NO MISSION TOO DIFFICULT, NO SACRIFICE TOO GREAT – DUTY FIRST!

1ST INFANTRY DIVISION & Fort Riley Counseling Guide
Counseling Guide Foreword

Many leaders will receive this guide and ask why it is necessary. They will say, “I don’t need a guide to know my Soldiers. I do that already.” However, what I’m seeing across the installation is that our current standard for “knowing our Soldiers” is insufficient. This is unacceptable.

For instance, it is unacceptable for a leader not to know that a Soldier has separated from his wife and for months has continued to live off post. It is also unacceptable for a leader not to know if a Soldier pays child support or has designated someone other than his spouse to receive death benefits/SGLI. Leaders must be aware of the central elements of their Soldiers’ lives. All leaders expect their Soldiers to perform at a high level and without problems, but it is inevitable that all people experience turbulence in their personal lives. These are the moments when our Soldiers need engaged and proactive leadership the most. It is not enough to know or guess when catastrophe might happen. Rather, engaged leaders anticipate when turbulence is likely to happen in a Soldier’s life, and do their best to intercede with assistance.

Part of building readiness in our formation is developing resiliency and competency among Soldiers. Engaged leaders can find the best ways to help their Soldiers establish personal and professional goals, then map out a plan to meet them. Units succeed when individuals excel at their current roles, and are focused on preparing to meet future challenges. 1st Infantry Division is no different.

Through this guide, I expect leaders at echelon to understand the following:

• Leaders will be proactive and engage their Soldiers through daily interactions and formal counseling when necessary. The spirit of a counseling program is not to produce counselling packets. Instead, counseling is intended to build trust – trust among peers, trust among subordinates, and trust among leaders. Trust is the essential component to understanding what drives our Soldiers.

• Leaders will go beyond the superficial discussion that too often characterizes “counseling.” They will ask hard, often uncomfortable questions seeking information and answers that will improve—and possibly save—the lives of their subordinates.

• Battalion Commanders and Command Sergeants Major are responsible for Soldier transitions from company to company, battalion to battalion, and intra-post moves. Carefully managing these transitions, especially with medium and high risk Soldiers is imperative to mitigating risk.

• Finally, leaders will complement the effort to reduce risk with a corresponding campaign to inspire Soldiers to live the Army Values. Leaders lead by example. With that in mind, they will seek, identify, and emphasize strengths, help Soldiers achieve personal and professional goals, and continue to be an example worthy of emulation. They accomplish this through effective communication and counseling. Commanders will institute a counseling training program to ensure all leaders understand how to properly counsel subordinates. Proper counseling is the cornerstone to building mutual trust between leader and subordinate and is the central tenet of this document.

Purpose (1 of 2)

1. The purpose of this guide is to establish an SOP for use of the 1st Infantry Division Counseling Guide, the standardization of counseling packets, and for intra-division and installation transfers. Every Soldier deserves regular and purposeful counseling. A Soldier should leave a counseling session with a solid understanding of what they have done well, where they can improve, and how the leader and led will work together to meet those goals while achieving the unit’s mission. Leaders should leave each counseling session with a better understanding of their Soldier’s concerns, problems, goals, successes, and expectations. Quality counseling requires preparation and time from both parties.

2. Leader actions in support of counseling.
   a. All leaders will maintain a counseling packet for each of their Soldiers IAW this SOP.
   b. Leaders will secure counseling folders and all PII IAW Army & DOD regulations.
   c. Leaders in the 1st Infantry Division will read ATP 6-22.1, The Counseling Process, July 2014. Leaders will review packets IAW published guidance. Squad/Section Leaders will review their Soldier’s folders monthly. Squad/Section Leaders will have their counseling folders reviewed by their Platoon Sergeant quarterly, and the results issued in a special counseling. Counseling files are subject to commanders and 1SGs/CSMs review at any time.
   d. Leaders are strictly accountable for counseling packets. The success or failure of the leader’s counseling program will be reflected on their periodic counseling and/or evaluation.

4. The purpose of standardizing counseling packets is to establish an objective standard that leaders can enforce.
   a. We cannot expect junior leaders to understand how to counsel. Use the 8-step training model to train and certify first-line supervisors in the art and science of counseling.
   b. Part of counseling junior leaders is inspecting their counseling packets and providing guidance on how to improve their processes.
   c. The list of requirements in this guide (page 7) is not exclusive or exhaustive. Units may add to, but not subtract to the packet.

5. Counseling standards.
   a. In accordance with ATP 6-22.1, the chain of command will conduct a reception and integration counseling for new Soldiers, regardless of rank, within 24 hours of the Soldier’s new assignment to the unit.
   b. Soldiers will receive developmental counseling monthly, at a minimum. Units will dedicate the time to conduct counseling, and protect that time in their training calendars.
   c. Leaders must strike a careful balance between the unwieldy and bland counseling packets, both of which are not entirely helpful. We fully expect leaders to understand that some Soldiers require more counseling than others and to develop their counseling packets commensurate with the Soldiers’ needs.
Purpose (2 of 2)

a. Similar to transitions between different phases of an operation, Soldier transitions between units require careful coordination. Valuable understanding and insight into a Soldier’s performance and character may be lost if not properly shared between losing and gaining units, which can directly affect a leader’s ability to mitigate risks that affect the health and discipline of the force. Leaders must ensure this understanding is passed on to the new unit when a Soldier transition occurs. Managing Soldier transition is a command team responsibility.

b. Prior to approving a Soldier for transfer/transition, First-line supervisors will brief their leadership on issues identified during counseling. This requirement is intended to make Soldier transitions a deliberate event with leader oversight. This information will also be briefed to the gaining unit, as appropriate.

c. Soldiers will be assigned a sponsor prior to moving to a new unit on Fort Riley. It is the responsibility of both the gaining unit and the losing unit to ensure that the sponsor is assigned and that he or she has made contact with the new Soldier.

d. In order to ensure proper transition of Soldiers between units, leaders will conduct the following actions, verified by the Platoon Sergeant or higher:
   (1) Ensure the completion of a counseling packet by the losing unit and transfer to the gaining unit.
   (2) Ensure mandatory training (as required by AR 350-1) is documented in the Digital Training Management System (DTMS) to ensure individual training records are transferred to the gaining unit.
   (3) For intra-brigade transfers, platoon sergeants will accompany Soldiers of the rank of SGT and below when transferring within a unit. The platoon sergeant will ensure that the Soldier’s counseling packet is handed to the gaining unit. Soldiers of the rank of SSG and above will hand-carry their counseling packets and submit them to their gaining unit, unless their former chain of command believes the Soldier not responsible enough to perform this task, in which case the former chain of command may elect to hand the Soldier’s counseling packet directly to the Soldier’s gaining unit.
   (4) For intra-post/brigade-to-brigade transfers, the First Sergeant will escort the Soldier to the gaining unit. Units will use their discretion when determining what documents are included in the counseling packet. Leaders should afford Soldiers a fresh-start and not unduly prejudice the unit against the new Soldier. The gaining unit will assign incoming Soldiers a first-line leader (Officer/NCO), who will assess and counsel the Soldier upon arrival.

7. Our intent is to build a team of teams within 1st Infantry Division – one comprised of engaged leaders and Soldiers who communicate well with each other. This environment will lead to better developed Soldiers at echelon. Equally important, it will help us be able to recognize when Soldiers need help in advance of a given problem, and develop a risk-mitigation plan to help that Soldier. We want Soldiers to know that they can ask their leadership for help when they need it. This is about knowing your Soldiers, so you can take care of them. Quality counseling is an investment in each Soldier. While it may be time consuming, it is also team-building and risk-reducing and essential to any formation’s success.
Situational Vignette

It’s Friday and PFC Jones arrives to the Company and is assigned to your squad. PFC Jones is a 22-year-old male and is a recent graduate of the 11B OSUT training at Fort Benning, GA. Fort Riley is his first assignment and at first glance he appears to be squared away. PFC Jones’ professional bearing is outstanding, his haircut is a high and tight, and his uniform looks immaculate. You quickly scan through his in-processing packet and pull out his OSUT APFT card, noticing his score of 300. PFC Jones’ first impressions are sealed, but things are not always what they seem. PFC Jones is married and informs you his wife didn’t accompany him to Fort Riley. PFC Jones tells you he is residing in quarters on Fort Riley. You ask him if he needs anything prior to the weekend and he responds no. As you watch him walk to his vehicle, you notice he is getting into a 2017 GMC Yukon with a young lady sitting in the passenger seat and driving off.

Here is what you wish you knew about him. PFC Jones is married, but it’s not a “real” marriage. Rather, it is an arranged marriage to get the BAH, which he is splitting with a person he knows back home. PFC Jones is staying with a SPC Johnson who only requires him to pay the “water bill” in lieu of rent. SPC Johnson is in another brigade and is being chaptered out of the Army for patterns of misconduct due to multiple positive drug tests. Further, PFC Jones has a motorcycle and keeps it at a storage facility for safe keeping. PFC Jones’s experience in motorcycle riding dates back years so he doesn’t feel it’s necessary to do any additional training. The young lady you see in his Yukon is his real girlfriend whom he just met at Mustang's. PFC Jones’ DD93 instructs his sister is to be notified of his death and receive his remains but, PFC Jones’ father is the beneficiary of his SGLI. He doesn’t like to reveal information about himself to anyone…he doesn’t feel that it is anyone’s business but his own. To PFC Jones, this is a job and only a job, not a profession.

Why don’t we know these facts about PFC Jones?
Would it help us take care of him, and be best for the unit, if we knew PFC Jones better?
Who should ask him these deeper questions?
What tools should PFC Jones’ leaders use to get to know him?

… What must we do?

This guide offers tools to assist in the execution of beneficial counseling. Every Soldier is different, and will require a tailored approach. These methods offer an excellent and comprehensive starting point for the junior leaders in this Division to learn the art of counseling.

The Soldier and Leader Risk Reduction Tool (SLRRT) forms the foundation for these counseling methods, and the additional tools in this guide place an emphasis on goal-setting and growth. First line leaders who engage Soldiers through earnest dialogue are the key to effective counseling.
The Counseling Packet

The Comprehensive Counseling Packet is the 1st Infantry Division and Fort Riley standard for counseling packets. Each tab, numbered from front to back, will consist of the below specified items at a minimum. Subordinate members of the NCO chain of support can add to the counseling packet, but they should keep in mind that the intent is a quick reference of the major documents that help explain a Soldier’s life and not a book that details everything a Soldier does or fails to do.

The following pages outline how to develop this packet, and to read the documents created by other systems. To ensure effective and good use of everyone’s time, leaders performing counseling must prepare by collecting the necessary information, and planning for topics of discussion.
Tab 1: Personal Information

Soldier Data Card

The Soldier Profile Card is a useful tool to consolidate the Soldier’s key administrative data and provide a history of life events that affect the Soldier’s overall resiliency, job performance, financial health, and so on. Leaders maintain this tool as a snapshot of each Soldier, then use it to convey risk assessments to the platoon leadership. Units may adapt it to meet their specific needs (i.e. adjust the data fields or embed a picture of the Soldier’s off-post quarters), as well as adjust the milestone timeline slide to fit the Soldier’s unique situation. A good practice is to keep a timeline for each year of the Soldier’s career, capturing highs and lows to paint a picture for the current and future commands. Leaders, however, are encouraged to use discretion regarding how much the timeline captures based on the age, experience, and maturity of the Soldier.

Soldier Data Cards should be standardized at the company level (at a minimum). Useful sections include:

- Admin Data (name, rank, section, assigned leader, etc.)
- Photo
- Areas of Stress/concern, with details
- Areas of success/emphasis
- Plan of action moving forward, either to continue the Soldier’s development or to rehabilitate from an adverse action
- Timeline of the Soldier – major events in their personal and professional life

ERB, LES, and Profiles

These documents are an important part of telling a Soldier’s “story.” In order for leader and led to successfully understand various stressors and indicators in a Soldier’s life, as well as create a plan for personal and professional development, both must understand how to read these documents. The following pages provide a guide.

For a deployed Soldier the duty title will annotate FWD and two digit country code i.e. Platoon Leader FWD (IZ) ; this is the only place where TCS deployments will be annotated in Section IX.

All awards and decorations should match what is in OMPF.

If DOR goes backwards in time, then have a discussion with the Soldier and confirm with the commander.

PUHLES if not 111111 inform the commander.

Significant number of deployments and low dwell time may be indicators of high risk.

Check Security Clearance is current within 5yrs. If not inform the commander and have officer see S2.

Note: Some awards will not be coded, such as most foreign awards/badges, regimental and state issued awards. Copies of award certificates or orders awarding special skill badges are required to add awards or badges. No documentation is needed to add service awards such as the Army Service Ribbon or National Defense Service Medal.
Entitlements increase Soldier’s pay.

Types:
- Base Pay: Based on Soldier’s rank/time in service
- BAS: Entitlement that covers meals that the government does not provide. Therefore, Soldiers living in the barracks have their BAS deducted from their pay
- Clothing Allowance (enlisted): Covers cost of replacing uniforms (paid annually at the end of the month in which the Soldier entered active duty).

The following entitlements are conditional
- BAH/BAQ: Based on rank and dependency status. No BAH/BAQ if in family gov’t quarters. Partial BAH/BAQ if in the barracks.

Other entitlements such as Family Separation Allowance, Flight Pay, Hostile Fire Pay, Hardship Duty Pay, COLA, along with authorized bonuses (before taxes) will also appear in this column.

Allotments are a method by which a Soldier directs the payroll office (DFAS) to send money from their account to a financial institution, person, or company of a Soldier’s choice.

There are various types of allotments. Popular allotments are mortgage/house, car, credit card, court ordered child support, alimony, and AER payments.

Other types of allotments are charitable contributions, insurance premiums, thrift saving plan deposits, garnishments, union or other organizational dues.

Allotments can be set up through mypay on AKO or through finance.

Too many allotment may also indicate the Soldier has a debit problem and should be referred to the Command Financial Specialist.
Tab 1: Personal Information
Reading an LES (2 of 2)

The “PAY DATA” row will indicate if the Soldier receives BAQ with dependents and “BAQ Depn” show what type of dependent entitles the Soldier to BAQ. Spouse will be the default BAQ Dependent when there is more than one dependent.

Leave:
BF Balance: Balance at the beginning of the year
Emd: Leave earned this year
Used: Leave used this year
Cr Bal: Leave remaining
ETS Bal: Leave when ETS, if no changes
Lv Lost: Leave lost last year. On October 01, leave in excess of 60 days is lost
Use/Lose: Leave that will be lost next October if the Soldier does not use leave

Any indebtedness a Soldier owes to the government will be shown here along with the type of indebtedness. Indebtedness may be an indicator of financial, marital, or other issues. Monitor closely since too many deductions may result in a “no pay” to a Soldier.

Article 15 will read “DEBT” and will only show as an Article 15 deduction on the UCFR; it will be annotated with an amount on the last column title “C/M ART 15”.

When debts are posted to a Soldier’s pay record, there will annotations in the ‘REMARKS’ section of the LES.

The remarks will inform you of any changes that were posted to a Soldier’s pay record. Usually, reading the remarks can help you better understand the LES.
Spouse and children must be enrolled in DEERS to add them on to the DD93.

Ensure the number of dependents listed on the DD93 match ORB/ERB, and LES.

All dependents must be added.

If the dependent addresses are different from the Soldier’s address; this may indicate marital or custody concerns.

If the “Do Not Notify Due to Ill Health” has a name listed, question the Soldier. The Soldier may have a family member or next of kin that is sick and may require your assistance.

The areas with the Soldier’s parental information is important. It lets us know how far their family is located and if the Soldier remains in contact with the parents.
The new SGLV 8286 combines the old SGLV 8286 and SGLV 8285 forms together into one 2-page form. If the “Have more beneficiaries?” box is checked on the SGLV8286 on the left then the Supplemental SGLI Beneficiary Form on the right, SGLV8286S is required.

Primary Beneficiaries—spouse and children enrolled in DEERS. This should match ORB/ERB, LES, and DD93.

If married and the Soldier’s spouse is not the primary beneficiary inquire why. If the LES shows a Soldier has dependents, but is not listed above, then inquire why.

It is very unusual if a married Soldier decides to allot the insurance only to their parents and/or children, and not a spouse if they are married.

Ensure the administrative information in the section “About You” match the Soldier’s ORB/ERB, LES, and DD93.

Question any amount less than $400,000. If a Soldier declines SGLI coverage than you must counsel them.

Profiles
Profiles need to be kept on hand to understand a Soldiers’ limitations, but more importantly, to understand what a Soldier CAN do. If a profile is not written in a way that clearly explains what a Soldier can do, seek clarification through the chain of command to the Battalion Physicians Assistant or Medical Officer.

Family Care Plan
Leaders need to discuss a Family Care Plan with any Soldier who is dual military and has dependent children. The FCP should address short term requirements, such as training exercises and duty, and long term requirements like deployments. Establishing a plan is not sufficient, the leader must evaluate if the FCP is feasible. The plan should be revisited once per quarter.

EFMP Summary
The Exceptional Family Member Program is an important factor in a Soldier’s life and career, and leaders need to understand the requirements of their Soldiers who have exceptional family members. The counseling packet should have a summary of the EFMP, and highlight key points that the chain of command needs to be aware of.

Strip Map
Soldiers who live off post need to provide a strip map to their residence. Leaders and Soldiers should coordinate for a time when the leader can validate the strip map.
Tab 1: Personal Information
What a good profile looks like (1 of 2)
Tab 1: Personal Information
What a good profile looks like (2 of 2)

1. This section, ‘Section 2: Permanent Profile’, lists any permanent profile conditions (there could be several; for example: a hearing 2 profile and a lower extremity 2 profile). The ‘Combined PULHES (Physical, Upper Extremity, Lower Extremity and Back, Hearing, Eye, Psychological) aggregates all of the permanent conditions with an overall PULHES. The text will be in bold.

2. This section, ‘Section 3: Active Temporary Profile’, lists any temporary profiles that the Soldier has currently. The text is not in bold (this is to distinguish it from the Permanent Profile section). In block 22 there is a listing of how many days the Soldier has been on a temporary profile within the last 12 months and within the last 24 months. Note that this figure is not specific to any individual condition and a Soldier could have been on a temporary profile for their shoulder for 3 months and then later their knee for an additional 2 months – i.e. it is just calculating total days on any temporary profile.

3. Block 23 indicates if the Soldier can take a record Physical Fitness test. If they can’t then a best estimate is entered for when they are expected to be able to complete one.

4. This section lists an 'N' for any Soldier functional tasks that cannot be performed. Those listed in bold text correspond to permanent profile conditions and those in regular text correspond to the temporary conditions. If there is not an ‘N’ listed then the Soldier may perform this activity.

5. Block 25 lists some additional limitations related to lifting or carrying weight, prolonged standing and marching with field gear.

6. This section, ‘Section 5: Medical Instructions to Unit Commander’, lists instructions specific to the commander from the provider. Instructions in bold text are from the permanent profile. It is possible that the instructions in regular text (temporary profile instructions) contradict the ones in bold. If so always follow those that are more restrictive. A well written profile will also indicate in this section if the provider is recommending that a commander use an override for deployability or if the Soldier should be considered non-deployable and use of an override is not recommended.

7. This section, ‘Section 6: Army Physical Fitness Test’, lists what event the Soldier can perform and any alternate cardiovascular events. The indications in bold are from the permanent profile and those in regular text are from the temporary profile. Sometimes these can conflict as one may be more restrictive than the other. Go with the most restrictive indicator [Example: Soldier has a Permanent Hearing 2 profile which indicates they can do the run, pushups and sit-ups but the Soldier also has a temporary profile for their back which indicates no sit-ups and an alternate walk or bike for the PT test; for this Soldier the highest level of restriction would be that they perform pushups and then walk or bike for the cardiovascular event.]

8. This section, ‘Section 7: Physical Readiness Training Capabilities’, discusses activities that can be done and those that can’t or must be modified. Often providers use premade templates inside of MEDPROS to generate these. For example, for a knee condition a provider could rate as mild, moderate or severe which will then auto-generate suggested restrictions in this block. A provider can of course modify as needed and must ensure that the restrictions in this block are in agreement with Soldier functional tasks and Physical Fitness test limitations. Any time that there is a possible conflict please call your provider for clarification.
Setting goals helps Soldiers take an active part in their professional and personal development. It allows them to think about the future, and helps to build resiliency and long-term thinking. Finally, it helps leaders and Soldiers better understand each other, and creates a way for them to work together in development. A method for setting goals is listed below, and the following page provides an example goal worksheets.

- Step 1 (Define Your Dream): One of the most important strategies for setting effective goals is to choose goals that are personally relevant and meaningful. These types of goals inspire and motivate you to push past obstacles and to persevere through hardships as well as just getting you excited to get out of bed in the morning.

- Step 2 (Know Where You are Right Now): The time for dreaming big must be balanced with an objectively honest self-analysis about where you are at this very moment. This is where you evaluate what assets you have to leverage, and what limitations are standing in your way.

- Step 3 (Decide What You Need to Develop): To begin closing the gap between where you are and where you want to go, you’ll have to focus your attention and energy on the activities and thoughts that will have the greatest benefit and that are under your control. This means setting priorities: identifying which skill areas, knowledge areas, and competencies you need to build up in order to achieve your outcome goal.

- Step 4 (Make a Plan for Steady Improvement): Once you have figured out your priorities, you will need to figure out what needs to be accomplished daily and weekly. It is important to consider both the actions for each priority and the attitude that you want to have which are affirmations. Figure out what you need to do and how you want to be in order to reach your goals.

- Step 5 (Set and Pursue Short-term Goals): There is no short-term goal more important than the one you make for today. The present moment is the only place where you have any true control, which means that your personal life and your Army career are nothing more than the sum of all your “todays.” If you can accomplish a small mission “today” and every day that follows, you can’t help but move towards your dreams.

- Step 6 (Commit Yourself Completely): Sacrifice, discomfort, and setbacks are a part of the process. Do not let them erode your confidence and motivation. Find creative and strategic ways to post your goals so that your trip over them every day. Be sure to share your goals with those whom will reinforce your successes and hold you accountable when you’re tired or distracted.

- Step 7 (Continually Monitor Your Progress): Monitoring your progress is important for two reasons. First, you are able to see progress and therefore stay motivated. Second, it shows you if something is not working so that you can change it.

Tab 2: Professional Development

Professional Development Model by MOS
DA PAM 600-25 provides an overview of a “typical” developmental trajectory would be for any given MOS. This path is summarized, by MOS, on the milconnect website. At a minimum, NCOs will have the professional development model for their MOS in their counseling packet so that the NCO and leader understand together how to shape the junior NCO’s career. The developmental model can be found at:

Promotion Points Worksheet (DA-3555)
For processing of promotions, HRC automatically calculates promotion points based on the Soldier’s data in eMILPO and ATRRS. However, it is important for leader and led to understand where a Soldier stands, and how to improve their chance of promotion. This can be done with DA Form 3555, the Promotion Points Worksheet. Instructions for determining points can be found in AR 600-8-19.

Record Fire Scorecard (DA-3595-R), APFT Scorecard (DA-705), and Body Fat Content Worksheet (DA-5500)
These documents will help both the Soldier and the leader determine promotion points, and will also ensure that both understand how Warrior Tasks can be improved. The Body Fat Content Worksheet is only if required.

Tab 3: Unit Records

Training Certificates
Training information for a Soldier should be kept up to date in digital systems like ATRRS and DTMS, but it is also useful to keep a copy of those certificates in the counseling packet. It helps to teach the Soldier what is important information to have on hand, and it helps the leader and Soldier together manage when certain requirements are due, or what types of schooling would be most beneficial for the Soldier and unit.

Hand Receipts, OCIE Statement, and CIF Record
All Soldiers, regardless of rank, are expected to maintain accountability of their equipment. A copy of any hand receipts that the Soldier signs should be kept in the counseling packet, to include their OCIE Statement and CIF Record. This will allow the leader to assist with teaching the Soldier correct methods for property accountability, and to ensure that the Soldier has everything that they need to perform their duties. This information can also be used during counseling for discussion questions. For example: “How/where do you store your OCIE?” or “What equipment do you think you could use to do your job better?”
Tab 4: NCOER/Developmental Counseling
Regular developmental counseling is the Army’s most important tool for developing future leaders. Counseling responsibilities are inherent in leadership. Leaders at all levels must understand the counseling process. More importantly, Army leaders must understand that effective counseling helps achieve desired goals and effects, manages expectations, and improves the organization.

Integration & Reception Counseling (DA-4856)
Within 24 hours of arrival to a new unit, Soldiers receive a reception and integration counseling. The reception and integration counseling serves two purposes:
• It identifies and helps alleviate any issues or concerns that new member may have, including any issues resulting from the new duty location
• It familiarizes new team members with organizational standards, roles and assignments

Other Event-Oriented Counseling (DA-4856)
Specific Instance of Superior or Substandard Performance: a counseling sessions tied to a specific instance of superior or substandard duty performance. Leaders use the counseling session to convey to the subordinate whether or not the performance met the standard and what the subordinate did right or wrong. Successful counseling for specific performance occurs as close to the event as possible.
Promotion Counseling: Leaders must conduct promotion counseling for all specialists, corporals and sergeants who are eligible for advancement without waivers. Army regulations require that Soldiers within this category receive initial (event-oriented) counseling when they attain full promotion eligibility and the periodic (performance/professional growth) counseling thereafter. Soldiers not recommended for promotion must be counseled as to why they were not recommended, complete with a plan of action to address these shortcomings.

Performance Counseling (DA-4856)
Performance-oriented counseling is a review of a subordinate’s duty performance during a specified period. The leader and the subordinate jointly establish performance objectives and clear standards for the next counseling period. The counseling focus on the subordinate’s strengths, areas to improve, and provides guidance on how subordinates can improve their performance.

Professional Growth Counseling (DA-4856)
Professional growth counseling includes planning for the accomplishment of individual and professional goals. During the counseling, leader and subordinate conduct a review to identify and discuss the subordinate’s strengths and weaknesses. This conversation helps develop an individual development plan that builds upon strengths and improves shortcomings. Leaders can assist subordinates in prioritizing development efforts based upon perceived strengths and weaknesses. As part of professional growth counseling, leaders and subordinates develop a plan of action to assist the subordinates achieve their short and long term goals.

Frequency
Performance-oriented and professional growth counseling are routinely conducted together and are commonly referred to as “monthly counseling.” Performance/Professional growth counseling is conducted monthly for E-1 to E-4 and quarterly for NCOs and Officers.

Tab 4: NCOER/Developmental Counseling

NCOER Support Form (DA-2166-9-1A)

The NCOER Support Form provides a template for developing NCOs and tracking their progress. Regular developmental counseling will provide a way for leader and led to discuss ways to improve all aspects of a Soldier’s life and career, as well as capture some of the accomplishments of the Soldier. The NCOER Support form provides a place to ensure that the NCO’s most important accomplishments are kept on record. Keeping it up to date, and revisiting during each counseling session will allow the rater to develop a strong NCOER over the course of the rating period, rather than trying to remember key events when the time comes for a rating.

The Support Form can also provide a way to stress the importance of setting personal and professional goals. It should be developed along with the goals worksheet mentioned earlier. While discussing the input for the Support Form, the leader and led can also have a conversation on the Army Values and the attributes and competencies of the rated NCO. It gives the rated NCO a clear understanding of how they are seen by their rater and by others, and allows them to create a developmental plan.

Finally, the form lists out the rated NCO’s rating chain.

Previous NCOERs

At least the last two NCOERs should be in the counseling packet. This allows the leader to discuss the best ways for an NCO to improve, and also identify areas that have already shown progress.

Tab 5: Adverse Counseling

Adverse Counseling (DA-4856)

Unfortunately, some Soldiers make poor decisions or show a lack of discipline, resulting in adverse actions. Counseling in these situations becomes even more important. Good, useful counseling does not simply reprimand a Soldier for their mistake. Rather, it should spark a conversation between leader and led to determine the reasons and stressors that might have led to the action. Why does the Soldier think they acted in that way? What does the Soldier think they could have done differently?

In addition to clearly understanding the situation, the leader and Soldier need to develop a reasonable plan of action to prevent further poor decisions. The plan should address ways to not only to avoid future problems, but to address the underlying issues and determine ways that the Soldier can continue to develop in a positive direction.

Article 15(s), Bar to Reenlistment, Flag Report

Maintaining documents related to adverse actions in the counseling packet help the Soldier and leader keep track of what punishments are still in place. It helps to make sure the Soldier and leader are both aware of any extra duty or restrictions, and also keep track of administrative actions that might need to be removed after a certain time period.
Tab 6: Tools to Help Learn Your Soldier

The Soldier and Leader Risk Reduction Tool

The Soldier and Leader Risk Reduction Tool (SLRRT) is not mandated for use during counseling. However, if a leader chooses to use another method, they must ensure that it is equally comprehensive, and can serve to form a foundation between Soldier and Leader that is based on trust, mutual respect, and empathy.

When used correctly, the SLRRT is an excellent method for developing mutual understanding and a solid relationship between Soldier and their first-line supervisors. The SLRRT and the questions that it asks are INEFFECTIVE when simply presented to the Soldier to fill out, or when used as a “check the box.” The tool is amazingly effective when used as a basis for an open-ended conversation.

Using the SLRRT as an outline, the following pages provide examples of open-ended questions that a leader might ask during counseling sessions. The leader must assess each Soldier individually – no set of questions will apply to everyone. After developing a relationship, they will better understand which counseling methods work best for each Soldier.

The actual counseling session is only the beginning of the process for the leader. While the first line leader will trust that the Soldier is providing honest and forthright answers, they must verify those answers through the use of available tools at echelon. Failing to do so puts the Soldier at risk and could result in a discipline failure or serious incident. We owe it to our Soldiers to show them we care about them and that they are part of the team by asking the hard questions and developing a plan of action to help them.

SLRRT Definitions of Risk:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Level</th>
<th>Risk Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Low</td>
<td>Soldier has no significant problems for which they are receiving appropriate support. The potential for adverse outcomes appears to be low.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Medium</td>
<td>Behaviors or concerns that place the Soldier at risk of serious problems if not addressed through appropriate actions (e.g., Soldier is experiencing serious financial, legal, family/relationship, alcohol, or other concerns, and is experiencing difficulty getting adequate assistance; Soldier is exhibiting a pattern of serious risk taking behavior). Senior leadership (Battalion commander/equivalent should be notified.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>High</td>
<td>Behaviors or concerns that potentially place the Soldier or others in danger or harms way (e.g., life threatening risk taking behavior, serious performance problems that jeopardize team members safety, threat to self or others). Senior leadership (Brigade commander/equivalent and appropriate support channels should be notified immediately.</td>
</tr>

Harnessing the Knowledge of Peers
No matter how much effort a leader exerts, he may never be able to learn enough about a subordinate. Some subordinates put up a wall between themselves and their leader, making it extremely difficult for leaders to understand them. In these instances, leaders can harness the knowledge of that Soldier’s peers. Peers often know more about each other than most leaders ever will. The methods in which leaders harness the knowledge of peers is limited only to that leader’s imagination. Below are a few techniques that leaders can use to acquire peer feedback on subordinates:

• Peer survey (see below).
• Ask subordinates to anonymously fill out a note card in regard to a specific query. Example: “Write down who you think will get in trouble this weekend.”
• Small group discussions.

Peer Survey Questions
Which Soldiers are most likely to get arrested within the next three months?
Which Soldiers are most likely to get hurt during a personal recreational activity?
Which Soldiers is the least responsible Soldiers off-duty?
Which Soldiers are most likely to get in a fight with their spouse/girlfriend?
Which Soldiers are most likely to get in a fight?
Which Soldiers drink too much?
Which Soldiers are most likely to use illegal drugs?
Which Soldiers have financial trouble?
Which Soldiers have recently gotten in trouble off-duty and the chain of command does not know about it but should?
Which Soldiers have behavioral health problems, are not seeking help, and should seek help?
Which Soldiers are most likely to hurt themselves?
Which Soldiers outside of your Platoon do you believe are at risk?
SLRRT Financial
Does the Soldier have financial or employment concerns, such as inability to cover basic monthly expenses, home foreclosure, difficulty meeting child support payments, or inability to repay loans?

Conversational Questions
1. Describe your military pay compensation. This will indicate whether or not the Soldier understands how military pay compensation plan?
2. How much do you save each month? Why?
3. How much are you paying for rent? Do you think that is too much?
4. Do you financially support family or friends back home?

Is the Soldier experiencing any difficulties getting the assistance he needs on- or off-post?

Conversational Questions
1. What services do you feel the Army, Fort Riley, and the 1st Infantry Division adequately provide to assist with health concerns of you and your family? How could we do it better? Why?
2. Where do you and your family receive health services? On or off post? Location? Describe the services given and your satisfaction in services received?
3. What appointments have you had the most trouble with? Why?
4. How are you treated by others because of your health appointments?

* The majority of off-post providers are psychiatry or pain management related; therefore a counselor should consider if the Soldier is on polypharmacy (four or more daily medications, must have a profile stating such, and is on the BDE Surgeon memo to commanders) and if the Soldier had a recent admission for psychiatry, surgery, trauma, or another medical emergency (verifiable with the BDE SURG)

The Suicide Intervention Assessment Tool (SIAT)

All first line leaders on Fort Riley go through Suicide Intervention Assessment Tool training. If you are new to the organization, ensure that your company leadership is aware if you have been through the simple training. Battalion Unit Ministry Teams (UMT) and Company Leadership are capable of providing the easy training.

Once first line leaders know and understand their Soldiers better, they can see if something is wrong – if there might be something in a Soldier’s life that is driving them toward suicidal thoughts or actions. The SIAT is a simple tool to help the leader assess the situation and determine what action to take next. As with any tool, what is most important is to use common sense and good judgement.

Conclusion

A counseling session should rarely be a one way conversation from the leader to the Soldier, but rather an opportunity for the leader to learn and understand the Soldier through a two-way dialogue. Therefore, the Soldier should do most of the talking and the leader to merely prompt. Regardless of the strategy or techniques used, the qualities of a good leader remain unchanged: display respect for the Soldier, self-awareness, cultural awareness, empathy, and credibility. Every counseling session includes a risk mitigation discussion and a growth discussion. Typically, counseling for a high-risk Soldier includes a larger risk-mitigation discussion and counseling for a low-risk Soldier focuses more on growth. Eye contact, a body posture that reflects the desired mood, and non-verbal recognition cues, together known as active listening, are instrumental in any counseling session. Note taking is critical to capture the discussion for future reference.

Generally, a good counseling session follows this format: 1. open the session with a clear purpose statement; 2. discuss the identified issues; 3. develop a plan of action together, including leader responsibilities and assessment criteria; and 4. close the session by summarizing the key points and ensuring the subordinate understands what was discussed and agrees to the plan of action.

Should the leader identify any risk indicators that require immediate attention (e.g. suicidal thoughts), they should deviate from the counseling plan and conduct immediate mitigation using related and available resources (e.g. chaplain, behavioral health, etc.). If the Soldier makes statements that could be criminally/administratively self-incriminating, the leader must halt the session, inform them of the offense for which they are now suspected and advise the Soldier of their Article 31 Rights in accordance with DA Form 3881.

When discussing the Soldier’s capability and training, keep the fundamentals in mind. The 1st Infantry Division and Fort Riley use the BRO Big 9 and Phantom Warrior 5 as the standard in everything we do. We need to master these concepts, and keep ourselves and our Soldiers focused on them.

Remember: live the Army Values and treat others as you would be treated. It all boils down to engaged leaders that lead by example, all the time. 1ID and Fort Riley Soldiers will always be Brave, Responsible, and On-Point for the Nation.
