IMCOM welcomes new CG

Susan A. Merkner,
IMCOM Public Affairs

Lt. Gen. Bradley A. Becker took command of United States Army Installation Management Command in ceremonies Sept. 5 at Joint Base San Antonio-Fort Sam Houston.

Becker was promoted to lieutenant general immediately before the ceremony by Gen. Mark A. Milley, Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army.

Becker replaces Lt. Gen. Kenneth R. Dahl, who had served IMCOM since November 2015.

During Becker's promotion ceremony, Milley said the new IMCOM commander was talented and humble, a man who "is not afraid to speak truth to power. We want servant-leaders in our generals."

At the change of command ceremony, Milley praised IMCOM and its employees, thanking them for generating Army readiness by supporting Soldiers, their families and civilians. "Readiness is much more than manning, equipping and training. Soldiers can't focus exclusively on their combat mission if they think their family is in lousy housing, or has inadequate medical care, or unsafe schools for their children," he said.

Of the Army's 1.1 million Soldiers, 60 percent are married and most have at least two children, Milley said.

Under Dahl's leadership, IMCOM reduced 1,000 positions "which allowed us to apply those resources to build an SFAB (Security Force Assistance Brigade) which is in Afghanistan today," Milley said.

"Every base and installation is important, both in CONUS and overseas," Milley said. "Every single Soldier in the Army passes through IMCOM at some point, and IMCOM is responsible for the readiness of today's Army."

Dahl was the first commanding general of IMCOM who was not dual-hatted as the Army's Assistant Chief of Staff for Installation Management. During his remarks at the ceremony, Dahl thanked the command's 50,000 employees for their role in providing continuity in the Army's 75 installations.

Despite budget cuts and doubling down on multiple jobs, IMCOM employees are dedicated professionals who keep the day-to-day operations going, providing facilities, utilities, security and recreational opportunities, he said.

"IMCOM provides platforms for readiness, so our Soldiers are fit, trained and ready for combat," said Dahl, who will be retiring from active service later this month.

Becker thanked family and friends for their support and said Dahl built a great team at IMCOM.

Hounds hold first tank competition at Sparta

Staff Sgt. Nathan C. Berry
2ABCT Public Affairs

Elements of 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team held the first Excellence in Armor Competition since the brigade converted to a tank-focused force Aug. 30–Sept. 7, at Fort Stewart.

“We were challenged by the battalion commander to create and proof a working Excellence in Armor program here in 3-67 Armor. It will be the model in which other companies will use moving forward and will be shared across the brigade,” said Capt. Jason B. Boswell, Company A, 3rd Battalion, 67th Armor Regiment.

The program identifies, recognizes and honors tankers and scout Soldiers in the ranks of private through sergeant who have demonstrated outstanding performance and possess leadership potential, while also achieving excellence in their respective occupational specialties.

“Our tankers endured a grueling test of their physical toughness and mental aptitude showing the level of proficiency and excellence in which we are transitioning as a unit,” Boswell said.

Throughout the week, Soldiers were tested on a variety of warrior tasks and drills which included a 4-mile run in less than 36 minutes, a 12-mile foot march with a 35-pound rucksack in less than three hours, day and night land navigation courses, weapons systems tasks and armored vehicle related tasks.

Soldiers also performed tasks focused specifically on the M1 Abrams Tank. Those tasks included bore sighting, preventive maintenance checks and services procedures, and loading ammunition, all within time restraints.

Once the EIA qualification concludes, “Spartan Brigade” Soldiers who meet the Office of the Chief of Armor at Fort Benning standards will set themselves apart from their peers as their careers progress.

“The Soldiers who met all qualifications will be formally inducted into the EIA Program by the armor branch,” said Staff Sgt. Gregory Adelman a tank commander with “Aries” Company, 3-67 Armor. “They will be identified for accelerated promotion and maintain key positions within the unit so we can benefit from their potential as leaders.”

After successfully completing the qualification course, the EIA will be added to their military records so their accomplishment will follow them for the rest of their military careers.

“Having this award in your records validates that you have obtained excellence in your career field; it’s not easy to obtain due to the rarity at which the event is offered,” said Adelman. “I have only seen the event conducted one other time in my career.”

Participants who failed to achieve the Excellence in Armor Award will continue their day-to-day service and will have another chance to earn it next year.

Hunter Soldiers pay respects to 9/11 victims

Steve Hart
Hunter Army Airfield Public Affairs

People around the country took time Sept. 11 to remember the thousands who died in the terror attacks on Sept. 11, 2001.

At the National 9/11 Memorial and Museum in downtown New York City, people looked at the names of the victims engraved above the recessed pools where the Twin Towers once stood.

In Shankesville, Pennsylvania, Americans looked at the names on the wall at the Flight 93 National Memorial, which is the site where United Airlines Flight 93 crashed after it was hijacked by terrorists who were then overtaken by the plane’s passengers, which prevented the hijackers from reaching their target—either the Pentagon or the White House.

In Savannah, a group of 32 runners with the Savannah Chapter of Team Red, White and Blue unfurled a flag at Fort Screven on Tybee Island and ran with it 23 miles through downtown Savannah to Hunter Army Airfield where it was presented to the Hunter Army Airfield Command Team of Lt. Col. Ken Dwyer and Command Sgt. Maj. Levander Wilkerson.

“For many, the anniversary of 9/11 is a day of service to help transform the tragic events of 9/11 into a day of unity to demonstrate a positive tribute to those lost and injured on 9/11 and the many who rose in service in response to the attacks,” said Dwyer on the steps of the garrison headquarters to the members of Team RWB and law enforcement and fire personnel from the installation.

“We ran from Tybee Island through the streets of downtown Savannah to Hunter Army Airfield with the American flag changing hands along the way from service members to firefighters to military veterans,” said Chris Lancia, 9/11 Old Glory Relay organizer and a Soldier with the 3rd Combat Aviation Brigade. “Our goal was to elevate awareness on this 17th anniversary of 9/11”

The runners took turns running the 23 miles. Along the way, the American flag was carried by Soldiers, firefighters and military veterans.

This is the fifth year Team RWB has conducted a run on the 9/11 anniversary. This year, they’re running coast-to-coast ... from Boston to San Diego. This is the first year the Savannah Chapter of Team RWB has conducted a run. Lancia said it won’t be their last.

ACS Behind the Scenes: mobilization, deployment support, Tonya Imus

Michelline Turnbow
ACS Marketing
Commentary

Tonya Imus is a Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield treasure as a Hunter Army Community Services representative and Fort Stewart Mobilization and Deployment Program Manager.

Imus has been working for ACS and other Family programs for more than 18 years.

Imus, who with her three children, understands how hard deployments can be on families. She emphasizes during deployments, tensions can rise; however, they do not have to boil over.

"Take time to take care of yourself, your Family and seek help even if you don't think you need it right now," Imus said.

Imus not only cares about you and your Family to be 'okay in the moment' but wants long term happiness and satisfaction for all Soldiers and their Families.

"It's your Army, you own it," Imus said.

She encourages Soldiers to create an Army and ACS that they not only want to be a part of, but gives them all the tools they need to prevent any hardship that can happen in every day military life. Imus not only relates to that philosophy but understands it, as someone who supported their active duty spouse for many years.

To get in contact with Tonya or any of the staff at Hunter, call 315-6816. The Hunter building is located at 171 Haley Avenue building 1286.

Stop by if you get a chance to get great customer service and receive help with any ACS questions you may have. For assistance with Mobilization and Deployment on Fort Stewart, call 767-1257.

3rd CAB Soldiers honor the fallen in Savannah run

Sgt. Ryan Tatum
3rd CAB Public Affairs

Soldiers from 3rd Combat Aviation Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division participated in the 2018 Tunnels to Towers 5K Run and Walk Sept. 8 at Orleans Square in Savannah.

The Tunnels to Tower 5K Run and Walk is held annually across the country in order to recognize the first responders who made the ultimate sacrifice during 9/11.

The event was inspired by Stephen Siller, a firefighter who ran through the tunnels of New York City on 9/11 to reach the Twin Towers and save others before losing his own life in the attacks.

This is the seventh time the Tunnels to Tower 5K has been held in Savannah, and it was widely supported by both the civilian and military community.

"We have over 2,000 people who are participating in today's run," said Jane Grismer, race director for the 5K in Savannah. Of those 2,000 participants, approximately 800 were service members and their families.

In addition to commemorating those who lost their lives on 9/11, the race honored four FDNY firefighters who lost their lives in the past year due to illnesses attributed to responding on 9/11: Michael Curry, Mark Hummendorf, Jimmy Perez and Mike McFadden. The race also honored Sgt. 1st Class Christopher Celiz, from 1st Ranger Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment. Celiz was killed in action in Afghanistan July 12 this year.

Capt. Justin Gill, commander for Company C, 3rd Squadron, 17th Cavalry Regiment, 3rd CAB, 3rd ID is a Soldier originally from New York who participated in the event on Sept. 8. The events of 9/11 left a lasting impression on him.

"I was in high school," said Gill. "I could see the smoke from the World Trade Center from my hometown, and that is when I decided that I wanted to be in the military."

Shortly after high school, Gill spent time as a volunteer firefighter before joining the military.

"Firefighting is in my blood. My grandfather is an ex-chief of Lynbrook fire department," said Gill. "I think the run is a great way to drive home everything that I try to instill into the Soldiers about being a team and having a great bond with one another in the troop."

Gill and his troop honored the fallen firefighters of the FDNY by flying a retired national flag on an AH-64 Apache Helicopter and running with it fully extended during the 5K.

Liz Curtis, director of the Stephen Siller Tunnels to Towers foundation and director of the national 5K run and climb series, explained that the 5K is more than just a race.

"We all have a great debt to our first responders, whether they were in New York on 9/11 or they were in any city across America," said Curtis. "What Stephen did on 9/11 is what first responders do every day. Having these runs help say thank you, we appreciate you...there is nothing like it."

Fort Stewart-Hunter Exchange protection plans offer peace of mind for Soldiers, Families

Sylvia D. Carpenter
Exchange

Buying big-ticket items can be stressful enough for Soldiers and their Families without worrying about damage or wear and tear devaluing the purchase.

The Fort Stewart-Hunter Exchange offers shoppers a way to protect their important purchases from these risks and dangers with Exchange protection plans for electronics, jewelry, appliances, lawn and garden tools and more.

The Exchange protection plans secure major purchases from the most common threats, including accidental damage from handling; breakdowns due to heat, dust and humidity; and power surges. Protection plans can be purchased for varying length of years—up to lifetime coverage—for as little as two percent of the item price.

“The Exchange appreciates that Fort Stewart-Hunter Soldiers and their Families choose to spend their hard-earned money with us,” said Exchange General Manager Common B. Orris. “We want to do all we can to help them protect their purchases so they get the most value for their money.”

Shoppers can easily add an Exchange protection plan to eligible purchases by speaking with an associate when they checkout. Exchange protection plans can also be added to purchases made online at ShopMyExchange.com.

CYS sports helps develop minds, bodies

Sgt. Laurissa Hodges
Frontline Contributor

Participating in intermural sports places children in situations where communication is key to learning the athletic fundamentals as their minds and bodies develop.

The Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield Directorate of Morale, Welfare and Recreation Child and Youth Services understand this and offer youth athletic program for beginners.

By providing a child with a focus through sports it also gives them additional life skills such as how to deal with anger and frustration, how to make friends, cope with the disappointment from losing a game, and working with others towards a common goal - winning.

Parents often use sports as an outlet for the extra energy their children have. Others see intermural sports as a way to help break their children out of their shell. This is why Lea Williams, a military spouse, involved her son with sports. She explained that her four year old son, Terrence, really blossomed while playing soccer and running track.

"When he was younger he was shy, but now he's a social butterfly," Williams said. "He's ready and willing to meet with kids he doesn't know to make friends."

1st Lt. Anthony Spadoni, 6-8 Cav played sports throughout high school and college and now volunteers as a CYS soccer coach.

"As I've gotten older, giving back to the community has become more important to me," Spadoni said. "And my son was the main impetus for me becoming a volunteer coach."

Spadoni said, as a volunteer, he learned quickly, that younger children understand game play and strategy on a much lower level. It caused him to get creative.

"Stop the bad guys from destroying your castle" is a technique Spadoni uses routinely for his 4-6 year old goalies. While playing sports [it] teaches the children how to protect their goal by using a concept they can easily understand, Spadoni further explained. "Sports enables children to work hard and demonstrate dedication," he said. "As long as you try your very best, you will be rewarded."

Retiring from active duty? Take action, make an enrollment choice

Special to The Frontline
Winn ACH Public Affairs

When you retire from active duty, your TRICARE plan options will change. Retiring from active duty is a Qualifying Life Event. A QLE allows you to enroll in a new TRICARE plan or change your coverage options within 90 days of the life event. As a retiree, you'll need to take action to enroll in a TRICARE plan if you want to continue to receive coverage for civilian care.

What actions do you need to take to continue TRICARE coverage?

First, update your information in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System. The next steps depend on which TRICARE plans you are eligible to use.

If eligible, you can reenroll yourself and eligible family members in TRICARE Prime or TRICARE Select. Depending on the plan you choose, you'll pay the single or family enrollment fee. There is no TRICARE Select enrollment fee for Group A retirees.

Depending on your eligibility, there may be other TRICARE plans for you and your family after retirement. Visit the TRICARE Plan Finder to learn about your options. For dental or vision coverage, you may also be eligible to enroll in the Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program beginning in 2019.

When do you need to reenroll in TRICARE coverage?

If you want to keep TRICARE Prime or TRICARE Select with no break in coverage, you must enroll within 90 days after your retirement date. If you don't enroll in TRICARE Prime or TRICARE Select within 90 days of retirement, you'll only be eligible for care in a military hospital or clinic on a space-available basis. The effective date of coverage will be your retirement date.

If you enroll in a TRICARE plan more than 90 days after your retirement, your request will be considered a new enrollment. If you have a break in TRICARE coverage, you and your eligible family members can only receive care at a military hospital or clinic on a space-available basis until you have TRICARE Prime or TRICARE Select coverage again.

Active duty service members pay nothing out of pocket and their family's costs are minimal. However, depending on their TRICARE plan, retirees may see an increase in their enrollment fees, copayments, cost-shares, and other fees.

How do you reenroll in TRICARE coverage?

- Use the Beneficiary Web Enrollment website (not available overseas).
- Call your regional contractor.
- Mail your enrollment form. Go to "Forms and Claims" on the TRICARE website to download forms.

Understanding your TRICARE options will help you and your family make the best health care decisions. Learn more about your TRICARE plan options after retiring from active duty.

WINN BRIEFS

The Military Healthcare System Nurse Advice Line is available 24/7 to all TRICARE beneficiaries in the U.S. and countries with an established military treatment facility (Monday, Tuesday and Friday), to include Europe, the Pacific, and Latin America Regions. As of April 1, the NAL went global.

MHS NAL Services Include:

- * Provider Locator Services for Urgent/Emergent Care
- * Healthcare Locator Services for Traveling Beneficiaries

Need to Contact the MHS Nurse Advice Line?

You can call for help. But if you need to see a doctor, remember:

* You must follow the rules of your other health insurance first. If this apply referencing Non-Active Duty with TRICARE Prime.

* Your OHI is the primary payer

* If we help you find a doctor, make sure they're in your other plan's network or your care may not be covered.

Note: The NAL number is a good contact for Active Duty Service Members when on leave or pass and needing Urgent Care when there is no military treatment facility present.

For Urgent or Non-Emergent Care the ADSM must have an approved referral when seen by a civilian facility/provider off post. Without an approved referral the service member is responsible for payment. The Urgent Care program do not apply.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Grow strong: choose joy, gratitude every day

Capt. Jinsup Lee
3-67 Armor Chaplain

A lot of people are losing their joy and gratitude today. In my opinion our culture, community and society make it hard for us to have joy and gratitude. Yet even in our culture of excess, we have so many reasons to be joyful and grateful.

How can you restore joy and gratitude in life? I want to share three tips.

First, stop thinking that you don't have enough. We are living in the 21st century, living among the wealthiest people, but shouldn't be looking at others. Materialism says "You don't have enough to be joyful and grateful." It tells you that you need more: a bigger house, a bigger car, faster internet, more money, a better environment, more degrees, and whatever.

If you have a couple of meals today then consider yourself so deeply blessed. There are 1.2 billion people who live on less than a dollar a day. Thirty-two to 40 million people live in some form of slavery. 865 million people don't have access to clean water. We have enough reasons to have joy and gratitude with what we already have.

Second: stop constantly comparing yourselves with others: siblings, classmates, superiors or peers. Globalization, social technology and social media make the problem worse. Comparing ourselves with everything and everybody will rob us of joy and contentment, and allow the seeds of envy, jealousy, and covetousness to take root in our hearts.

There is phrase, "The grass is greener on the other side." It says, "Someone's marriage is greener! Someone's relationships are greener! Someone's church is greener! Someone's environment is greener! Someone's parents are greener! Someone's children's are greener! Someone's job situation is greener." When you feel the grass is greener on the other side, pour water on the grass you are standing on!

Lastly, do not become a slave to circumstances. In life, there will be hardships, struggles and disrespect in our relationships. We often complain about our circumstances instead of cultivating our situation to grow better circumstances in life.

Pastor and theologian Henri Nouwen spoke about joy: "Joy does not simply happen to us. We have to choose joy and keep choosing it every day." Every day we are tempted by voices, covetousness, jealousy, envy, people, comparison, and so on. On a regular basis we have to choose joy and gratitude in life.

There is a story of ten Samaritan lepers in book of Luke 17:11-19. Messiah had a great passion for people, performing a lot of miracles to heal people. However, the Messiah did one thing rapidly that is so beautiful and confounding. In the culture of his time, lepers were considered outcasts and ostracized - not because they had a contagious skin disease, but because they were thought to be cursed by God. The Messiah healed these ten lepers, as they believed that He could heal them.

Yet, only one of ten men came back to thank Messiah. The one who returned did so with joy and gratitude for a new life. There may have been no other reason for him to have joy and gratitude in life, but this man chose joy and gratitude. We should live a life of joy and gratitude, just like the one leper who returned to give thanks to Jesus.

I humbly challenge you to stop thinking that you don't have enough, stop comparing yourself to everyone else, and do not become a slave of the circumstances. We should do what Colossians 2:7 tells us, "Grow strong in what you believe, just as you were taught. Be more thankful than ever before." From today, I hope you will keep choosing joy and gratitude in life.

IMCOM

"IMCOM touches the lives of every Soldier, civilian and their family members in the Army," Becker said. "What you do every day is truly impressive. I appreciate all you do to keep the Army strong."

The change of command ceremony Sept. 5 included music by the First Armored Division Army Band, the national anthem sung by Sgt. First Class Charmakeitha M. Smith of IMCOM, and an invocation by IMCOM Command Chaplain Col. Yvonne Hudson.

IMCOM Command Sgt. Maj. Melissa A. Judkins participated in the guidon exchange ceremony with the three generals. The traditional presentation of flowers was held to honor the outgoing and incoming commanding generals' wives, Lt. Col. (R) Celia FlorCruz and Sherri Becker, respectively.

Prior to taking command of IMCOM, Becker was chief, Office of Security Cooperation-Iraq, U.S. Central Command, Iraq.

He was commander of the Joint Force Headquarters -- National Capital Region and the U.S. Army Military District of Washington. He previously served as the commanding general, U.S. Army Training Center and Fort Jackson, South Carolina. He has had several joint assignments and has served in Iraq and Korea, as well as at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, and Fort Lewis, Washington.

The 87th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion conducted their base defense live fire exercise, Sept. 4 -16, to certify companies on defensive operations against enemy elements. Soldiers demonstrated their basic Soldier skills, such as reacting to a chemical attack, treating and transporting casualties, building defense positions and reacting to enemy contact during this two-week long exercise. Platoons, companies and the battalion are all evaluated on these essential tasks to ensure the 87th CSSB is ready for combat.

Football season has started. A lot of people will be out watching or playing the game. It is a fun and challenging activity, which can be a great workout too.

But whether playing on a school team or with friends, it can also be dangerous if you don't wear the proper protective equipment.

Always wear the correct size equipment such as a helmet, shoulder pads, gloves, and proper footwear, and thigh and knee pads. And stay hydrated.

For spectators, many sport fans will be going to the stadiums to watch their favorite team play. Some will be participating in tailgate parties. So whether your cooking hot dogs, chili, hamburgers or chicken, please remember to keep perishable food cold. This an important part of avoiding food-borne illness.

When you transport raw meat and poultry and other perishable foods to your tailgate party, store them in a cooler with ice or frozen gel packs.

At the end of the tailgate, pack leftovers in clean containers and pack them in a cooler with ice before heading to the game, to ensure they stay fresh. Below is a small list to help get you started.

- Paper towels
- Moist towelettes and/or hand sanitizer
- Two coolers, one for food and one for beverages
- Ice
- Frozen gel packs
- Two sets of cooking utensils
- Paper plates and disposable silverware
- Food thermometer
- Clean containers for leftovers

You can find other tailgating safety tips at food.safety.gov and other sites on the Internet. And remember, if you plan on drinking, have a designated driver.

Enjoy the game.
