Army aviator lauded for diversity outreach efforts

One Army aviator’s passion to raise awareness among minorities about opportunities in Army Aviation is not going unnoticed. As a flight school student in 2015, Capt. Matthew Manning began guest speaking at historically Black colleges and universities to inform cadets about the Aviation branch and encourage them through his motto, “Don’t self-eliminate.”

Vietnam War helicopter pilot awarded Medal of Honor for pitch-black rescue mission

President Joe Biden presented Larry Taylor, a Vietnam War Army helicopter pilot, with the Medal of Honor during a ceremony at the White House Sept. 5, 2023. The president upgraded the Silver Star award that Taylor originally received for his heroic actions rescuing a four-person patrol team in 1968. “When duty called, Larry did everything to answer,” Biden said. “Because of that, he rewrote the fate of four...

May we also find hope and healing: Fort Novosel's Gold Star Mother's and Family Day

Fort Novosel honored fallen service members and their families during the annual Gold Star Mother's and Family Day Luminary Service Sept. 24 at Wings Chapel. Soldiers, family members, civilian employees and Gold Star Family members all attended the event with the undertaking of honoring and remembering those that made the ultimate sacrifice for our nation, according to Maj. Gen. Michael C. McCurry, U.S. Army Aviation Center of Excellence...;

Prost! Fort Novosel Oktoberfest rings in fall with German heritage

Standing inside The Landing on Friday, September 29, one would think they were transported to a village in Deutschland, or perhaps back to their last duty station in Bavaria. Many party goers donned dirndls and lederhosen, while blue and white checkered flags decorated The Landing. The entire night was perfectly crafted to bring the German Oktoberfest festivities to Soldiers and their Families on Fort Novosel.
