DIVARTY hosts annual Black History Month observance

Sgt. 1st Class Sierra A. Melendez
3rd ID Public Affairs

The 3rd Infantry Division Artillery hosted the annual Black History Month observance, Feb. 20, on Fort Stewart.

Every year, the entire month of February is observed nationally to honor the contributions of African Americans. This year's theme was "Black Migrations", which focused on the relocation of blacks to urban cities from rural farms in the early 20th century, bringing along their influence in musical genres such as the blues and jazz and black culture in visual and literary arts.

Col. Robert Marshall, the commander of 3rd ID Artillery and a member of the official party, said it is imperative that we honor the achievements of African American Soldiers and the vital role they play in the success of the Marne Division.

"This observance is an opportunity for Soldiers to take a step back and reflect on the contributions of African Americans to our nation's history," said Marshall.

Black History Month originated as "Negro History Week" in 1929 by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, a black writer. He strategically decided it should be celebrated in the second week in February – between the birthdays of Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln, both pioneers in the abolitionist movement.

Club Stewart was decorated with artifacts and relics that depicted the struggles of African Americans. "Colored waiting room" signs and facts sheets about segregation and Jim Crow laws adorned a booth, one of many that filled the event room.

The guest speaker for the event was Graylan Quarterman, the president of the Liberty County National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and retired sergeant first class.

"We [blacks] have a rich history," said Quarterman. "I am very humbled that I was invited to speak on black history month, especially here in my home town."

Quarterman said that at one time, Fort Stewart and their surrounding community of Liberty County and Hinesville were separate and didn't have a close relationship. He said that in recent years they have closed the gap and he was elated to be able to address Soldiers.

"We as a nation have come a long way in terms of racial issues," said Quarterman. "While politically there seems to be some divide, we are in Liberty County, which stands for freedom. We are fortunate to be unified."

China Battalion trains to support Spartan mission

Spc. Jordyn Worshek
2ABCT Public Affairs

The Spartan Brigade is comprised of seven battalions. Each plays a different role in support of the mission. Every year each battalion conducts a field training exercise which trains Soldiers in their specific role within the brigade. This exercise is called a focus. The 3rd Battalion, 15th Infantry Regiment, 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, conducted their focus exercise Feb. 10 – 21.

Known as China Battalion, 3-15 Inf., has a unique role in the brigades over – arching mission to control the high ground and complex terrain. Complex terrain consists of forested areas, urban areas and all other areas that the Bradley Fighting Vehicle can move in.

Since transitioning back to mechanized infantry, Soldiers train to use BFVs' making them a fierce fighting force. The platforms multiple weapons increases the unit's battlefield lethality, while providing the crews with an increased level of protection. Soldiers also train to move, shoot and communicate while dismounted in an attempt to gain more control over the complex terrain they may encounter while forward deployed.

The training exercise this year for the China Battalion leads up to the Spartan Brigades' rotation at the National Training Center in May 2019.

"The major role for the China Battalion during China focus is to be able seize complex and key terrain," said Lt. Col. Arthur McGrue, the battalion commander of 3-15 Inf. "This is so the brigade has the ability to accomplish its mission at NTC and future deployments by clearing or seizing either the high ground or the towns of populated areas. As long as we can seize that terrain or urban environment it allows the tanks to close in and destroy the enemies' forces."

While focusing on the upcoming NTC rotation, Soldiers train in various types of movements and terrain.

"We train our Soldiers on dismounted and mounted tactical movements, platoon level attacks and platoon level defense," said Sgt. Alex Rey, the master gunner for Company A, 3-15 Inf. "We also train squads and platoons on complex movements in urban environments."

Every training exercise during this focus, trains the Soldiers to perform while working along-side the other battalions in the Spartan Brigade.

"Doing China focus helps square away the little stuff we need to work on along with the big stuff so we can focus on bigger movements with the other battalions at NTC," said Spc. David Arcelay, a BFV maintainer assigned to 3-15 Inf. "It gets the crews ready and it helps us be able to anticipate brigade movements."

The focus events' thorough training ensures the China Battalions' readiness and performance. The infantry Soldiers in this battalion become trained to support the Spartan Brigade in NTC and future forward deployments.

Success chimes for local Eagle Scout

Pat Young
Frontline staff

Michael Hagerty III at age 18 has faced many challenges during his formative years as a military Family member. Through determination, resiliency, and the help of Family and friends, the Boy Scouts of America recognized him for his leadership and community effort awarding him the Eagle Scout achievement, Feb. 21 on Fort Stewart.

Hagerty, the son of Lt. Col. Mike and Anna Hagerty, a senior at Bradwell Institute, is a member of BSA Troop 222 in Richmond Hill but was supported by Hinesville based BSA Troop 475, who hosted the Eagle Scout ceremony at the 3rd Infantry Division Museum.

The achievement recognized the successful completion of his Eagle Scout project which was to plan, execute and manage the construction of a bell stand for the Bradwell Institute football team's weight-room. The stand holds a bell which is wrung to celebrate a student reaching a new personal goal.

The bell could easily have been wrung for Hagerty in achieving Eagle Scout, the capstone to his scouting education and training.

Hagerty notes scouting has taught him many life skills, which has benefited him as a military Family member.

"I have been able to connect with many troops across the 11 duty stations I have lived at," he said. "From Korea to Kansas, scouting has provided an instant means of making new friends and meeting new people who are all united by scouting."

He added joining a new troop is comparable to attending a new school, providing a constant source of new connection and relationships.

"Scouting has so much to offer, varying from outdoor to social skills," Hagerty said. "For me, scouting has taught basic survival skills, given me experience in leadership positions and instilled a foundation of integrity."

He noted a good philosophy to follow, for scouts working toward their own Eagle Scout project, is to never give up.

For more information about BSA, visit www.scouting.org. The Coastal Georgia council is located at 11900 Abercorn Street in Savannah at (912) 927-7272.

1ABCT assumes responsibility for funeral honors

Staff Sgt. Quanesha Barnett
1ABCT Public Affairs

Soldiers from the 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division took over responsibility for the Fort Stewart Military Funeral Honors on Feb. 2.

Any former service members who are not dishonorably discharged are entitled to funeral honors. The Soldiers across the Raider Brigade support military funerals for 14 counties in Florida, 13 counties in Georgia, and 2 counties in South Carolina.

The teams consist of flag folding personnel and full honor personnel. The Soldiers are on call seven days a week and 362 days a year, with exceptions including New Year's Day, President's Day, and Christmas Day.

Service members who served on active duty or for more than 20 years receive full honors. A full honor includes a 21-gun salute, playing of taps, and the folding and presentation of the American flag to the next-of-kin. Service members who served less than 20 years receive a flag fold (folding the American flag and presenting it to the next-of-kin during the services).

"It is our duty as Soldiers to honor the fallen from the generations that came before us. We do this by performing military funeral services," said Sgt. Maj. Patrick L. Rivers Jr., 5th Squadron 7th Cavalry Regiment, 1ABCT Operational Sergeant Major. "We ensure that these Soldiers are honored appropriately by repeatedly rehearsing the service in real time to ensure that we get every detail right. Successful services are characterized by portrayal of passion, emotion, respect and attention to detail."

Each noncommissioned officer in charge of the battalion honor team trains and tests Soldiers' abilities to modify funeral honors. They also test them on how to execute the manual of arms with M-4 Rifles, the movement of drill and ceremony, how to carry a weighted casket, and uniform inspection.

"We have to validate each battalion within the brigade every week to make sure they are ready at all times," said Sgt. 1st Class James Ruiz, 1ABCT noncommissioned officer in charge of the honor program. "The Raider Soldiers have set the standard across Fort Stewart."

Ruiz said that the honor teams have executed 136 funerals this year. For some Soldiers, this is their first time being a part of a funeral detail and they were glad to be able to give something back to the Families.

"Being involved in the funeral detail has been a great experience because I got the opportunity to train Soldiers on drill and ceremony and the military values," said Sgt. Larry Warner assigned to 3rd Brigade Support Battalion, 1ABCT. "Being a part of the team, I got to interact with new people across the brigade and the opportunity to honor my fallen battle buddies that paved the way for us in the military."

Lane, ramp closures scheduled for local roads

Courtesy of GDOT

The Georgia Department of Transportation continues to improve highway infrastructure throughout Southeast Georgia.

Construction and maintenance projects will continue throughout the week through March 1. Major projects of interest will impact traffic conditions.

The following projects are scheduled, but are subject to change. Motorists are cautioned to reduce their speed while traveling through work zones, pay attention and watch for workers.

Bryan County

State Route 144 is undergoing a widening project that necessitates the closure of Rabbit Hill Road near SR 144 for a drainage pipe installment. The detour, via Rabbit Hill Road, is to Port Royal Road.

Interstate 95. Expect lane closures daily through the week 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the removal of vegetation.

Interstate 16 will have a ramp closure for the east-bound exit 143 off-ramp to SR 30 and SR 280, for concrete repair. A detour is set via exit 148, 7 p.m. until 7 a.m., through Friday.

Bulloch County

U.S. 80/SR 26 Amanda Road and Old Lee Field Road will have single lane closures to build a roadway, through Saturday 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Chatham County

County Road 787 Island Expressway, will have single lane closures between Oatland

Island Road to Elba Island Road for mobilizing equipment and materials and utility work through Friday, 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

U.S. 80 between Stagecoach Road and Old Osteen Road has a lane shift planned. A speed reduction is required for the Jimmy Deloach extension project.

SR 25 connection from West Bay Street from I-516 will have a traffic shift between Bay Street and West Street and Tuten Street to replace a culvert box. The area will also have a resurfacing between West Bay and West Lathrop Avenue.

SR 21 Fries Road to Crossgate Road, between mile marker 11 and 11.5, single lane closures are scheduled for installing a commercial driveway and turn lane, through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Glynn County

SR 27/U.S. 341 will have lane closures throughout the week 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. for vegetation removal.

Roadway work zones are hazardous for workers and for the public. In fact, most fatalities in work zone crashes are drivers or passengers. Obey the rules in work zones. Pay attention and slow down. Watch for workers and always, expect the unexpected. It can make the difference between life and death.

Marne Air tackles Combat LifeSaver skills

Spc. Anabel Gallegos
3CAB

Marne Air Soldiers from 4th Battalion, 3rd Aviation Regiment, 3rd Combat Aviation Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division, engaged in Combat Life Saver training Feb 11, on Hunter Army Airfield, in order to train Soldiers in lifesaving techniques.

CLS training is a fundamental skill which is a part of a soldier readiness, this training is imperative in the event that a combat medic is not available.

"The CLS courses taught us basic fundamentals of first aid and to help aid a casualty," said Spc. Freddy Fears, a Blackhawk Repairer for Co. D, 4-3 Avn. "Our goal is to have the capability to save a life, this training enables us to be effective on the battlefield and to preserve life."

The CLS course taught different skills, from treating trauma to resuscitation techniques. Soldiers were able to use what they learned from the classroom onto a simulated casualty.

"I feel very confident in my training, before I had no prior knowledge towards a Needle Chest Decompression," said Fears. "Now, I know how to properly use this device, it was a great experience."

Marne Air Soldiers were tested on their knowledge and ability to treat a simulated casualty. Pvt. Eric Keester, a Blackhawk repairer for Co. D, 4-3 Avn, was tested along with two other Soldiers.

"The instructor in our lane tested our knowledge and switched up the scenario keeping us guessing, it made the simulation feel urgent," said Keester. "I feel confident in my ability to help preserve life whenever the mission arise."

Marne Air Soldiers needed to think quickly and react no matter the severity of the situation. Soldiers treated a casualty in the order of hemorrhaging, airway obstruction, breathing and circulation.

"They performed well, they took care of all my injuries in the correct order of HABC as taught in class," said Pvt. Gary Fesefeldt, a simulated casualty during CLS training. "I feel the Soldiers will be able to keep me alive in a real mission."

The CLS course was conducted and ran by medics within 3CAB. Having soldiers confident in their skills heightens readiness and survival rate of Marne Air Soldier as they prepare for the Joint Readiness Training Center at Fort Polk, Louisiana, and the National Training Center on Fort Irwin, California.

"The instructors and I feel pretty confident in the Soldiers," said Sgt. Brittany Eades, an instructor for the CLS course. "The Soldiers have done well, I am more than confident in this group to get the job done."

Apaches Dominate Aerial Gunnery

Sgt. Ryan Tatum
3rd CAB Public Affiars

Marne Air Soldiers from 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry Regiment, 3rd Combat Aviation Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division, completed an aerial gunnery on Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield as part of their annual certification Feb 25.

The gunneries are conducted in order to prepare Marne Air Soldiers for their upcoming rotations at the Joint Readiness Training Center on Fort Polk, Louisiana and the National Training Center on Fort Irwin, California.

“We have conducted aerial gunnery tables IV, V during the day and VI, VII at night,” said 1st Lt. Eric Hess, range officer in charge for 3-17 Cav. “The purpose of the training is to keep AH-64 Apache Attack helicopter pilots proficient in their weapon systems in order to protect the aircraft and troops on the ground.”

The AH-64 Apache is a twin-turboshaft attack helicopter, armed with a 30 mm M230 chain gun, AGM-114 Hellfire missiles and Hydra rocket pods. The AH-64 has a large amount of system redundancy to improve combat survivability.

Chief Warrant Officer 3 Anthony Phillips, the master gunner for 3-17 Cav., said these are the primary weapon systems to defend the aircraft.

After the gunnery table is completed, the pilots get evaluated by Phillips on their performance at the range.

“Gunnery table IV is a daytime terrain familiarization table with a target engagement and is for an individual crew to come out here to have a successful engagement with a target using the M230 chain gun, rockets and missile,” said Phillips. “Table V is the qualification table for the daytime and table VI is for the nighttime both require the individual team to engage targets using the proper weapon system.”

These Marne Air pilots are given a scenario that requires attention to detail, all the while targets move around on the range. The key to a successful certification is focus and awareness of the battlefield.

As training comes to a close with success at gunnery tables the flight for readiness continues as the Marne Air Soldiers prepare for the next mission.

“Overall, the training is going well and some of the crews are young but they are eager to certify and prepare for the training to come next,” said Phillips. “Everyone who has shot thus far has met the qualification on the range.”

New taxable moving expenses explained

Special to the Frontline

WASHINGTON -- Additional information on the taxation of moving expenses for civilian employees is now available that changes guidance issued last year. As previously reported, many moving benefits paid or reimbursed by an employer are now taxable to the relocating employee under the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, passed in December 2017. For PCS moves after Jan. 1, 2018, some PCS move expenses for U.S. Government civilian employees paid for or reimbursed by the U.S. Government are taxable benefits.

Current guidance is that the following PCS expenses are taxable entitlements under the new tax law: household goods shipment, transportation and per diem (including airfare), en-route lodging, and mobile home shipment. Also taxable now are house hunting trip expenses, Temporary Quarters Subsistence Expense (but not Temporary Quarters Subsistence Allowance), real estate expenses, non-temporary HHG storage in the continental U.S., temporary HHG storage (first 30 days), the miscellaneous expense allowance, and relocation services. Personally owned vehicle shipments associated with an overseas move and non-temporary storage of household goods are not taxable.

For DoD civilian employees, the additional tax burden may be offset by the Relocation Income Tax Allowance, which is designed to reimburse DoD civilian employees for federal, state and local income taxes incurred as a result of receiving taxable relocation benefits. DoD civilian employees may also be authorized the Withholding Tax Allowance, which is an advance against RITA, claimed by the employee on the travel settlement voucher following the completion of travel. A new appointee (an employee new to Government work) is not eligible for WTA or RITA, nor are employees returning from an overseas assignment for the purpose of separation from Government service. RITA and WTA are taxable reimbursements.

Since PCS move expenses, WTA, and RITA are included as income to the employee, mandatory withholdings for income tax, FICA and Medicare will be made by DFAS on behalf of the employee. Tax withholding payments made by DFAS are deducted from the travel settlement amount or must be reimbursed by the employee. For travel settlements made after Oct. 30, 2018, tax withholding payments should be reflected on the travel settlement voucher. For travel settlements made before Oct. 30, 2018, DFAS will notify the employee of the debt and procedures for repayment.

DFAS is currently upgrading procedures to include PCS move benefits as taxable income on W-2 statements. A relocating employee's 2018 W-2 released through MyPay in January, 2019 may not include all taxable PCS expenses.

Employees who PCSed in 2018 should carefully review Leave and Earnings Statements, travel settlements, and the 2018 W-2 issued by DFAS to account for taxable PCS move expenses and monitor their MyPay account for delivery of an additional or corrected W-2. Those employees may need to file an amended tax return and a supplemental RITA claim.

As we reported earlier, the change to the tax law that made moving expenses taxable does not apply to uniformed military personnel moving pursuant to orders. Additional information on the change in the tax law can be found at <http://www.dfas.mil/TaxLawChange>.

Bobbie Poole retires after almost half-century of civil service

Zach Rehnstrom
Winn ACH Public Affairs

Throughout the last 34 years, U.S. Army Medical Department Activity – Fort Stewart has undergone a series of changes, and Referral Management Assistant, Bobbie Poole has been through many of them.

“I’m going to miss coming to work and being with everybody and doing this job,” Poole said. “Just sitting at this desk and helping people when they come in. I’m going to miss it.”

After 45 years of civil service, Poole is finally preparing to say goodbye to her MEDDAC Family, and hello to retirement.

“I like to work,” Poole said. “I’ve had a hard time deciding to retire, but 45 years, seven year break and I’m 74 years old ..., it’s time to do something else where I don’t have to get up at 5:30.”

Throughout the last 34 years, Poole has held many positions at Winn. She began working in the old USA MEDDAC building in 1975 in admissions. She continued serving the USA MEDDAC population in many different roles, including working at the call center, behavioral health, and eventually referral management.

“I like doing that, because if I was out there somewhere, and I didn’t know what to do, I would want somebody to help me a little bit, and especially with your medical care,” Poole said.

Referral Management Branch Manager, Gail Ford, has worked with Poole for the last two decades, and appreciates Poole’s empathy towards the beneficiaries at Winn ACH and her commitment to providing quality customer service to beneficiaries.

“She sees herself where they are,” Ford said. “When they ask the question, she really wants to get the answer because, I believe, that she learns something from it or she can share with them things that she’s experienced there, and she definitely wants to make sure that she helps them.”

During the monthly awards ceremony held in the Patriot Auditorium at Winn, Poole was recognized for her 45 years of service by Clinical Business Operations Manager, Jeff Loomis.

“This is a big deal folks,” Loomis said. “Forty-five years in government service started ... when I first got here, she’s the person who set me on the right track when I came to Clinical Operations.”

In the past three decades, Poole has continually touched the lives of many Soldiers and Civilians in her tenure in MEDDAC and at Winn.

“I always wanted to treat people like I wanted to be treated,” Poole said. “If somebody comes up to me and asks a question, I try my best to help them.”

For Ford, Poole’s continued commitment to providing quality customer service to the beneficiaries at Winn comes as no surprise to her because of the quality and merit of Poole’s character and commitment to selfless service.

“One of the things that we’ll miss about Bobbie is she’s very friendly,” Ford said. “She’s easy going. She has no problems with her coworkers or even with the patients. She’s really concerned about getting the work done every day.”

Forty-five years of selfless service, and 34 years devoted to the patients at Winn Army Community Hospital, is the legacy Bobbie Poole leaves behind.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER: CHURCH SHOULD BE FAMILY

Maj. John D. Hobbs
FSGA Operations Chaplain

Since we moved to Southeast Georgia, we have been fascinated by the names of the churches. I always wonder what the name says about the believers who gather there.

I visited the Journey Church recently. I was greeted with open arms by those who faithfully worship there. The congregation has no old people, but only the young attend. No formal liturgy is followed, so one can approach worship any way you want it. It's a high tech church, with sounds, lights and nursery monitors that notify young moms of who's crying now. It is family focused, but they ask the lonely to join the fellowship as well. The pastor preached a sermon entitled Wheel in the Sky, based upon Ezekiel. He admonished us, 'Don't stop believing' when you are challenged by doubters." At the conclusion of the service, when we went our separate ways, I told them I probably wouldn't be attending again. This concerned them, so I said, "I'll be alright without you."

OK, the last paragraph was a fabrication of my '80s music loving imagination. It does raise an important question, however. What should one look for in a church? Sometimes I am asked for church recommendations from folks who live off post who do not wish to return on Sundays to attend chapel. I first always inquire about their theological perspective so that I can help them remain faithful to their own faith tradition. Beyond that I like to offer the same challenge, "Don't look for a church from the perspective of a consumer; choose one where you can serve." It may sound like I am biased against some of the more avant garde places of worship, but let me explain why I advise my Soldiers this way.

First, church is not supposed to be a place of entertainment or even primarily an inspirational filling station. St. Paul referred to the church as "the body of Christ" (Ephesians 4:12). In our individualistic culture we tend think about what works for me. The New Testament vision of the church, though, is an organization in which the members take care of each other. Hence, while a studio quality worship band might make Sunday mornings exciting, it is much more important to find a place where you can experience the joy of belonging and serving. We grow more in our connection to God through active participation than through passive attendance.

Second, as military members we know we will frequently be away from our families. I lost count of the times this past year, when deployed to Korea, while talking to my wife I learned of all the help she received from someone at the church. Our church doesn't have the most high tech amenities that the mega churches have.

Our choir doesn't sound like it has just transferred from the Mormon Tabernacle. But, we have something much, better. Our church is family.

Tree planted in observance of Arbor Day

Amanda Price
DPW Environmental Division

In early 1872, Mr. J. Sterling Morton proposed to the Nebraska Board of Agriculture that a special day be set aside for the planting of trees. This holiday was to be called Arbor Day and was first observed on April 10, 1872. The day was an amazing success with more than one million trees being planted.

In the years following that first Arbor Day, Morton's idea was adopted by other states.

Today, all 50 states have proclaimed their own Arbor Day. In Georgia, our state Arbor Day is honored on the third Friday in February.

The first Georgia Arbor Day was proclaimed by the Georgia general assembly in December 1890. In addition to the various state Arbor Days, there is also a National Arbor Day, celebrated on the last Friday in April each year.

This year, Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield decided to celebrate its arbor day in conjunction with Georgia's Arbor Day. Therefore, Feb. 14 was designated as the installation's Arbor Day for 2019.

This was the post's tenth annual Arbor Day. In honor of the day, the forestry branch coordinated a tree planting ceremony at a child development center at building 5500 on Fort Stewart.

The Fort Stewart forestry supervisor, T.J. Quarles, welcomed students and staff members from the CDC and gave a brief explanation of Arbor Day and the important role trees play in our everyday lives. Quarles gave an overview of the installation's involvement in Tree City USA and read an Arbor Day proclamation. After the reading, students and staff members assisted in placing soil around the newly planted tree.

This tree planting served as an opportunity to highlight the importance of trees and promote environment sustainability. The event also served as a beautification and conservation endeavor, and therefore supported the Installation's initiatives as a member of Tree City USA. Many benefits are gained by being a Tree City USA member, such as educational opportunities, a positive public image, and citizen pride.

Remember, trees are a vital part of our lives! Trees clean the atmosphere, reduce ambient temperature, and promote pride and joy by enhancing the aesthetics of communities across the nation. They provide us with wood for building and warming our homes, as well as food for both people and animals. Most importantly, they give us the very air we breathe. Please plant a tree!

Field feeding company activates

Sgt. Elizabeth White
3rd Sustainment Brigade

The 287th Quartermaster Company, Special Troops Battalion, 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade activated during a ceremony Feb. 20 on Fort Stewart.

The company is the fourth one to activate as part of a new Army initiative to consolidate field feeding assets for ease of garrison, field and deployed culinary support.

The 287th QM Co., also known as the field feeding company, is responsible for manning the dining facilities on Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield, the culinary outpost kiosk, food trucks and providing teams of culinary specialists for training exercises or deployments. It consists of approximately 140 culinary specialists (mission occupational specialty designated as 92G) that make up eight field feeding teams that rotate between garrison DFACs and field training operations.

“[The Army] consolidated 92Gs from units across 3rd Infantry Division and anytime units want to go out to the field and have a hot meal versus a Meal, Ready-to-Eat, they’ll request support,” said Capt. Simon Johnstone, the commander of 287th QM Co. “From a command and control perspective it makes it a lot easier to have one commander and first sergeant overseeing the 92G population, both in the dining facilities and for field feeding.”

By having all of the 92Gs under one roof, unit leadership can create training that caters specifically to their Soldiers’ needs.

“We still have our basic Soldier skills that we continue to work on so Soldiers can continue to grow,” said Staff Sgt. Warren Dudley, a noncommissioned officer in charge of a field feeding team with the 287th QM Co. “We also have field feeding and 92G tasks that we have to accomplish and a lot of that entails being able to set up and tear down a field site, making sure that Soldiers know standard operating procedures and regulations and making sure they are trained and proficient to be able to provide quality meals.”

With the creation of the field feeding company, cooks in the division are organized and trained feed dog face Soldiers whether they are in garrison, field or deployed environments.

Fort Stewart honors veterans during retiree appreciation day

Sgt. Daniel Guerrero
3rd ID Public Affairs

The Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield Department of Human Resources held their annual Retiree Appreciation Day at The University of Central Florida, Feb. 23, in Orlando.

The event started with some informative presentations and in typical military fashion, included a safety brief.

This year's theme was "recruiting Soldiers for life." The commander of the 2nd Recruiting Brigade, United States Army Recruiting Command, Col. Mark Olin, spoke about how the knowledge and experience from retired veterans help recruit new Soldiers.

Olin said a retired Army veteran's story could be just the thing that helps someone decide to join the military.

Col. Jason Wolter, Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield garrison commander, was present at the event and showed his support and appreciation to our nation's veterans.

"Not only is it important to continue to educate and support our veterans," said Wolter. "It's a great opportunity for us to tap the unlimited potential our veterans provide. Whether that is recruiting across our Army, as we talked about here today; or being leaders across our communities."

RAD presented opportunities for the retirees to receive current information regarding the present state of the Army; veteran's benefits and entitlements and what is to come for the programs that support retirees' Families and pay.

The event hosted an information fair with representatives from many different programs that support veterans and their families such as Defense Finance and Accounting Service, TRICARE, Florida Department of Veteran's Affairs, and the Orlando Vet Center. Personnel were also there to offer ID card services.

Officials from the Department of Veteran's Affairs were also present to answer any of the retirees' questions. The event also served as a beneficial platform for retirees to network and develop connections.

Retired Sgt. 1st Class Douglas J. Brewer said that RAD is great for getting updated contact information, as well as being around other veterans.

"It feels good to talk to other veterans, and it's such a small community, it feels good to be back with your brothers," said Brewer.
