Physical training program keeps Soldier moms in the fight

Pfc. Michael Udejiofor
3rd ID Public Affairs

Soldiers assigned to the 3rd Infantry Division that are pregnant and postpartum have a physical training program that's tailored just for them that takes place daily on Fort Stewart.

The Fort Stewart Pregnancy Postpartum Physical Training Program, dubbed P3T, aims to help female Soldiers return to their pre-pregnancy combat readiness and successfully integrate back into their units' physical training programs.

"The whole emphasis was to have something for the pregnant and postpartum Soldiers," said Staff Sgt. Parror Jones, the 3rd ID P3T Program installation trainer. "It takes some time for the body to recover after birth."

The P3T program offers education classes involving changes during pregnancy, postpartum depression, finance, parenting, lactation and a wide-array of exercise techniques.

"The program helps your body improve from where we were at," said Sgt. Adera Nash, participant of the 3rd ID P3T Program. "We have to overcome the mental block that we're not the same as we used to be."

Physical activity during pregnancy enhances posture, relieves stress and builds more stamina needed for labor and delivery. Moderate exercise and maintaining fitness during the pregnancy also helps throughout the postpartum period. It prepares them to return to the rigors required of Soldiers in training for combat.

"We all heard [noncommissioned officers] say that if you want to get better at running, just go run more, but when we're dealing with pregnant Soldiers, there are other medical issues we need to be aware of," Jones said. "At the end of the day, our goal in the P3T program is the same as the unit: it is all about the Soldiers readiness."

Jones said that through the program, participants have to check-in with their primary doctors prior to joining the training. Once they get the proper documentation, the trainers tailor the training according to their individual needs.

Once a month, postpartum Soldiers take a modified Army Combat Fitness Test while enrolled in the program, administered within the scope of their tailored fitness plans. The goal is for them to be able to healthily make progress towards passing the ACFT prior to returning to their units' physical training programs.

"Having nurses, installation instructors, occupational help and medical experts in our team that really care about the Soldiers," Jones said. "With all of us working together is what makes us accomplish the program."

Recycling, advanced manufacturing operations to open in Savannah

Georgia.gov

Atlanta, GA—Governor Brian P. Kemp today announced Celadon Development Corporation “Celadon” will invest more than $155 million in opening a North American headquarters and a state-of-the-art recycling and advanced manufacturing facility in Chatham County, creating 117 jobs in the Savannah area. This represents Phase 1 of Celadon’s major investment project in Georgia.

“As the top state for business, supporting innovation and removing unnecessary hurdles that prevent companies from solving problems remains a key priority of my administration,” said Governor Kemp. “Celadon choosing Georgia for their North American headquarters, along with a state-of-the-art recycling and advanced manufacturing facility, highlights our state’s ability to recruit companies on the cutting edge of their respective industries. Partnering with our robust economic development efforts at the state and local levels – Savannah, the Port, and our coastal region are magnets for jobs and investment!”

In addition to establishing a North American headquarters and a recycled brown pulp manufacturing facility, Celadon will open a second production line of its recycling and manufacturing operations during Phase 2 of its expansion to Georgia. Additionally, the company has opened a dry processing plant for clean old corrugated cardboard (OCC), and plans to establish a logistics operation in Chatham County to facilitate its logistical needs.

“The State of Georgia, the Georgia Ports Authority, and the Savannah Economic Development Authority have made our project possible,” said Tim Zosel, CEO of Celadon Development Corporation. “The teams are incredibly proactive and we could not have developed this project without their support.”

Celadon companies process old corrugated cardboard and waste paper into clean commodity products for export. The Celadon Development Corporation plant in Savannah will produce 450,000 tons of product per year from each operation line. When fully built, it is expected that the plant will produce 900,000 tons of product per year. Once both phases of Celadon’s project are complete along with its dry processing plant, the company expects to export approximately 87,000 twenty-foot equivalent units through the Port of Savannah annually.

“Today’s announcement that manufacturer Celadon will be locating in the Savannah region with a new state-of-the-art facility and their North American headquarters that will create substantial investment and job opportunities in the Savannah region is great news,” said Savannah Economic Development Authority President and CEO Trip Tollison. “They have a great plan and tremendous potential to grow and we look forward to Celadon being a part of our community.”

Celadon opened its 65,000-square-foot dry processing manufacturing facility at 48 Artley Road in Savannah this month. The company is hiring for truck drivers as well for positions in manufacturing, production, and administrative services.

“At the Georgia Ports Authority, we are proud to support domestic production and jobs for Georgians,” said GPA Executive Director Griff Lynch. “We’re happy to welcome Celadon to the Peach State and to the community of exporters who rely on the Port of Savannah.”

Director Ashley Varnum represented the Georgia Department of Economic Development’s Global Commerce division on this project in partnership with the Savannah Economic Development Authority, Georgia Ports Authority, and Georgia Power.

“This is another great example of the private sector innovating to tackle the problems of today, which in turn, is creating the jobs of the tomorrow. While utilizing our port assets and unmatched logistics network, Celadon’s state-of-the-art recycling and advanced manufacturing facility will create a closed loop recycling process that will prevent hundreds of thousands of tons of corrugated cardboard waste from entering landfills,” said GDECD Commissioner Pat Wilson. “I am excited that Celadon chose to invest in Savannah, and I’m confident the company will continue to thrive and create green jobs of the future right here in Georgia.”

DPW warns: Don't grease the pipes

Amanda Price
DPW Public Relations

Grease, oil, and fat clog pipes and sewer lines just as they block arteries. As with arteries, blocked sewer lines cause serious problems, eventually resulting in overflows and potentially causing health hazards, damage to home interiors, and adverse impacts to our environment.

"Grease-clogged pipes continue to be a cause of sewer spills on Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield – most particularly during the winter months," said Tressa Rutland, Directorate of Public Works Prevention and Compliance branch chief.

"Cooler weather makes the problem worse," Rutland said.

Flushing grease down the drain can be disastrous. Clogged lines can cause raw sewage to overflow into your home or your neighbor's home, parks, yards, streets, ditches, streams and other waterways.

Cleaning up after such a mess is not how you want to spend your time, Rutland said. In mass, grease that makes it down the lines from several houses in a neighborhood can result in problems at the lift station once the grease hardens into large chunks. All this means problems for residents, and money for increased operation and maintenance of the sewer system and spill response teams.

The grease found in plumbing systems typically originates as a cooking by-product that has been washed down the kitchen sink. Meat fats, cooking oil, shortening, butter and margarine, food scraps, baking goods, sauces, and dairy products all contain grease and add to the problem once washed down the drain.

Use of home garbage disposal units only shreds solid material into smaller pieces, but does not remove grease. Like arteries, grease will stick to the inside of the sewer pipes and will build up and block the lines over time.

According to Rutland, "a common mistake is to flush grease down the sink with hot water, because this will only push the grease farther down the lines where it will later re-solidify and clog lines. Commercial additives and chemicals, including soaps and detergents, that claim to dissolve grease may only do so temporarily and actually just push grease farther down the pipes. When the pipes get clogged it's only a matter of time before everything you put in them – bath water, dish water, and yes, sewage – backs up where it can cause problems both on and in your property and in the streets."

With your help, we can minimize the probability that you will be dealing with the unpleasant annoyance and inconvenience associated with sewage spills. Help DPW protect you, your property and our environment. If you have any questions, please contact the Directorate of Public Works Environmental Division at 767-2010.

Hiring fair offers big benefits for local directorate

Special to the Frontline
FMWR

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield's Directorate of Family, Morale, Welfare and Recreation has not been exempt from the difficulties of recruiting and retaining workers during the pandemic.

As a result, the Civilian Personnel Advisory Center and program managers from FMWR came together to strategize a way forward that was both convenient and beneficial for applicants by condensing the hiring process into a single day event.

A virtual hiring fair, hosted on social media, and two real life events have taken place. Since then, over 50 job offers have been extended to applicants, filling many of the available vacancies.

Reducing the on-boarding time by three weeks is the major efficiency by conducting these hiring fairs.

Applicants are able to apply for all jobs on site via resume or written application, interview with program managers, receive a tentative offer, and obtain FBI fingerprints to begin their background check.

The pre-coordination resulted in approximately 15 interviewers ranging from program managers to division chiefs to interview all candidates to join the Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield team.

The dedication and on-site support of the Physical Security Office, Non-Appropriated Funds CPAC, FMWR Marketing, and the Education Center for hosting the hiring fair off the installation to allow internal & external applicants to attend.

"I've been applying on USA Jobs forever and I hadn't heard anything back after like 30 applications so [the Hiring Fair] helped me get a job," said Krissy Davis, a new employee of Child, Youth Services who attended the Hiring Fair and is a new employee with the CYS division.

"The opportunity to go and see a hiring manager and being able to sell yourself instead of being a resume on a screen is invaluable," said Brittany Zelt, a new employee in the Business Operations Division.

"Fort Stewart DFMWR has had excellent success with their hiring events. The key has been communication, partnership, and planning. These events allow interested applicants to apply for jobs, be interviewed, and potentially hired, all in one day," said Sue Faust, NAF Human Resources Officer. "The goal is to expedite the vetting and on-boarding of applicants. This allows the hiring officials to fill their jobs much quicker. These events also maximize the opportunity for HR to assist candidates through the pre-employment processes as much as possible during the event. Hiring plus accelerated plus efficient equals a win, win, win."

Hiring events are now being planned monthly as we continue to find creative ways to adapt and overcome during changing and challenging conditions, enabling us to better support our mission.

Battalion supports modernization,

Capt. Sean Minton

2nd ABCT

The “Maintain Battalion,” 703rd Brigade Support Battalion, 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, hosted a ribbon cutting ceremony for the opening of the new brigade supply support activity facility, Nov. 9 on Fort Stewart.

Over the past few months, the brigade distribution company, Alpha Company, 703rd BSB, worked to move the SSA to its new facility on Fort Stewart. The move to the new facility is the first step to ensure the sustainment enterprise is prepared support 2nd ABCT through modernization.

Throughout the weeks prior, Alpha Company, 703rd BSB, successfully moved over 100 truckloads of supplies and equipment to the new SSA ensuring there was no breaks in the supply chain.

“It’s not about just the SSA; it about what you’re doing for the brigade, which is ultimately helping our division,” said Col. Terry Tillis, commander of the “Spartan Brigade,” 2nd ABCT, 3rd ID. “You’ve been able to transition successfully back from Europe and have gotten yourselves all the way back into that [old] SSA and then to move it again and then in less than two weeks you were able to establish this building structure, and you are now receiving and issuing.”

During the relocation of the SSA, Alpha Company also ensured the next generation storage solutions for the facility were fielded, known as the Expeditionary Bulk Storage System, with 10 out of 20 already arriving. This will ensure the company is prepared to go anywhere and transport all supplies 2nd ABCT will need to keep its equipment maintained and ready to fight.

“I’ve stood in front of this formation on multiple occasions in multiple different countries, and I’ve told them how great they are, how special they are to me,” said Lt. Col. Harley Jennings, commander of the 703rd BSB. “By measurable statistics, the Spartan SSA is the number one support activity in the U.S. Army.”

Additionally, new systems and processes continue to further enhance the effectiveness of the new SSA. This includes a standard operation procedure revision to provide a more efficient process for the receipt, storage and issue of maintenance parts and supply items. They will also work with the Division to obtain Globally Combat System Support-Army hand held tablets to operate both on tactical and installation networks to enable increased network capabilities to account for and manage parts.

“Working with our teammates across the Division, we are able to provide world class distribution support both in garrison and in a tactical environment,” said Capt. James Granberg, commander of Alpha Company, 703rd BSB. “The new initiatives implemented will ensure an accurate and efficient supply chain and support the brigade through its continued modernization effort.”

Army to extend temporary promotion policy for all NCO ranks

Staff Sgt. Michael Reinsch
Army News Service

WASHINGTON —Sgt. Maj. of the Army Michael A. Grinston announced the Army will expand its temporary promotion policy to all non-commissioned officer ranks, giving Soldiers more time to complete required training schools.

“Our goal is to develop every leader for promotion,” Grinston said during a media roundtable Monday. “This select, train and educate promote system is still the right way to do that.”

The program expands the existing temporary promotion policy, which gives eligible Soldiers up to a year to complete professional military education or enter proof of graduation into the service’s backend personnel system.

Beginning in January 2022, the policy will include all NCO ranks between sergeant and master sergeant, said Sgt. Maj. Mark Clark, the Army’s senior enlisted advisor for personnel. There will be no change to the existing temporary promotion policy for non-resident Sergeants Major Academy students.

The promotions will use the order of merit list, or OML list to determine which Soldiers will be promoted first, if there is a need.

“You may not even have to catch up too much,” Grinston said at the Association of the U.S. Army Annual Exposition and Meeting last month. “We’re also going to increase the slots and authorizations so we can get ahead of the OML so that you will get to school, and we don’t have this issue in the future.”

In September, Grinston said a high number of NCOs were passed over on the OML for promotion to master sergeant. A closer study found that some Soldiers did not qualify for promotion because they were never scheduled for their required professional military education courses.

The temporary promotion requires the promoted NCO to complete professional military education within one year to fully qualify at the higher grade. Unit leaders are still responsible to ensure that Soldiers are ready for their military education courses, Grinston said.

Soldiers who do not complete their professional military education before the one-year deadline will revert to their original rank. They will not be required to pay back any pay or allowances earned during that time.

“Each year you will get your records looked at,” Grinston said. “We will publish a new OML, and then based on where you are at on that year’s OML, based off the requirements we need for the Army, this would apply.”

This policy will be in place for one year before it is re-examined in September 2022 to assess the need to continue it.

“We have to see how many people come in the Army; how many people get out of the Army in those ranks,” Grinston said.

After the initial year and assessment of the program, Grinston said the Army can look at its need for additional training but explained that is not the only way to bolster the program.

“Right now, we believe because of the work we did a few years ago, that we could meet the capacity issues of the school slots,” he said. “But there’s also other things we could do. We could add more school slots across the year if we’re not meeting those requirements.”

More instructors could be brought into the professional development courses if the need is there, he added.

“Our goal is still to select, train, and then educate and promote,” Grinston said. “The whole reason why we have this policy is that we wanted NCOs to have the education and the training for the job they are doing right now.”

Explore your options during TRICARE Open Season

TRICARE Communications

Autumn is upon us. That means it's time to consider your health care options for 2022. TRICARE Open Season began Nov. 8 and ends Monday, Dec. 13. If you're enrolled in or eligible for a TRICARE Prime option or TRICARE Select, open season applies to you. This is your chance to enroll in a health plan or change health plans for coverage that starts Jan. 1, 2022.

"It's important to take open season seriously each year," said Elan Green, chief of TRICARE Health Plan's Member Benefits and Reimbursement Section. "This could be your only chance all year to impact health plan options for you and your family."

Outside of TRICARE Open Season, you can only enroll in or change your TRICARE Prime or TRICARE Select plan following a Qualifying Life Event, as outlined in the TRICARE Qualifying Life Events Fact Sheet. This means if you're currently not enrolled in a TRICARE health plan and choose not to enroll in one by Dec. 13, you'll only be able to receive care at military hospitals and clinics if space is available.

Who is eligible?

If you're enrolled in or eligible for TRICARE Prime, including the US Family Health Plan, or TRICARE Select, open season applies to you.

But it doesn't apply to active duty service members. Open Season also doesn't apply to the four premium-based health plans: TRICARE Reserve Select, TRICARE Retired Reserve, TRICARE Young Adult, and Continued Health Care Benefit Program.

If you're under age 65, entitled to Medicare Part A and Part B, and covered by TRICARE For Life, open season does apply to you. You have the option to enroll in TRICARE Prime if you live in a Prime Service Area. However, TRICARE Open Season doesn't apply to you, if you're age 65 or older, entitled to Medicare Part A and Part B, and covered by TFL. TFL coverage is automatic if you have Medicare Parts A and B.

Not sure what TRICARE plans you may be eligible for? Use the TRICARE Plan Finder.

What changes can be made?

If you're eligible for TRICARE Open Season, you have three choices:

- Stay in your plan: If you want to stay in your current TRICARE health plan, you don't have to take any action. You'll continue in your current health plan through 2022 or as long as you're eligible.
- Enroll in a plan: If you're eligible for a TRICARE Prime option or TRICARE Select but not enrolled, you can enroll in a plan now.
- Change plans: If you're already enrolled in a TRICARE Prime option or TRICARE Select, you can switch health plans. You may also switch between individual and family enrollment.

Not sure how TRICARE Prime, USFHP, or TRICARE Select differ? You can compare health plans using the TRICARE Compare Plans Tool. You can also look up costs for each plan with the TRICARE Compare Costs Tool. Just choose the plan you'd like to see and answer a few questions about who you are. Cost changes are coming in 2022, so you should review your plan's costs, even if you're already enrolled. See 2022 health plan costs.

Enrolling or change plans

To enroll or change your health plan, use one of these options:

- Online: Log in to milConnect and click on the "Manage health benefits" button.
- By phone: Call your TRICARE regional contractor or USFHP Designated Provider.
- By mail: Submit your enrollment form to your regional contractor or USFHP Designated Provider.
- In person: Visit an overseas TRICARE Service Center, or make an appointment with your USFHP Designated Provider.

Federal Benefits Open Season

Are you eligible for dental or vision coverage through the Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program (FEDVIP)? The Federal Benefits Open Season also starts Nov. 8. FEDVIP dental and vision plans are separate, and you may not qualify for both. To be eligible for FEDVIP vision coverage, you must be enrolled in a TRICARE health plan or eligible for TFL.

Those who may be eligible for FEDVIP vision coverage include:

- Active duty family members
- National Guard and Reserve members and their family members
- Retired service members and their eligible family members
- TRICARE For Life beneficiaries

Those who may be eligible for FEDVIP dental coverage include:

- Retired service members and their family members
- Retired National Guard and Reserve members and their family members
- TRICARE For Life beneficiaries

You can learn more about eligibility and your FEDVIP options at the BENEFEDS website. If you already have a FEDVIP plan and don't want to make a change to your existing plan, you don't need to take action during open season. Your coverage will continue in 2022. But check to make sure you understand any changes to your plan and costs for next year.

Before you make any changes to your health care plan this open season, be sure to check that your family's information is up to date in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS). If you don't show as eligible for TRICARE in DEERS or your information is incorrect or out-of-date, it could prevent you from using your TRICARE benefit.

Remember that you have only a few weeks until Dec. 13 and the end of open season. Review your current plan, consider your coverage options for 2022, and make sure you and your family choose the best health care plan to fit your needs.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Giving thanks this holiday season

Maj. William King
2nd ABCT Chaplain

The holidays are upon us, and it is often surrounded by a hectic pace. The majority of the population says that they love this time of year and the holidays, as it is surrounded of memories past, present, and future. If we are not careful, we can soon find ourselves trapped in the hustle and bustle of trying to make the season bright.

This year, the holidays may feel a little different, like a distant relative we haven't seen in a while.

As the COVID restrictions have lightened, many will work even harder to make this a season to not forget. We have missed each other and you deserve this. You have worked hard and suffered much. The longing to be with each other reminds me of Ebenezer Scrooge waking up from his nightmare and realizing that there is time to celebrate, "I don't know what to do," cried Scrooge, laughing and crying in the same breath, and making a perfect Laocoon of himself with his stockings. "I am as light as a feather, I am as happy as an angel, I am as merry as a schoolboy. I am as giddy as a drunken man. A merry Christmas to everybody! A happy New Year to all the world! Hallo here! Whoop! Hallo!"

What is amazing about this season, tucked nicely between Halloween and Christmas, are two holidays that keep us grounded –

Veterans Day and Thanksgiving.

These two holidays center on one important message of gratitude. The word gratitude is derived from the Latin word "gratia", which means grace, graciousness, or gratefulness. Gratitude is a thankful appreciation for what an individual receives, whether tangible or intangible. Gratitude helps us focus and acknowledge how our lives are blessed. As we do this, we realize that what we have received (the source of our blessing) did not come from our own doing.

In a Harvard Health article about gratitude, it states that being grateful, "helps people connect to something larger than themselves – whether people, nature, or a higher power, gratitude is strongly associated with greater happiness."

As we run through this season, run with grace. Be gracious, give thanks, appreciate the relationships and the memories you have longed to create.

Thank you for your perseverance, thank you for your sacrifices, thank you for making this world a better place, thank you for fighting for your families, your marriages, thank you for fighting for life and being available for those hurting and alone, thank you for opening your doors to those who have no place to go... thank you.

As we run with grace only then will we see the truth of Charles Dickens' famous words, "God bless us, everyone!"

1st ABCT

Six hundred and ninety Soldiers assigned to the 3rd Infantry Division put their skills to the test to earn the Expert Infantry Badge or Expert Soldier Badge, Oct. 25-Nov. 10 on Fort Stewart.

Soldiers assigned to 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd ID, planned and graded the qualification. Soldiers earn their EIB or ESB by proving their mastery of fundamental skills on physical fitness, land navigation skills, patrol knowledge, tactical medical skills and weapons proficiency.

"It just shows to the other teammates that you're an expert in your craft," said Sgt. 1st Class Miguel Zarate, an ESB holder and grader assigned to 1st Battalion, 64th Armor Regiment, 1st ABCT. "For EIB, it's a rite of passage and introduction to the infantry. For ESB, it's kind of a new concept, but 1st [Armored Brigade Combat Team] and 3rd ID have been giving more fuel to that fire to make it known that expert Soldiers can also compete at the same level as expert infantrymen."

Candidates completed two weeks of training to prepare themselves for testing week. The graders explained the tasks, conditions and standards of each event, then they identified any mistakes and retrained the candidates if necessary during the training weeks. This training is essential because a lot of the tasks test skills that most Soldiers don't use on a regular basis.

"It was really difficult for me because a lot of the tasks that were introduced to me, we don't do on a regular basis," Zarate said of his experience earning his ESB during 1st ABCT's rotation to the Republic of Korea. "For 91Ms (Bradley Fighting Vehicle System Maintainers), we don't throw grenades and handle MK-19s and we don't use camouflage or IMTs, so it was a learning experience."

The graders explained the tasks, conditions and standards of each event, then they identified any mistakes and retrained the candidates if necessary during the training weeks.

"Soldiers should prepare by going through the reps and putting in the time and effort it takes to learn all the stations," said Pfc. Nicholas Wise, an EIB holder and grader assigned to 2nd Battalion, 7th Infantry Regiment, 1st

ABCT.

On the first day of testing, ESB candidates took the ESB Physical Fitness Test and the EIB candidates took the EIB Physical Fitness Assessment. Candidates who passed proceeded to the day and night land navigation course. The following three days consisted of 30 weapons, patrol and medical lanes.

On the final day, the remaining candidates completed a 12-mile ruck march in under three hours, then disassembled and reassembled their weapon and performed a functions check on it in under five minutes. Seventy-six EIB candidates and seventy-nine ESB candidates succeeded.

Spc. Serena Thorman, a new EIB holder assigned to 2nd Bn., 7th IR, said she is excited and accomplished by her triumph because it was the most challenging task she has ever had to do in the Army.

"It was nerve racking and I was constantly on edge," she said. "I honestly got through it because of my team, my platoon and overall, anyone who told me good luck and that I could do it. I am proud and honored to say I have the best people and team backing me."

Why Army helicopters have Native American names

WASHINGTON —You may have noticed there's a pattern in U.S. Army helicopter names – Apache, Black Hawk, Chinook and others. These crucial aircraft are all named after Native American tribes or figures.

But have you ever wondered why?

The U.S. military has a long history with Native Americans. Armed conflicts between the two were commonly known as the American Indian Wars and were fought intermittently from the time the U.S. was first settled by Europeans to early in the 20th century. But Native Americans also served as some of the fiercest fighters for the United States for more than 200 years. In fact, 32 Native Americans have earned the nation's highest military award, the Medal of Honor.

The tradition of naming helicopters after Native Americans was once an official regulation. That regulation no longer stands, but the tradition continues.

The Army's helicopters have a number of names you'll recognize immediately:

- Apache Attack Helicopter AH-64D/E
- Black Hawk Utility Helicopter UH/HH-60
- Cheyenne Attack Helicopter AH-56
- Comanche Helicopter RAH-66
- Lakota UH-72A Light Utility Helicopter (LUH)

How it all came about:

According to an unnamed Army museum official, the naming convention goes back to before the Air Force split from the Army in 1947 when Army Gen. Hamilton Howze was assigned to Army aviation. His mission was to develop doctrine and the way forward when it came to employing Army aircraft and how they would support warfighters on the ground.

According to the museum official, Howze wasn't a fan of the names of the first two helicopters – Hoverfly and Dragonfly. So, he laid out instructions for naming the helicopters after their abilities.

Howze said since the choppers were fast and agile, they would attack enemy flanks and fade away, similar to the way the tribes on the Great Plains fought during the aforementioned American Indian Wars. He decided the next helicopter produced -- the well-known H-13 of "M.A.S.H." fame -- would be called the Sioux in honor of the Native Americans who fought Army Soldiers in the Sioux Wars and defeated the 7th Cavalry Regiment at the Battle of Little Bighorn.

That's likely how Army Regulation 70-28 was created in 1969. The regulation listed criteria on how popular names would be given to major items of equipment.

The Soldiers of 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry Regiment, 3rd CAB, performed aerial gunnery allowing them to train their mission essential tasks while improving brigade readiness.

Name choices had to:

- Appeal to the imagination without sacrificing dignity.
- Suggest an aggressive spirit and confidence in the item's capabilities.
- Reflect the item's characteristics including mobility, agility, flexibility, firepower and endurance.
- Be based on tactical application, not source or method of manufacture.
- Be associated with the preceding qualities and criteria if a person's name is proposed.

According to AR 70-28, Army aircraft were specifically categorized as requiring "Indian terms and names of American Indian tribes and chiefs." Names to choose from were provided by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Other categories included tanks, which were to be named after American generals like Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman; infantry weapons would receive names for famous early American pioneers like Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett; and assault weapons would get fearsome reptile and insect names like cobra and scorpion.

AR 70-28 was eventually rescinded and replaced with policies that didn't mention that criteria, but it's clear that the tradition has continued. You only have to look back to 2012 when the Army named its current primary training helicopter, the UH-72A Lakota, after the Lakota tribe of the Great Sioux Nation in North and South Dakota.

On June 10, 2012, Lakota elders ritually blessed two new South Dakota Army National Guard UH-72A Lakotas at a traditional ceremony on the Standing Rock Reservation in North Dakota. Ceremonies like these happened often over the past several decades.

So when you think of these helicopters, remember the spirit, confidence, agility, endurance and warrior ethos their names evoke!
