could fulfill a lifelong dream: to visit the atoll where his father had served in the U.S. Navy during WWII.

1) Happy Kwajalein Day: Feb. 9 marks the liberation of Kwajalein Atoll by American forces during WWII. The event is celebrated each year on Ebeye with a special parade, music and remarks by government personnel and traditional leaders. This year's Kwajalein Day included an appearance by the 10 newly elected officials of the Kwajalein Atoll government. 2) Iroi-jlaplap and Senator

MARCH

Few on island could have expected what March would bring.

As news of COVID-19, the novel coronavirus, spread around the world, the Republic of the Marshall Islands quickly closed its borders to inbound travel. This move effectively stranded many Marshallese citizens and USAG-KA residents and also kept COVID-19 out of the country.

The RMI Ministry of Health and Human Services, National Disaster Committee and U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll began months of intense work together with on-island partners to develop safety and contingency plans for keeping COVID-19 out of the RMI. USAG-KA also carried on with the task of continuing mission support with essential personnel and island residents stranded off island and supply chains impacted by the global crisis.

In the months that followed, unique perspectives on 2020 would emerge. The Marshall Islands would become one in a handful of countries with no known active cases of COVID-19. Atoll residents stranded abroad by travel restrictions experienced the month in self-isolation wondering when they would be able to return. In the atoll, life was impacted by necessary safety precautions applied to cargo offload operations, travel and daily life. These changes would last through 2021.

It would still be several months before the first return residents set foot on Bucholz Army Airfield. As news of the pandemic reached the island through friends and family members abroad, the community began to adapt to new Department of Defense safety regulations requiring social distancing. Without the immediate threat of COVID-19, many tried to continue daily life as normally as possible—and waited for what was to come.

1) The Keystone Club's Boys and Girls Club of America Variety Show was a highlight of the spring season. Talented community members and volunteers joined forces to produce the spaghetti dinner theater-style evening. Guest emcees Sam Partain, right, and DJ Chong-Gum marvel at typist Dominic Garcia's talent: He could be the fastest typist on the island. 2) In 2020, U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll relaunched its military history lecture series, featuring guest speakers highlighting diversity and culture in military life. USAG-KA Command Sgt. Maj. Kenyatta Gaskins spoke at the end of February on Black History Month. 3) Parents and students enjoy the Spring Art Show at George Seitz Elementary School. To adhere to DOD safety guidelines, like many other spring events, the art show admitted only small groups of attendees at a time. 4) One is never too small to do their part for the earth. Children at USAG-KA Child and Youth Services Child Development Center learned about recycling and counting with fun activities geared toward learning and developing environmental awareness. Pictured here, students report about how to recycle materials like cardboard, metal and aluminum.

By the spring, USAG-KA had devised a new system to vet community events and follow DOD guidelines. Each private organization submitted event plans in advance of their chosen dates to affirm they followed guidance on social distancing, hygiene and crowd size.

1) By March, George Seitz Elementary School teacher Misti French had devised a way to continue teaching her classes even though she was stranded in the United States. Pictured here, French speaks to her class with the help of a live video feed and projector while her fifth-grade students follow their lessons. 2-3) Kwajalein High School Band Director Kyle Miller directs the annual spring pops concert with a special solo by Kye Lorok, on "Isn't She Lovely" by Stevie Wonder. 4) Unprecedented skills on the court made for an exciting finish to the 2020 Basketball Championships.

APRIL

APRIL

By April, Kwajalein began to look different. Emergency services personnel—who had worked without days off to ensure seamless safety operations around the garrison for months—continued duty on Meck, Kwajalein and Roi-Namur with no break in sight. Social distancing reminders were posted at major points of sale like the Food Court and AAFES. Hand sanitizer practically flew off the shelves. Perhaps one of the most telling changes was, by spring, how empty the Zamperini Cafeteria was at lunchtime as employees opted for to-go containers more often than they stayed to dine in. Kwajalein Dining Services also removed tables to enforce the distancing protocols as directed by the Department of Defense.

Together with USAG-KA Command, the Kwajalein Hospital activated an outdoor temperature-check station prior to entry, and enforced hand washing before appointments. Community volunteers began to pitch in and sew masks to “cover” the atoll.

In late April, a live COVID-19 drill allowed on-island groups to practice a strategy for accepting return residents—though when and how they would return remained uncertain. For USAG-KA MWR, a daunting task loomed: how to continue to provide services? Sometimes, there is no easy answer. One thing was for sure: Kwaj life had changed.

1) MWR devised a socially distant Easter Egg Hunt for young Kwaj residents on the island’s athletic fields. As participants waited for the signal to rush out onto the field, a cloudburst dumped rain on the island. The single tent available to shield tables of event prizes suddenly became the most popular spot on the island. Parents and children were able to band together under the small tent without fear of infection. Elsewhere, communities were forced to cancel holiday festivities. 2-3) In small groups and in large teams, island crafters began to volunteer time on community mask-making projects, often donating or purchasing their own supplies. In April, Kwajalein had no known active cases of COVID-19. However, life on island changed as a result of global transit and travel regulations. Members of the community departing from Kwajalein appreciate the masks after regulations for outbound travel changed to require face coverings. The logistics crews supporting Bucholz Army Airfield used masks as part of their required personal protective equipment every day on the job. 4) A sign of the times: At Surfway, instructions indicate social distancing requirements required for patrons. Similar signs are posted at AAFES and other major points of sale. 5) A socially distant Easter sunrise service. Guest speaker Michael Love delivered the morning’s remarks. Pastor Brian Conner was stranded in Texas during Easter.

1) Kwajalein Hospital Deputy Administrator Shanah Darrah prepares materials for the first live USAG-KA Covid-19 drill at Bucholz Army Airfield. 2) Mary Beth Taylor, DI Community Activities director, prepares to speak during a USAG-KA Women's History Month lecture series event. 3) Island employees disinfect packages at the Kwajalein post office in mid-April before scanning in and delivering them to island residents. 4) These familiar faces are proof Kwajalein is one big family: Kwajalein residents Steve Prudence, left, Mary Haynes and Kyle Johnson found each other while stranded in Honolulu. Together, the trio helped each other with transit to purchase food and other necessary items during their impromptu stay.

MAY

May began Kwajalein's third month of 30-day-long travel restrictions as directed by the Republic of the Marshall Islands government, and island life adapted to meet the challenges faced by social distancing and growing staffing shortages.

1) Jake Wamsley successfully makes it under the limbo bar during at the 2020 Sweetheart Dance, a parent-daughter event sponsored by the Kwajalein Parent Teacher Organization. 2) Members of the brass line of the Kwajalein High School Stage Band—"The Pacific's Most Dangerous Band"—give a thumbs up before performing their next number at the annual Big Band Dinner Dance. Proceeds from the fundraiser support music program activities for KSS students. 3) Erik Hanson social distances from a great height. Pictured here, he easily clears four feet of air before leaping into the Adult Pool during the Memorial Day Weekend Cannonball Contest. 4) Members of the hardworking Marshallese workforce are some of the most long-time employees on the atoll. USAG-KA CYS Lead Teacher Carmen Jeadrik has taught in Kwajalein's pre-K program for more than 20 years. 5) If you want the total story, you've got to meet Neilo Total from Custodial Services. After more than 30 years of keeping Kwaj clean, she knows the island like the back of her hand. 6) Kwajalein Dining Services' Justin Hamon is the hibachi master. Visit him mornings at the Zamperini Cafeteria for the perfect omelet. Hamon has perfected his egg-cooking skills after more than 15 years of service on island.

1) Kwajalein Girl Scout ambassadors facilitating a COVID-19 awareness workshop for younger scouts hold a reminder of how the pandemic is affecting island life. Pictured on the laptop screen is Maddy Nienow, a scout who was stranded off-island with family members for several months. 2) USAG-KA Commander Col. Jeremy Bartel, left, and Kwaj resident Gary Stein dish up breakfast foods at the annual National Day of Prayer Breakfast. 3) Mandy Melody dashes through the finish line at the RustMan Triathlon as the fastest female runner of 2020. 4) Not your typical day at Surfway: Challenges to shipping schedules and additional maritime quarantine requirements affected food stocks in the early spring.

JUNE

JUNE

A solution USAG-KA revealed in June had been months in the making: quarantine. Working with the Department of Public Works, the Kwajalein Hospital, on-island information technology services and many other departments, USAG-KA Commander Col. Jeremy Bartel announced the implementation of an on-island quarantine system to bring in a small number of emergency services personnel necessary to assure the life, health and safety of Kwajalein. On-island quarters were prepared to accept the incoming groups.

The first group to complete their 21-day tenure indoors included Godfrey Capelle and Benjamin Thomas, two Marshallese fishermen recovered after their powerless, small boat drifted at sea for 42 days. Next to follow: a small group of much-needed emergency services personnel. More would arrive in the months to come.

Elsewhere in the Indo-Pacific region, communities erected hand wash stations and shipped each other supplies to prepare to meet the challenges of COVID-19, all the while working to keep it out. The U.S. Navy Seabees continued public works construction projects to help their host nations prepare, as well.

Typically, June is also a month to celebrate high school graduation. While the Marshall Islands considered postponing school graduation ceremonies to avoid the potential for atoll residents to be stranded if COVID-19 should enter the country, USAG-KA determined how best to host the traditional baccalaureate and graduation ceremonies. Some creativity and elbow-grease resulted in heavy use of the MWR outdoor, inflatable movie screen to televise ceremonies with limited seating to an outdoor audience. With fall college admissions uncertain, the graduating class faced an uncertain future. For those hoping for the usual pomp and circumstance, 2020 was a very different year.

1) Before any arrivals on USAG-KA, U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of the Marshall Islands Roxanne Cabral, left, and US-AG-KA Commander Col. Jeremy Bartel attended an Ebeye town hall with members of Kwajalein Atoll local government to meet with traditional leaders and discuss the way forward for quarantine strategy. Emphasizing that Kwajalein and Ebeye are part of one community, Bartel asked for Ebeye community assent in allowing mission-essential personnel to disembark and quarantine on USAG-KA. 2) Island Memorial Chaplain Brian Conner delivers a recorded sermon to Kwaj residents while stranded in Texas, awaiting clearance to return home. 3) Lee Ann Stone receives a nasal swab as part of the health check-in procedure on USAG-KA. Stone is one in a handful of new arrivals in June on staff at the Kwajalein Hospital, and incidentally, also a Kwaj kid who returned to island to work. 4) From left, Lt. j.g. Matthew Cridder, Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 5, Detail Marshall Islands, officer in charge; Lanny Kabua, Republic of Marshall Islands liaison to U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll; Scott Paul, KALGOV city manager; Tony Maika, councilman; and Builder 1st Class German Dunlop, NMCB-5, Detail Marshall Islands, operations chief, test a portable hand-washing station for atoll communities.

1) Making quarantine work is a team effort. Former Kwajalein DI Project Manager Richard Ellis, left, and DI Operations Director Patrick Dobson, right, discuss quarantine logistics plans with Kwajalein Hospital Senior Administrator Steven Kass. 2) That drilling sound you've heard all year is the San Juan team working to refurbish an island warehouse for future use by the Kwajalein Automotive Department. The crew has battled exacerbated spalling for many months. 3) Former Kwajalein Hospital employee Rhonda Gleason prepares to speak at a June USAG-KA town hall. 4) Members of the Lelet family celebrate at the George Seitz Elementary School 6th grade graduation. 5) These ladies know everything there is to know about your lunch at Zamperini Cafeteria. JULY

July is typically vacation season on Kwajalein. However, 2020 was a different sort of year. With no guarantee of safe travel due to COVID-19, many island residents opted to stay on island during the summer than—and this is a wild guess—ever before.

The unique flavor of the summer was capped off with Independence Day. Since pyrotechnics technicians could not make it to the island to set up a fireworks display, on July 4, Kwajalein watched a rerun of the previous year's fireworks.

Pick up sports, weekend trips to Roi-Namur and the USAG-KA Child and Youth Services summer camp offered garrison residents the opportunity to enjoy the summertime and adopt new hobbies. For some, that meant diving, and joining in the Kwajalein Scuba Club's annual Women's Dive event. For others, it meant sewing masks.

1) Kwaj residents marvel as MWR technicians erect the inflatable outdoor movie screen in the lagoon on Independence Day. 2) Personnel from logistics and USAG-KA Command load donated school supplies and materials for Ebeye Public Schools students onto a small watercraft. 3) The winners of the July 12 Roi-Namur Coconut Cup Race. Of the 19 participating contestants, three would take home bragging rights and be declared winners of this annual favorite event. The winning coconut, "Altair 69" belonged to Mark Swain (represented by his wife Laura Pasquarella-Swain, left). Sweeping second place was Roi-Namur Site Manager John Taylor, center.

Third place went to visiting Kwajalein resident Priscilla Price, right, who traveled to Roi for the weekend. 4) Now, this is just a great idea. Pictured here, young island residents chase donuts on a string as part of the USAG-KA CYS summer camp. The summer-long initiative included themed weeks to appeal to the wide variety of interests on the island. 5) Members of the "Masketeers," a volunteer sewing group, received special recognition ceremony at USAG-KA headquarters for preparing and sewing more than 1,000 facemasks. The materials were made available to the community. From left to right: USAG-KA Commander Col. AUGUST

For those living outside the atoll, it seems odd to describe the month of August as “the last month of summer.” After all, Kwaj is blessed with perpetual 86-degree weather. Nevertheless, as summer came to an end, Kwajalein’s newcomers enjoyed community beach celebrations and sports. Several mentioned being grateful for the end of quarantine and to have the chance to just go outside. USAG-KA also received special visitors from U.S. Embassy Majuro throughout the month.

1) Students board the U.S. Army Vessel Great Bridge to head back to Kwajalein after a day’s reward—a beach clean-up on Bigej—for completing the Commander’s Summer Challenge. The program contained multiple activities to stimulate young minds during the summer break, and included volunteer, academic and physical fitness challenges. 2) MWR’s mini summer softball season was a hit and brought together teams on Ebeye and Kwajalein to vie for bragging rights. 3) This August, U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of the Marshall Islands Roxanne Cabral visited atoll communities and had the chance to dialogue with local, government and traditional leaders in addition to checking out Compact construc-

REPUBLIC OF THE MARSHALL ISLANDS
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SECRETARY

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Date Released: 28 October 2020

Official Statement: COVID-19

Health Alert: Confirmed Two Positive cases of novel coronavirus (COVID-19) in the MARSHALL ISLANDS

28 October 2020 The Marshall Islands first border cases of novel coronavirus (COVID-19) have been identified on the military base on Kwajalein Atoll. These two people arrived yesterday, Tuesday, October 27th, 2020 on the ATI Flight that flew directly from Honolulu, HI to Kwajalein Atoll. The National Disaster Committee, in close coordination with the President and the Cabinet and USAG-KA, are rapidly responding to these cases and we can assure the public that these are strictly border cases and were discovered while these people were in quarantine, where they remain until this time. The Response Teams are monitoring the situation very closely. Neither of the cases are symptomatic or showing signs of the virus.

Case #1, a 35-year old female, tested positive on the evening of October 27th after arriving earlier in the day. This person was known to have had COVID-19 in late July 2020. Case #1 has received an antibody test, the results of which are still pending. This will determine if this COVID-19 case is indeed a historical infection, meaning the person previously had COVID-19 and is not infectious/contagious.

Case #2, a 46-year old male, tested positive earlier today, October 28th, after also arriving on previous day on the same flight as Case #1. As with Case #1, we are still waiting for the results of the antibody test. As far as we know, this person previously did not have COVID-19.

The 2 cases are not epidemiologically linked and protocols in place on USAK-GA have ensured they have not had contact with the community and both, along with their tranche, remain under strict quarantine.

Advice to the public:

At this time, members of the public are requested to remain calm and stay tuned for updates from the National Disaster Committee.

At the present moment, this remains a border quarantine case of COVID-19, with no threat of Community Transmission.

The month of October marked the 34th anniversary of the Compact of Free Association between the United States and the Republic of the Marshall Islands. The auspicious occasion was commemorated in a ceremony on Majuro at the International Conference Center. Kwajalein also received a special guest from Majuro: Attorney General Richard Hickson at the second Yokwe Yuk Welcome Club community lecture event. In addition to speaking on family law, Hickson entertained the audience with stories about cases he has tried in the past, and the many travels which brought him from his native Australia to the RMI.

October is also the month when new island residents truly learn the meaning of the term “Kwaj busy.” A flurry of community holiday activities begins and doesn’t quite wind down until the following year—USAG-KA Manit Day, the Kwajalein Scuba Club Haunted Wreck Dive, and MWR Shaving Cream Social are only a few of the activities that happen before Halloween trick-or-treating.

Just days prior to Halloween, atoll residents received word that two individuals in quarantine on USAG-KA had tested positive for COVID-19. With the news, the RMI lost its place among the dwindling list of nations who have not yet had an active case or positive test results but gained huge benefits in return. The garrison community and RMI had proof that quarantine procedures—planned, refined and altered for months—work as they were designed to do.

As a result of the tests, incoming residents and repatriated Marshallese will stay in Honolulu quarantine for a longer period of time before beginning US-AG-KA quarantine. The lessons learned from October will ultimately save more lives in the Indo-Pacific region.

1) U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of the Marshall Islands Roxanne Cabral and RMI Minister of Trade and Foreign Affairs Casten Nemra slice celebratory cakes decorated with the flags of the U.S. and RMI during a ceremony to honor the 34th anniversary of the Compact of Free Association at the International Conference Center in Majuro. 2) Young island residents participate in the annual MWR Shaving Cream Social at the Richardson Ravine. Armed with two cans of plain shaving cream, kids engage in friendly battle. Though it has been held in other months, the Shaving Cream Social heralds in Kwajalein’s Halloween. 3) RMI Attorney General Richard Hickson addresses Kwajalein residents at a Yokwe Yuk Welcome Club “Talks on the Rock” evening lecture at the Island Memorial Chapel. 4) George Seitz Elementary School art teacher Jane Christy, left, and MWR Business Liaison Teresa Mitchell met with GSES students to add a decorative touch to the growing MWR mural downtown at Macy’s. The downtown beautification project encourages individuals and private organizations to adopt a space to paint with their vision of Kwajalein.

Yes, the event was held in the month of October, instead of September, but we chalk this up to "being on island time." 4) Lynne Cheek, International SOS operating room nurse shares about her career at the annual Kwajalein High School College and Career Fair at the Corlett Recreation Center Gym. This year's event was coordinated to allow students from Kwajalein High School on Guegeegue to attend. 5) Jan Potter is the scariest Halloween clown at this year's MWR Haunted House event—and he appears to take this role very seriously.

NOVEMBER

November marked several ceremonies, musical tributes and events to celebrate U.S. military veterans on U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll. At least one of these events involved two days of intense fishing on a run to Roi-Namur and back. What better way to celebrate service to one's country than with a fishing tournament?

As the winter months progressed, Kwajalein residents faced the hard reality that travel to visit family and friends over the holidays would not be possible. Kwaj reinvested itself back into the community. More than ever, friends became a second family.

Some turned their energies to local philanthropic events and threw themselves into volunteer work. Others stepped up their video chats to households back home and used the time on island to attend gatherings they would typically miss during their annual leave.

Some Kwaj residents taking their nightly walks began to notice the glow of holiday lights. The gleam was perhaps brightest at quarters 241, where the Bartel family festooned multiple palm trees and areas of their front yard with lights early in the winter. Soon, inflatable characters and holiday projections of snowflakes and reindeer began to appear with more frequency around Kwajalein. Despite the troubles of 2020 and the challenges of the "new normal," Kwajalein was determined to see the holidays through.

1) Got fish? U.S. Army veteran Pam Hess displays an admirable effort in the 2020 MWR All Atoll Veterans Day Fishing Tournament. More than 30 U.S. military veterans and active duty service members were among the more than 55 bold anglers from Kwajalein Atoll on the water for an action-packed fishing adventure: the MWR Veterans Day All Atoll Fishing Tournament. Two days on the water to Roi-Namur and back had been filled with camaraderie and good fish—some caught, and some recorded and released per tournament regulations. As the B-boats returned to the Kwajalein Small Boat Marina, 12 teams anticipated whose catch would win the coveted All Atoll Champions category. 2) Employees from Berry Aviation International present Ebeye Queen of Peace School Principal Jessica Calep a check for $5,000 in donated education tuition funds to support students at the school. 3) Lifting a multi-ton vehicle into the air is never an easy task to accomplish, but an experienced team can make it happen. Such was the scene during an operation at Echo Pier as logistics personnel worked to load a fire truck onto a container vessel. 4) US-AG-KA personnel line up for a group photo with RMI Minister of Education, Sports and Training Kitlang Kabua following the Veterans Day Ceremony at the Island Memorial Chapel.

1) Casual domestic workers—on Kwajalein called home helpers—and their employers and friends assemble for a commemorative moment at an annual holiday party in their honor at the Bartel residence. The Home Helper party is an initiative of USAG-KA Child and Youth Services. 2) Longtime Kwajalein resident and athlete Bob Sholar, center, delivers a safety briefing to participants in the annual Kwajalein Running Club Turkey Trot—a fun run that challenges participants to estimate their best time for the chance to win entrees and side dishes before the Thanksgiving holiday. 3) Megan Ameigh, left, and Aubri Makovek flash a big smile for the camera. The two ment. 3) An SM-3 Block IIA is launched from the USS John Finn, an Aegis ballistic missile defense system-equipped destroyer, as part of Flight Test Aegis Weapons System-44. 4) Logistics personnel hoist a disused fire truck onto a vessel at Echo Pier.

DECEMBER

THIS KWAJALEIN HOURGLASS IS DEDICATED TO THOSE WE LOST IN 2020. WITH THIS ISSUE, WE HONOR THE MEMORY OF EMJAR NINJINE, A BELOVED FRIEND ON THE ATOLL.

Get Kwaj kids from different generations together to talk about life on island, and inevitably Santa Claus will make his way into the conversation. Some remember Santa arriving at Bucholz Army Airfield in years past. Others recall how each year, Santa boarded a big, red fire engine to travel to the downtown area tossing candy to the excited crowd. This year, Santa touched down at DeMeo Field with Mrs. Claus in a helicopter after touring the atoll and checking out sites like the Prinz Eugen and Ebeye.

Santa arrives early in December, and a busy holiday schedule follows. This year, the Claus family made their appearance at the George Seitz Elementary School Winter Music Concert, MWR's Light Up the Night holiday lights tours and at a special photo session for families at Building 805.

One of this year's most unique sightings took place in the hushed quiet of the Kwajalein High School Library. Following the night's music concert, the the Claus family video-chatted with a family in quarantine who would be released into an 86-degree winter just a few days after Christmas. Now, after this year, that's a present.

Of course, there are many more stories to tell about 2020. We end this hard year on Kwajalein surrounded by turquoise water, friends, families and the beauties and challenges that emerged with preserving atoll safety during one of the most challenging global events in recorded human history. Hard work, sweat, strict quarantine plans—and revisions to those plans—all continue to help the pulse of daily life on island run uninterrupted.

As residents of time zone one, Kwajalein gets to check out the new year a little earlier than some places around the globe. Happy Holidays and Iokwe Yuk as we head into the future. Check back next next week for stories and photos from 2021.

1) Trailed by an enthusiastic crowd of Kwaj residents, Santa and Mrs. Claus make their way to the parade float that will take them to the annual Tree Lighting Ceremony. 2) Mrs. Claus checks out the view from the helicopter. 3) USAG-KA Commander Col. Jeremy Bartel, left, and emcee Sam Partain are joined by members of the Kwajalein High School Class of 2021 to press the big red button and officially light the holiday tree. 4) A Ri-Katak student performs during the Tree Lighting Ceremony. With the help of Pamela Sakaio, Kwajalein residents donated foods, treats, drinks and snacks to dinner bundles for students to thank them for performing after a long day at school. 5) Speaking of long days, employees at the Kwajalein post office processed more than 85,000 pounds of mail in early December after a backlog of cargo arrived. The team worked additional hours—including Christmas Day—to get island residents their mail. On the day of this photo, the line of customers at the Kwajalein post office in early December reached all the way to the Surfside Salon. Pictured here, Kwajalein stylist Donnie Corzine knows this is no time to check the mail. 6) Surrounded by packages, post office employee Isaac Larios throws up a shaka and carries on: All good here.

1) During the Kwajalein Yacht Club Parade of Lights, you want to be in one of two places: on a boat or on the shore to check out the lights and greet the Kwajalein Scuba Club's Scuba Santa after he completes a night dive. This year's Santa was accompanied by several helpful elves and Mrs. Claus. Pictured here, the Kwajalein Yacht Club Parade of Lights sets the water of the lagoon aglow in this courtesy photo from Kwaj resident Heather Miller. 2) USAG-KA personnel pause for a photo before serving Thanksgiving dinner to island residents at the Zamperini Cafeteria. 3) Food Services Operations Manager Kevin Guidry, center, and several of the Dining Services employees huddle up for a group shot before showtime on Thanksgiving Day. 4) Island residents turned out in droves to enjoy treats and celebrate the holidays at the annual MWR Hobby Shop Open House. 5) USAG-KA Commander Col. Jeremy Bartel addresses guests at the Assumption of Responsibility Ceremony for Command Sgt. Maj. Ismael Ortega. The newest member of the garrison team resides on island with his wife Elizabeth.

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY

Flight Test-3 (FT-3) Draft Environmental Assessment/ Overseas Environmental Assessment

The United States Army Rapid Capabilities and Critical Technologies Office and the U.S. Army Space and Missile Defense Command, as Participating Agencies, have prepared a Draft Environmental Assessment / Overseas Environmental Assessment (EA/OEA) in accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act (42 United States Code 4321, as amended), the Council on Environmental Quality Regulations for Implementing the Procedural Provisions of NEPA (Title 40 Code of Federal Regulations [CFR] Parts 1500-1508, July 1, 1986), the Department of the Army Procedures for Implementing NEPA (32 CFR Part 651), and Executive Order 12114, Environmental Effects Abroad of Major Federal Actions.

The Draft EA/OEA analyzes the impacts of the continuing collection of data to demonstrate a reduction of risk for a longer-range payload system. Specifically, the FT-3 would continue to develop, integrate, and flight test a payload system to demonstrate the maturity of key technologies. The U.S. Army RCCTO determined that a launch from the Pacific Spaceport Complex-Alaska to Kwajalein Atoll, Republic of the Marshall Islands (RMI) was preferred. They also considered the No Action Alternative, as required by the CEQ regulations.

All missile demonstration programs proposed to occur at U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll (USAG-KA) and within the RMI territorial waters must comply with the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll Environmental Standards (UES). A modified Document of Environmental Protection (DEP) is under development to outline the activities proposed to occur at USAG-KA and within the RMI. The proposed activity is located on Illeginni Islet and in the broad ocean area of the Pacific Ocean. As fully analyzed in the Draft EA/OEA, the U.S. Army RCCTO proposes one experimental flight test.

The Draft EA/OEA and Draft Finding of No Significant Impact/Finding of No Significant Harm (FONSI/FONSH) are available at www.ft3eaoea.govsupport.us and in the following locations:

- 1) Office lobby of the Republic of the Marshall Islands Environmental Protection Authority, Majuro, Marshall Islands

- 4) Roi-Namur Library Kwajalein, Marshall Islands
- 5) Kodiak Public Library, Kodiak, Alaska
- 6) Z. J. Loussac Public Library, Anchorage, Alaska

WHAT THE CRITICS ARE SAYING
ON “TENET”: A big, brashly beautiful, grandiosely enjoyable one that will provide succor to audiences long-starved for escapist spectacle on this beefy, made-for-Imax scale.

—GUY LODGE, VARIETY

ON “ONCE UPON A DEADPOOL”: Cynics might call it a blatant cash-grab, but this retooled, less graphic take on Deadpool 2 is a more accessible, still entertaining version of the sequel.
—SANDIE ANGULO CHEN, COMMON SENSE MEDIA

ON “PITCH PERFECT 3”: Although Kendrick’s pint-size dynamo once pushed the Bellas beyond their la-la-la comfort zone, she basically sleepwalks through this third go-round.
—SUSAN WLOSZCZYNA, WASHINGTON POST

ON “ANGEL HAS FALLEN”: Angel Has Fallen starring Gerard Butler and Morgan Freeman is an out-and-out commercial action potboiler which relies heavily on action sequences and its lead actors. —SIFY MOVIES

ON “CARS 3”: ‘Cars 3’ opens with Lightning losing to a new, state-of-the-art rival Jackson Storm, a hotshot who trains on a videogame-style simulator and boasts a host of technical improvements. —MICHAEL O’SULLIVAN, WASHINGTON POST

ON “THE BROKEN HEARTS GALLERY”: ‘The Broken Hearts Gallery’ hits all the stops on the road to romantic-comedy gold. So, why did it take the exit onto Meh Boulevard? —JOHNNY OLEK-SINSKI, NEW YORK POST

ON “THE LAST SHIFT”: Despite some unexpected character choices and other small stumbles, this indie drama gets by on great performances, bitter-sweet humor, and many snapshots of heartbreaking truths.
—JEFFREY M. ANDERSON, COMMON SENSE MEDIA

USAG-KA WEATHER WATCH

RTS WEATHER STATION STAFF

SUN - MOON - TIDES

WEATHER DISCUSSION:
Kwajalein continues to enjoy mostly dry and breezy weather on this New Year's Eve. A wave moving along the intertropical convergence zone over the southern RMI could bring increased showers overnight and into New Year's Day, especially for southern Kwajalein Atoll.

The forecast gets tricky after New Year's Day as an upper level trough approaches from the east. This feature is forecast to weaken as it moves over the Marshall Islands, but could increase the risk for some thunderstorm development around Kwajalein Atoll over the weekend. It will remain breezy throughout, while prevailing wind speeds are expected to stay below Small Craft Advisory.

SATURDAY:
Partly to mostly sunny with isolated showers. NE-E at 15-20 knots with occasional higher gusts.

SUNDAY:
Partly sunny with widely scattered showers and a thunderstorm possible. Winds NE-E at 15-20 knots with occasional higher gusts.

MONDAY:
Partly sunny with widely scattered showers and a thunderstorm possible. Winds NE-E at 15-20 knots with occasional higher gusts.

MID-WEEK:
Residual mid-level moisture and weak trade wind disturbances expected to produce occasional cloudiness and widely scattered showers. Winds NE-E 15-20 knots.

How our newspaper got its name

The shoulder sleeve insignia of the 7th Infantry Division consists of two black, equilateral triangles placed vertically on a red circular disc giving it an hourglass shape.

The hourglass of the insignia was consequently used in the title of the island newspaper, The Kwajalein Hourglass.
