Power outage planned at Stewart

Staff Report

Power outages could result from severe weather, stress on the power grid, or for any number of reasons. But on Friday, Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield will intentionally exercise the installation's crisis management system based on a planned power outage for parts of Fort Stewart.

The Garrison Commander, Col. Jason Wolter, held a Facebook town hall June 1 regarding the planned power outage to help answer questions and mitigate confusion. He said the exercise was important considering the region just entered Hurricane season, noting it was best to be prepared.

The National Weather Service's website at www.weather.gov, said hurricanes are among nature's most powerful destructive phenomena, averaging 12 tropical storms each 'Hurricane Season', which runs June 1 through November 30.

Fort Stewart wants to be prepared. "This exercise will validate the backup power generation on critical functions throughout the post," said Will Ingram, chief of Operations and Maintenance Division at the garrison's Directorate of Public Works. "It is vital that the installation test its backup systems in a controlled environment, rather than trying to identify possible issues during an actual emergency."

Wolter said the question was not whether the area would be affected by severe weather; but rather when. The commander said previous severe weather and hurricanes have impacted the installation's power grid – and the community has built-in procedures to help mitigate the threat. But the systems need to be tested.

The outage will last four hours from 6-10 a.m. and will be limited to certain zones within the Fort Stewart cantonment area. Hunter Army Airfield and the Fort Stewart Housing and the mission training center will not be affected. All the gates will operate normally. No disruption of 911 services are expected during the series. Traffic signals will be affected by the power outage. The Directorate of Emergency Services will increase patrols and have additional police officers available for traffic control during the exercise. Additionally, the installation will closely monitor the situation to during the exercise. The 911 Call Center and all emergency services will be operational during the exercise. DPW's service order desk, 767-2883, will also be operational during the exercise. However, customers are asked to limit calls in order to reduce call volumes.

Winn Army Community Hospital will remain opened during the power outage. However, Hawks Medical Clinic, the North Side Medical Clinic, Mower and the prescription refill center at the Furniture Mall on Vilseck Road will be closed during the exercise. During this time, prescription refills will be handled at Winn Army Community Hospital. Sick call will also be conducted at Winn ACH's Family Practice Clinic.

To reduce the impact on the community, all Directorate of Morale, Welfare and Recreation facilities, including fitness centers; the commissary and AAFE's stores – except the Marne Express Shoppette and Bryan Village express will delay opening until 10:30 a.m. A consolidated child care service will be made available in building 5000; however, buildings 475 and 403 will be without power during the exercise.

Fort Stewart leadership will maintain communications throughout the exercise on the garrison Facebook site at www.facebook.com/ForStewartHunterArmyAirfield, where community members can share questions, concerns or issues regarding the event. The command asks that all customers remain patient as it works to improve disaster response and emergency services.

NCOA implements changes to BLC

By Spc. Jason Greaves
50th Public Affairs Detachment

The Noncommissioned Officer Academy at Fort Stewart, Georgia, will implement a new curriculum for the Basic Leader Course in July 2018.

The new curriculum will focus on teaching students how to think critically and shaping them into effective leaders.

With the changes, training will be conducted mainly in the classroom, and the students will lead Soldier tasks like land navigation and physical readiness training, right away versus being trained to do so, said 1st Sgt. Mike Garcia, Fort Stewart BLC Chief.

"We are focusing on educating Soldiers and less on training them," said Staff Sgt. Brian Gougler, BLC instructor.

Training for success at BLC will be the responsibility of the Soldiers' operational units, said Staff Sgt. Jeffrey Foster, BLC instructor.

Celebrating 243 years of service

Special to the Frontline

The U.S. Army's birth-day is June 14 and this year, we celebrate 243 years of service to our nation.

The U.S. Army is America's first national institution, established June 14, 1775, more than a year before the Declaration of Independence was signed.

Since its establish-ment, the U.S. Army has played a vital role in the growth and develop-ment of the Nation.

Our nation is indebted to generations of heroes from WWI to today who sacrificed everything for something greater than themselves.

Army Soldiers and Civilians embody the Army values of loyalty, duty, respect, selfless service, honor, integrity and personal courage.

This year's theme is "Over there! A celebra-tion of Army heroes from WWI to present day," which allows the Army to celebrate and honor the accomplishments of our force.

The U.S. Army lineage of heroes from WWI to present day has not hes-itated to respond to our nation's call since 1775 to today.

A century a g o , American doughboys f o u g h t alongside allied forces, ensuring vic-tory in WWI.

During WWII, the heroes of our 'Greatest Generation' stood together and defeated fascism and oppression in Europe and Asia. The Tuskegee Airmen from Alabama excelled in WWII as a pilot unit with a remarkable bomber-escort record.

to prove their valor and courage. The 65th Infantry Regiment, known as 'The Borinqueneers,' exem-plified the National Guard's leading role in our Nation's military history.

More than 5,000 women of the Army Nurse Corps s e r v e d throughout the course of the Vietnam War.

During the Cold War and Desert Storm, America's Army was on the front-lines, working alongside allies and strengthening strategic partnerships.

Throughout our 243-year history, Army Soldiers and civilians have supported emer-gency humanitarian efforts in devastated regions of our home-land.

America's Army has stood ready to serve our Nation for 243 years. Today, our Soldiers stand ready to meet any chal-lenge.

Just as the Army went through a big shift in technology during WWI, the Army of today is modernizing to innovate and adapt concepts, equipment and training to be ready for the next challenge.

The Army is optimiz-ing for interoperability with our allies and part-ners to strengthen alli-ances, attract new part-ners and deliver a more effective coalition oper-ations.

The Army's medical advances enable and optimize our Soldiers' readiness and deploy-ability.

The Army finds its strength not only in its diversity, but also in its ability to bring together people of different races, cultures and faiths who share common values like loyalty, duty, respect, selfless service and honor.

Fort Stewart welcomes new Command Sergeant Major

Staff Report

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield held an assumption of responsibility ceremony, June 12 at Marne Garden, welcoming the new garrison senior enlisted leader, Command Sgt. Maj. Rebecca Myers.

The garrison commander, Col. Jason Wolter, expressed great confidence in Myers and noted he knew she would be a great addition to the com-munity.

Myers said she looked forward to becoming part of Team Stewart.

"Coming on board," Myers said. "I want to get a feel for the community and get out and meet everybody, and continue to propel our community forward to be one of the premier installations for our Army."

Originally from the area, Myers said she was happy to return.

"This is a great place to be stationed. I'm a native Georgian. I'm from Atlanta I'm happy to be back in the Peach State and serve the Soldiers of the Marne Division."

Myers is the first female garrison com-mand sergeant major at Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield.

"I'm a Soldier just like everybody else," Myers said. "That's one of the great things about our Army, that there's equal oppor-tunity for all to excel. I really hope that I am able to provide a role model to that young Soldier that looks to aspire to be a command sergeant major one day."

Her most recent assignments include assignments at the U.S. Army Military Police School as the Directorate of Training and Education sergeant major and as the command sergeant major for the 795th Military Police Battalion. Both assign-ments were at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

Garrison Commander discusses RIF

Steve Hart
Hunter Army Airfield Public Affairs

Colonel Jason Wolter, garrison commander, Fort Stewart/Hunter Army Airfield assembled the Fort Stewart civilian workforce on June 7 and their Hunter Army Airfield counterparts on June 8 for Town Hall meetings to inform them on the latest developments on the installation's mandate to part with personnel in overhire positions.

Wolter conducted his initial Town Hall meeting last March when he first informed the workforce that the fiscal year 2019 tables of distribution and allow-ances will abolish a number of positions and that employees who were slotted in those positions would be labeled "overhires." He stated on Oct. 1, employ-ees in over hire positions would be terminated with, potentially, a formal Reduction in Force order. In that Town Hall meeting, Wolter emphasized that the plan to avoid employees being terminated was using retirements, including those being accelerated by offering Voluntary Early Retirement Authority/ Voluntary Separation Incentive Payments entice-ment packages, and others taking vacant positions around the Army via the Installation Management Command Placement Assistance Tool.

Earlier this year, Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield conducted a mock RIF as a tool to predict which employees may be affected by a RIF. The intent was to identify those "at risk" employees as early as possible so they can plan their careers, including updating their resumes to apply for vacant positions that would not be affected Wolter said. The RIF identified 49 employ-ees vulnerable. Those employees received Early Priority Placement Program letters, which gives them hiring preference should the employees elect to apply for other civil service positions for which they are qualified.

"Our challenge is balancing America's tax paying dollars to readiness," Wolter said. "This keeps me up at night: ensuring the quality of care and support you provide our military Families isn't adversely affected."

To reduce the impact of our individual team mem-bers, over the past 12 months, we have reduced 76 over hires by voluntary means, Wolter said. He expressed regret that 32 employees remain as over hires. Consequently, the Assistant Secretary for Manpower and Reserve Affairs and the Army Office, Chief Legislative Liaison is now notifying Congress that RIF packets will have to be sent.

The RIF will be conducted June 25. The Civilian Personnel Assistance Center will issue formal RIF notices not later than July 31st to those being impact-ed by the RIF.

"Is it safe to assume that if an employee did not receive notification from the mock RIF, he/she is safe," asked an employee in attendance.

The response was "not necessarily," based on the fact the mock RIF was just a tool to help identify peo-ple who may be affected.

"Our goal remains to find a position for current employees who want to continue to work," Wolter said. "We will continue to "slot" people based upon position opportunities (retirements, reassignments, etc.) and IPAT movements." This could reduce the number of personnel affected.

Wolter pledged to keep the workforce updated of any changes.

Employees who have questions or need assistance, they should consult their first line supervisor or Bill Jeffers at 767-2133.

The 3rd Infantry Division command team and a select group of 31 Soldiers attended the Cantigny American Monument relocation ceremony and the Somme American Cemetery Memorial Day ceremony in France, May 27, as part of the commemoration activities during the World War I centennial.

The Cantigny monument was initially commissioned to immortalize more than 1,000 Soldiers of the 1st Infantry Division "Big Red One" and French artillery soldiers who died in the first large offensive operations led by an American division during WWI in May 1918.

The monument sits in the center of the village of Cantigny, which is located about 75 miles outside of Paris. At the very top of the memorial rest an eagle with broad wings that drape just above the names engraved on the face of the monument.

"You see, our motto is, there's no mission too difficult and no sacrifice too great," Brig. Gen. Richard Coffman the 1st Inf. Div. deputy commanding general for maneuver said in his remarks. "The mission was difficult -- we made many, many sacrifices ... but, we know that freedom is not free and America was willing and always will be willing to support its great allies."

Following the ceremony, the 3rd ID Soldiers visited the Somme American Cemetery and Memorial Ceremony in Bony, France. The cemetery contains the graves of 1,844 U.S. Soldiers killed in WWI during the assault of the Hindenburg Line and the village of Cantigny.

Commentary

Every year, many children are killed or injured due to inattentive driving. Many of these incidents motor vehicle drivers attempting to back up. Care should be given when backing out of a driveway or parking space. This care is essential now that school is out for break, as children are outside playing. Some young children might not be properly supervised. With the hot Georgia weather children and animals often seek shade where they can find it. Sometimes that is behind or in front of a parked vehicles.

Driver visibility is often limited in large trucks and SUVs. The rear window doesn't always let you see items close to the ground. So if you plan on running an errand, before you get in your vehicle; be sure to walk around it. Check the wheel wells too. By doing this you could not only be saving a life but avoiding damage to your vehicle. You could also have a backup camera installed. Please take the time to walk around your vehicle each and every time you are going to drive. I know no one would want to start their trip with injuring a young child or animal. You can get other safety tips and stories at www.kidsandcars.org.

Deployed MPs ensure safety of troops, civilians

Sgt. Elizabeth White
3rd Sustainment Brigade

BAGRAM AIRFIELD, Afghanistan – Military police assigned to the Texas National Guard 236th Military Police Detachment, Special Troops Battalion, 3rd Infantry Division Resolute Support Sustainment Brigade is responsible for maintaining the safety of service members, coalition forces and civilians in the Combined Joint Operations Area - Afghanistan by inspecting all incoming and outgoing equipment. “On a daily basis we do anything from processing a flight to mobile operations, where we go out and clear units’ containers and gear so that they can go home, or flight operations where we process all incoming and outbound flights to and from Afghanistan,” said Staff Sgt. Joshua Vohs, NCOIC of customs operations, with the 236th MP Det. “We ensure that units are able to clear customs and return to their home base with a smooth transition.” The small team of Soldiers work all day in processing personnel, inspecting equipment and going out on missions to other bases. Service members consistently move throughout Afghanistan, coming in and out the theater, leaving the MPs with various challenges in accomplishing their mission. “Some of the challenges that we have faced in theater is personnel, we are running 12-hour shifts with the limited personnel that we have,” said Vohs. “Some of the things that we’ll do is we’ll borrow people and use a lot of our downtime between flights to get some rest.” The MPs conduct these inspections to maintain the safety of the troops and the accomplishment of the mission.

“Coming into Afghanistan, we’re mainly worried about following General Order Number 1-c, with alcohol, pornography, personally owned weapons, steroids, etc.” Vohs said. “We’re making sure that the fighting force is 100 percent mentally and physically able to take the fight to the Taliban.” Their mobile team is able to fly out to the different forward operating bases (FOBs) to inspect units departing theater. “[The mobile team’s mission] is to help expedite the process for the units’ equipment and bags that are going back to the states,” said Sgt. Johnny Arriago, mobile section NCOIC, 236th MP Det. “We inspect them and ensure that the equipment is clean, no insects, dirt or agricultural hazards, and there is no illegal contraband going back to the states.” Arriago said that the mobile team could clear anything from containers to helicopters. By doing these inspections, the MPs are preventing outbreaks of diseases or non-native species in the U.S. “One of the most important parts of our mission is the agriculture side, bringing over dirt, food, insects or animals into the U.S. is a major cause of some of the diseases we are exposed to,” said Sgt. Joseph Barbour, the NCOIC of retrograde and contraband assigned to the 236th MP Det. “I look at it as the safety of us, the people and passengers on the planes, there’s no telling what somebody is trying to smuggle back to the U.S. or what kind of weapons they can use to harm others.” These MP Soldiers are the first and last step to establish mission readiness. They protect the homefront while they are abroad and the personnel in theater through their inspections.

Steve Hart

After two years in command, Col. Nelson G. Kraft relinquished command of the 6th ROTC Brigade to Col. Joseph W. Vongs in a ceremony in Hunter Army Airfield's Truscott Air Terminal June 7.

The mission of the 6th ROTC Brigade, U.S. Army Cadet Command, is to recruit, train, develop and commission high quality second lieutenants for the United States Army and to motivate young people to become better citizens. The 6th ROTC Brigade consists of 39 senior ROTC host programs in colleges and universities, 130 partnered schools, and 478 Junior ROTC Programs in high schools throughout Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. With 2,300 senior ROTC cadets and over 102,000 junior ROTC cadets, the 6th Brigade has the largest population of cadets in Cadet Command.

During his remarks, Brig. Gen. John R. Evans, Jr., commander, U.S. Army Cadet Command and Fort Knox, said of Kraft, he made it look easy. He was stellar, laser-focused, action-oriented in his leadership.

Evans expressed confidence in Vongs to "provide the next generation of Army leaders."

Addressing Kraft in his remarks, Voss said, "I look forward to taking over the leadership trail that you blazed and taking it to new heights."

Students at a Basic Leaders Course rotation at the Non-commissioned Officer Academy on Fort Stewart, carry a log during a physical training exercise June 7, to build teamwork and camaraderie among their teams. The NCOA will be implementing a new curriculum for BLC teaching students how to think critically and shaping them into effective leaders starting July 2018.

"If you have a Soldier going to BLC, you need to get them ready," said Gougler. "You need to teach them how to march a squad, how to lead physical readiness training and how to do land navigation."

Gougler said there would be no more multiple choice questions in the new curriculum. The students will have to express themselves through essay writing and public speaking, he said.

"We're trying to get them used to talking in front of people they hardly know," Foster said.

There will be more interaction in the classroom where Soldiers are encouraged to seek peer-to-peer help by asking each other questions on how to do something more effectively said Gougler.

"Students are going to see more conversation across the board and fewer PowerPoint presentations," Gougler said. "There's going to be a lot of interaction and conversation between the students with the instructor just guiding that along."

The course will no longer include a situational training exercise or land navigation in the same capacity as before, Foster said.

Regardless of the changes to course, the NCOA will not change the way they conduct physical training or the standards the students are held to, Garcia said.

Garcia also stated that NCOAs across the Army are expected to implement the new BLC changes by January 2019.

The scholarship is presented to family members who were selected for demonstrating academic excellence and community support.

This year, scholarship recipients included Eternity

TRICARE Retiree Dental Program

On Dec. 31, the Defense Health Agency's TRICARE Retiree Dental Program will end.

However, as directed in the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2017, retired uniformed service members and their Families, who were eligible for TRDP, will have the opportunity to enroll in the Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program. The end of TRDP is part of the historic reforms that began rolling out in the Military Health System on Jan. 1. The implementation of the provisions under the 2017 NDAA and the beginning of new TRICARE support contracts is meant to improve health and enhance medical readiness for the uniformed services.

The first opportunity to enroll in FEDVIP will be during the next Federal Benefits Open Season, which runs from Nov. 12 through Dec. 10, with coverage effective Jan. 1, 2019.

If you are currently enrolled in a TRDP plan, you will not be automatically enrolled in a FEDVIP plan for 2019. You must enroll during open season. To get answers to frequently asked questions about the transition, go to the FAQs section of www.trdp.org. Active-duty uniformed service members: The TRDP transition to FEDVIP doesn't impact you.

3SB Families prepare for Soldiers' return

Spc. Noelle Wiehe

50th Public Affairs Detachment

The 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade held a redeployment town hall at the main post chapel on June 5.

The town hall was held to educate and introduce Families of almost 200 Soldiers scheduled to return from Afghanistan in July to resources available throughout the reintegration process.

Spouses and Family Members with and without prior deployment experience were introduced to resources available to them throughout the reintegration process, said Tonya Imes, Mobilization Deployment and Stability Support Operations program manager.

"As deployments go on, Families get used to living separate lives," Imes said. "When you return home, things have changed – the spouses live their lives, and things have gone on while the Soldier has lived their life for nine months in separate places."

Capt. Victoria Cashio, behavioral health officer with 3rd SB, said that Families operate as a unit or emotional system. Each person takes on a role and acts and reacts based on emotions and behaviors of others in the Family. When one member leaves, the system becomes unbalanced.

"The partner at home may take on new roles, create new schedules and develop new ways to function," Cashio said. "The Family at home adjusts to this new normal. When the redeployed Soldier returns, it upsets the balance again."

Sara Miller, spouse of Sgt. 1st Class Ben Navratil, 3rd ID SB, said the adjustments she had to make to fill the gaps in balancing the household were minor due to her experience as a single parent before her marriage to Navratil, but she didn't realize how much she'd miss just having her husband around.

"It's the things you take for granted when your significant other is there that I miss the most – things like him doing the yard work and TV shows I thought I hated that we'd only watch together."

The reunion between a Soldier and their Family is a time to reunite, but it is also an interruption and colliding of the two parties' daily lives, as they knew them, Imes said.

Miller said a void she did notice was the absence of her husband's boots by the doorway, which is one adjustment she will have to get used to all over again once he is home.

"I do not doubt that on day one I will be tripping over boots," Miller said smiling. "I've accepted that for the rest of my life I will be tripping over this man's shoes."

Organizations like the Army Community Services Mobility and Deployment team, ACS Financial Readiness, and Military Family Life Counselors are here to help Families during reintegration, Imes said.

"The main goal is to prevent negative things from happening and ensure that it is a successful reunion despite it being a stressful time," Imes said. "We just hope to ease that stress by setting some expectations and helping them develop a plan for themselves."

Through the reintegration process, Imes and the Army Community Service staff will continue to develop plans for the spouse and the Soldier upon their return.

"We (military spouses) developed a false reality during the nine months; so life is not what we expect when they return," Imes said. "We have developed these ideas in our head of what (the return) is going to look like, so when the Soldiers come home, and it's not what we expect, problems start to happen."

Marji Freeze, Community Ready and Resilient Integrator, said conflicts could result due to changes in financial situations or the relationship. She said her team and her want Soldiers and their Families to know that resources are available.

Whether the Soldier was gone for several months or longer, change is always possible, and with help from resources, reintegration can be seamless, Freeze said.

"Many people may be so focused on all the positive parts about the reunion, that they don't realize some of the challenges they may face," Cashio said. "(This training) provides everyone with information and resources that help manage expectations, normalize their feelings or experiences, and prepare or plan."

Jennifer Dudley, spouse of Staff Sgt. Warren Dudley, 3SB, said this is the fourth deployment she's experienced with her husband. She said she is happy to see the reintegration training push among the unit.

"I would love to see greater involvement with the spouses and greater involvement with the Soldiers who have been through a deployment," said Dudley. "This is the single most important meeting of the entire deployment."

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Finding contagious love

Maj. Archie Neal Durham
188th ABCT Chaplain

Just the other day I remembered a story from a dear pastor friend. I had been thinking about ways to better example a “Godly love”, and with his story, my thinking became a little clearer.

Being an example to others by showing a compassionate love is what I believe everyone should be looking to achieve in life. Then, after listening to an old favorite by Whitney Houston last night called, “Greatest Love,” at my daughter’s middle school band recital, I decided that it’s not me I should be loving the most of all but God first and then others. The greatest love of all should not be about loving myself but others. My pastor’s illustration compelled me to do even more for those that I encounter every day. His story went something like this:

“I was hastily picking up a few items at the grocery store when I ran into an 83-year-old widow, who recently had a botched surgery. Her hip was noticeably out of place, and, as she made her way down the aisles, it was obvious that she was in much pain. We spent a few moments sharing with each other as we both made our way to the check-out stand. As she stacked her groceries on the counter, I got the attention of the cashier and whispered, ‘Put her items on my bill.’

When the woman was told that she ‘owed nothing,’ she got a little disturbed, with words, ‘What do you mean? I can pay for my own food.’ She then turned to me and said, ‘You are the culprit; you paid for my food.’ I went on to explain that this was my opportunity to bless someone. Finally, with a few tears, she accepted my gift.

After getting home, I discovered that the check-out lady, most likely in all the excitement, had failed to charge me for my groceries. I quickly called the store, apologized for the oversight, and was told, ‘You owe nothing. The person behind you heard the discussion you had with the lady and he paid for your groceries.’”

This is a great illustration showing not only a love for others, but something that can latch itself to others and becomes contagious. When someone pays for your meal in a drive through or in a restaurant, it’s a love that can’t be reasonably explained except to say it somehow breaks a mold of selfishness.

It is often not what we say, our professionalism, or all the other things we do, regardless of how important they are; but rather our common acts of daily care that plant the seeds of compassionate love in a broken world.

I encourage you to get out and break the mold for which the world so easily places us. A Godly love is what I am chasing. I hope and pray this excites you to do the same.

Leaders, celebrities salute Warrior Games

Shannon Collins
Defense Media Activity

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. -- The 2018 Department of Defense Warrior Games, described by a senior Air Force leader as ‘absolutely’ successful and inspirational, drew to a close at the U.S. Air Force Academy here, June 9.

After a week of competition, more than 608 medals were presented at over 11 events to athletes from the Marine Corps, Navy, Coast Guard, Air Force, Army, U.S. Special Operations Command, as well as the United Kingdom, Australian and Canadian armed forces.

For the first time in DoD Warrior Games history, the games hosted the Canadian armed forces, held three new sports -- indoor rowing, powerlifting and the cycling time trial and held a two-day sports expo, where 450 family members experienced wheelchair rugby and tennis, family archery and shooting and sled hockey, said Air Force Lt. Gen. Gina Grosso, 2018 DoD Warrior Games director.

Grosso recognized the athletes, families, Air Force Academy team, the mayor of Colorado Springs and the hundreds of volunteers who supported the games.

Inspirational Warrior Games

Air Force Vice Chief of Staff Gen. Stephen W. Wilson said the success of the games could be measured “by the smiles given and shared by the lives saved, by the steps forward the athletes are making and by the inspiration that you’ve given to everyone here.”

“If that’s how we define success, I’d say these games were absolutely, unbelievably successful,” Wilson said.

This year’s Warrior Games also showcase unity among the participating partners and allies, Wilson said. “For all of our coalition partners, just like we fight together, we compete together,” he said. “You make us all better and stronger. There’s never been a more important time in our nation to have partners and allies and friends like you. Thank you, very much.”

Wilson said the athletes are an “inspiration for not only the Department of Defense, but for this whole nation and all of our partner nations.”

Wilson also thanked the coaches, caregivers, supporters and families.

Stewart’s Congratualations

Jon Stewart, who’s hosted the DoD Warrior Games for the past three years, also congratulated the athletes and their families.

“It’s an honor,” Stewart said. “I walk out of here twice the man I was walking in here, and you all make that possible. I’m so thankful for the opportunity. From my family to you, from the bottom of my heart, thank you for everything you do.

“You’re the best of us. Thank you,” he added.

The athletes recognized Stewart’s work at the games for the past few years by giving him heartfelt thanks and a DoD Warrior Games flag signed by the athletes and their families.

Honoring the Fallen

During closing ceremonies, the Air Force band, “Blue Steel” played an acoustic version of “Amazing Grace” as photos were displayed to honor previous DoD Warrior Games athletes who’ve passed away in the past year -- Air Force Capt. Chris Cochran, 2016 torchbearer, Air Force Capt. Austin Williamson, 2017 torchbearer and Ultimate Champion silver medalist, and U.S. Special Forces Command’s Army Staff Sgt. Luke Yetter, who earned the Heart of the Team award in 2017.

“One of the more difficult parts about these games is that while you all come together as a family, and you leave here as one, among the highs of the games of the competition, we do sometimes lose a brother or sister along the way,” Stewart said. “Let’s take a moment to honor them.”

Ultimate Champions

To earn the Ultimate Champion title, athletes compete in their respective functional classifications in eight sporting events. Each service branch was allotted two slots. Ultimate Champion athletes earned points based on their individual results in the events. The Ultimate Champion is the athlete who earned the most points in the eight sporting events. Army Staff Sgt. Ross Alewine earned the gold medal, Air Force Senior Airman Rafael Morfinencisco earned the silver medal and Army Staff Sgt. Altermese Kendrick took home the bronze medal.

“It’s amazing to take home the gold in Ultimate Champion; I couldn’t have done it without the support of Team Army and the support of the cadre,” said Alewine, who earned gold in wheelchair basketball, rowing and track and field, two silver medals in swimming and a bronze in cycling.

“I’ve been training every day, six days a week. I’ve lost 41 pounds in two-and-a-half months,” Alewine added. “I wanted to show other guys who are injured like me that if I can do it, any of you guys can do it. I also wanted to make my daughters, Carson and Kenney, proud. Go Army!”

Kendrick said she was honored just to be among the competition for the Ultimate Champion title. “I’ve given it my all, I always can find something to improve on,” she said. “If I’m able to come back again, I’m going to snag it.”

Kendrick earned gold medals in the 100-meter hand cycling in the time trial event and in the indoor rowing 1-minute sprint race and a silver medal in the powerlifting 70-kilogram in her disability category.

Kendrick, a chaplain assistant with the Chaplain Family Life Training Center, Fort Hood, Texas, said her coaches motivated her so much last year, she learned how to swim so she could compete in swimming at this year’s Warrior Games.

“The team is great this year, the coaches are magnificent. To just be with them every year and to just show what they have helped us to accomplish, it’s amazing,” Kendrick said. “I didn’t know how to swim. I had to go home and get into the water. I met with Coach Abita in the pool here. He’s an awesome coach and did more swimming than I’ve ever done in my life. It was a huge accomplishment for me.”

Kendrick said her family and leadership cheered her on every step of the way. “My chaplain, [Army Lt. Col.] Steve Moser, and his wife, they’re my greatest fans,” she said. “I really love them, and thank them for their prayers and their support. I also thank my family, my sister, Sharon, and those who came to visit, like my brother, Carolos, and my nephew, Army Capt. Dion Theres at Fort Carson. I really do thank them for their support, as well as the support of Team Army, the Airmen, Marines, U.K., all of us, thank everyone for all of their support. We appreciate everyone’s support. Go Team Army!”

Heart of the Team

The athletes said they felt a sense of accomplishment by winning their medals, yet most of them said their biggest takeaway from the week was the sense of camaraderie and friendship. The Heart of the Team award is awarded to one member on each team who best exemplified character, integrity and sportsmanship. The teams chose who received the awards.

The recipients are: Army Spc. Brent Garlic, Marine Corps Staff Sgt. Jason Pacheco, Navy medically retired Petty Officer 3rd Class Anthony Dieli, U.S. Special Operations Command Army Master Sgt. George Vera, Royal Air Force veteran Cpl. Michael Bates, Australian Leading Seaman Vanessa Broughill and Canadian Master Cpl. Charlene Kendell.

“I was very surprised to get this. I thought James Howard should’ve gotten it,” said a surprised Vera. It sums up what Socom is all about: putting ourselves last every time, no matter what. We’re all about team and family.”

“I’m very proud of my dad and all of the hard work he’s done,” Vera’s daughter, Isabella, 11, said. “Even if you’re in a wheelchair like my dad, you can do more than you think.”

Passing the Torch

Team Air Force’s Master Sgt. Shay Hampton passed the torch to Wilson, who passed the torch to Socom’s commander, Army Gen. Raymond A. Thomas III, who passed the torch to Socom’s Army Sgt. 1st Class Brant Ireland, officially closing the 2018 DoD Warrior Games.

“Thank you General Wilson, General Grosso, the DoD Warrior Games staff and the United States Air Force Academy for hosting a tremendous Warrior Games 2018,” Thomas said. “Thanks as well to Jon Stewart. Congratulations to all the athletes who competed and a special thank you to the families of our warriors. You are the rock and an inspiration to us all.”

Next year, Thomas said, the U.S. Special Operations Command will host the Warrior Games in Tampa, Florida.

“I hope to see you all there,” he said.

Last summer, the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity-Fort Stewart, Winn Army Community Hospital Volunteer Red Cross youths, logged more than 1,500 hours of volunteer time within the Winn ACH footprint. 12 young people with a giving spirit took six weeks of their time and donated to helping others. This year Winn has 17 youth volunteers between the ages of 14 to 18, volunteering in departments such as the mother/baby unit, surgery, operating room, the Richmond Hill Medical Home, behavioral health clinic, physical therapy and the emergency department. According to American Red Cross volunteer coordinator at Winn, Synclaire Lawson, many of the volunteers have aspirations in the medical field. While at MEDDAC the youth will have the opportunity to learn valuable skills while simultaneously enriching the experience of active-duty Soldiers, Family members and retirees at Winn.

Winn partners with GSU for cyber security

Zach Rehnstrom

Winn Public Affairs Specialist

Winn Army Community Hospital stands vigilant against the constant risk of infiltration from adversaries, conspirators, and other threats. Winn understands the importance of maintaining acute sensitivity to their digital infrastructure in conjunction with their commitment to the privacy and safety of their beneficiaries.

In May, Winn participated in an educational partnership with students from Georgia Southern University majoring in health informatics. This partnership is designed to provide an outside perspective on Winn's cyber readiness.

"A large portion of how we execute that readiness mission is in the healthcare that we deliver," U.S. Army Medical Department Activity – Fort Stewart Commander Col. Christopher Warner said. "Some of the unique aspects of the military healthcare system are the fact that it is well networked and connected throughout."

This educational partnership provided resources for both Winn and Georgia

Southern University to work together to facilitate the development and framework of security protocols. The invaluable real-world experience for the Georgia Southern students allowed them insight into real-world applications of cyber security.

"There are a lot of wicked people out there that can use your sensitive information or your personal information to cause problems in other areas of the world or anywhere for that manner," Georgia Southern University Student Sailu Jalloh said. "Once your information gets out, you're held responsible for the crimes that they may commit. As well as, you're the one that suffers from that a lot of things can be taken from you."

In the past few months, the digital infrastructures within the Southern Coastal Georgia Community have been vulnerable to malicious cyber-attacks, which include and are not limited to ransomware. Ransomware is a form of malevolent cyber-attack that has the purpose of capturing and encrypting sensitive information stored on internal networks, as well as internal and external hard drives while demanding financial compensation to regain control of the affected device or network.

"If we're going to be ready for those growing threats and those emerging threats that are out there then we've got to ensure that we're also accessing our vulnerabilities and our effectiveness at maintaining that within the systems that we have as part of that," Warner said.

Winn is continually vigilant to these threats and constantly working on innovative solutions and partnerships to combat them.

"By having an outside set of eyes that helps you see yourself, it can let you understand where your vulnerabilities might be," Warner said. "Where your training deficiencies or where there might be great educational opportunities."

Winn's commitment to readiness expands to include protecting their patients' critical personal identifiable information and health records. Winn advises all beneficiaries and staff to stand ready to take the needed precautions to protect their personal information.

"We want our patients, our community to trust the care that they're receiving," Warner said. "Part of that has to be that their privacy is going to be secure."
