While deployed to Europe in support of Atlantic Resolve, Marne Air leadership from the 3rd Combat Aviation Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division, participated in a battle staff ride and visited several different historic battle sites throughout France, Dec. 2-6.

During this trip, Soldiers traced the route of the 3rd Infantry Division as it fought in World War I and learned more about the division's legacy and lineage. Marne Air leadership walked the documented front lines of the 3rd ID near the town of Mézy by the Marne River – a battle site where the 3rd Infantry Division earned the nickname “The Rock of the Marne” just over one hundred years ago. They also followed the division's movement during the war-ending Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Other historic locations visited included Belleau Wood, the Aisne-Marne American Cemetery, Gen. John “Blackjack” Pershing's headquarters, and the Voie Sacree Monument.

3CAB leadership participated in seminars and discussions about World War I and gained a greater appreciation for their division's legacy.

“It was a very moving experience,” said Master Sgt. Allan Brown. “Standing on the battle fields where my unit fought one hundred years ago. It makes you feel connected to our unit and its history.”

Participating Soldiers also applied lessons learned from World War I to their warfighting functions today.

“This trip was a fantastic opportunity not only to learn about 3rd ID's history and lineage, but also to reflect professionally,” said Maj. Casey Fulton, 3CAB intelligence officer and battle staff ride coordinator. “Studying our history here in Europe puts our current mission in better perspective, and it allows us to look, not just at how the past informs our present, but at what can be learned and applied to the future of our military as well.”

Over the duration of 3CAB's rotation to Europe, battalion staff will also conduct battle staff rides to deepen their understanding of American military history. These study trips will include visiting famous battle sites such as Normandy and Bastogne.

Col. Anthony Fournier takes command of 48th IBCT

Maj. William Carraway
Georgia National Guard

Col. Matthew Smith relinquished command of the Georgia Army National Guard's 48th Infantry Brigade Combat Team to Col. Anthony Fournier during a ceremony at the Macon Readiness Center, Dec. 7.

Smith, who led the brigade since December 2016, passed the 48th IBCT colors to Fournier, signifying the official transfer of power for the 48th IBCT Volunteers, an organization of more than 4,000 Georgia Guardsmen. Smith's tour of command culminated with the successful deployment of the 48th to Afghanistan in 2019. It was the brigade's fourth overseas combat deployment since Sept. 11, 2001.

Smith led the 48th through a period of transition and increased partnership with the 3rd Infantry Division. Assuming command just six months into the brigade's associated unit pilot with the 3rd ID, Smith integrated the IBCT training with the Fort Stewart-based division. From June 5 to 25, 2017, the Volunteers endured extreme temperatures and long training days in the humid fields of Fort Stewart during an eXportable Combat Training Capability exercise. A joint command post training exercise held at Fort Stewart in April 2018 further cemented the relationship between the 48th IBCT and 3rd ID before the brigade headed to Fort Polk, Louisiana for a rotation at the Joint Readiness Training Center. The 48th returned to Fort Stewart for pre-mobilization training and its first elements began to deploy to Afghanistan from Hunter Army Airfield in December. By the end of January, the brigade had completed the transfer of authority for its new mission and served for the next six months before returning to Fort Stewart in July.

Following the change of command ceremony, Smith was promoted to brigadier general. His next assignment is as the Deputy Director of Operations, Readiness and Mobilization, Headquarters, Department of the Army.

Fournier served more than 30 years in the Georgia National Guard. Fournier enlisted as a private in 1989 and commissioned through the Georgia Military Institute's Officer Candidate School in 1994 as an infantry lieutenant. He served as a platoon leader in the 1st Battalion, 121st Infantry Regiment and in Troop E, 108th Cavalry, both of the 48th IBCT. In 2000 he deployed to Bosnia as the executive officer of Company A, 2nd Battalion, 121st Infantry Regiment. Upon returning from Bosnia, Fournier assumed command of Company C, 1-121 Inf. and lead the company through the 2005-2006 deployment to Iraq. Fournier also deployed to Afghanistan with the 48th IBCT serving as the chief of operations for Task Force Phoenix which consisted of more 11,000 Soldiers from 27 countries charged with training the Afghan Army, Police, and Border Police. From 2012 to 2015, Fournier commanded the 2nd Battalion, 121st Infantry Regiment. In 2014, Fournier deployed to Guatemala as the task force commander of a joint, inter-agency, multinational training team charged with training a specialized Guatemalan unit in combating transnational organized. In his most recent assignments, Fournier served as Chief of Future Operations and then Chief of Exercise Branch for US Army Europe, Wiesbaden, Germany in 2018 and 2019.

The 48th IBCT is comprised of units whose history and battle honors predate the American Revolution. Its colors bear the campaign streamers of The Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, The Civil War, the Seminole War, both World Wars, Iraq and Afghanistan. The list of commanders for the 48th IBCT encompass those of the 48th Infantry Division (1946 to 1955); 48th Armor Division (1956 to 1968); 3rd Brigade, 30th Infantry Division (1968-1973) and the 48th Brigade (1973 to present).

IPPS-A supports active duty, Guard, Reserve

Justin Creech
IPPS-A STRATCOM

Five members of 3rd Infantry Division participated in Integrated Personnel and Pay System- Army training with the Georgia Army National Guard Nov. 4-5.

IPPS-A is the Army's new 21st Century human resources system, and is currently live in 20 of the 54 U.S. states and territories. The GAARNG is one of the newest states to go live in IPPS-A, having gone live with the system Nov. 18.

Sgt. 1st Class Patricia Anderson, Maj. Estella Barrios, Maj. Asoh Chinyere, Chief Warrant Officer 3 Ericka Burton and Chief Warrant Officer 2 Iris Latoya represented 3rd ID at the training, which covered Human Resources fundamentals and functions like understanding workflow within the system, and processing a personnel action request (PAR). Understanding how the Guard and Reserve operate their HR system and their procedures for various HR actions will help close the gap between their components and the Active component, according to several members of 3rd ID.

"By understanding their processes, we can better serve them when we are working together," said Maj. Estella Barrios, 3rd ID S-1. "IPPS-A will close that gap because the same way we process active duty personnel actions, we can now execute for the National Guard or Reserve personnel."

Barrios was deployed to Kuwait in 2016 and said it was frustrating not being able to help Guard and Reserve Soldiers with simple HR tasks.

"Active duty professionals had limited HR system capability and couldn't provide customer service for them," said Barrios. "They needed to go to their own HR professionals to get assistance. Sometimes, they had to wait weeks to get assistance on a simple personnel action."

Other functions of IPPS-A covered during the training included routing actions and building groups. Anderson said the practical exercises they did included routing leave forms and seeing how the Guard pulls promotion rosters at various points of the fiscal year.

Anderson said she's pleased that IPPS-A streamlines transactions by centralizing HR functions in one system.

"You can do every HR task in one system, and you can see who the task is currently with," said Anderson. "You can track the task's progress, which should help with efficiency."

Less paperwork is another potential benefit of IPPS-A that Anderson sees. She said IPPS-A should also cut down on the amount of Soldiers who reach out to their S-1 when they need assistance with an HR task because of the IPPS-A app, which allows Soldiers to submit HR forms via their cell phones.

"Soldiers always come to S-1 when they need updates," said Anderson. "Being able to do that on their phone will definitely lighten our workload."

The 3rd ID Soldiers are happy they received exposure to IPPS-A and have an understanding of what to expect when the system goes live for the active component. Closing the gap between the three Army components will be the biggest plus of the system, according to Barrios.

"IPPS-A is bringing us closer, and we all should be able to assist each other better," said Barrios. "One HR system for all!"

Family members lay a wreath for Spc. Gregory Sanders Dec. 14 during the Wreaths for Warriors Walk event on Fort Stewart. Sanders was killed in action during Operation Iraqi Freedom, serving with 3rd Battalion, 69 Armor Regiment, 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd ID, March 24, 2003 in Iraq.

Wreaths for Warriors Walk honors heroes, Families

Staff Sgt. Todd Pouliot
50th Public Affairs Detachment

There is a place at Fort Stewart that is hallowed ground because of the honored memories it elicits. Four hundred sixty-nine white crape myrtle trees line the ends of Cottrell Field, each planted as a living memorial to a Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield-based Soldier who made the ultimate sacrifice while serving in Operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom. This place is known as Warriors Walk.

Gold Star Families and Friends of those Fallen Soldiers, along with members of the community, gathered, Dec. 14, to place wreaths at the base of each tree during Wreaths for Warriors Walk, an annual event at Fort Stewart since 2007.

“Those trees, each and every one of them, is intimately connected to the hearts and souls of the Family Members left behind,” said Command Sgt. Maj. Michael Coffey, 3rd Infantry senior enlisted leader, during his remarks to Gold Star Family Members and guests. “Like you, I share a personal connection to one of those trees. The tree that my Family and I personally honor was planted for my good friend, Sgt. 1st Class David Salie.”

Salie served for nearly two decades and deployed in support of Operation Just Cause in Panama, and Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm before transferring to the 3rd ID, with which he deployed to Iraq in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

“Dave ferociously took care of his Soldiers; training, leading and protecting them to the best of his ability,” Coffey said. “He certainly missed his Family and loved them from afar as best he could. He was a remarkable man, and sadly died on Valentine’s Day in 2005.”

Barbara Bilbrey, who came to honor her son, Spc. Charles Bilbrey, placed a wreath at the base of his tree and knelt in silence. Afterwards, she placed wreaths at nearby trees honoring Sgt. William Howdeshell and Spc. Jaime Rodriguez, Jr., Bilbrey’s team members who were also killed when a roadside bomb detonated near their vehicle in Iraq in 2007.

“I can’t express how much it means to me to come here and visit my son’s tree,” Bilbrey said. “I visit Howdeshell’s and Rodriguez’ trees as well since their Families couldn’t make it.”

Community members in attendance placed wreaths at the trees of the fallen whose Families were unable to attend. Sgt. Maj. (Ret.) Robert Halderman, his wife Betty, and her son, Paul Lowe, from Savannah, attend Wreaths for Warriors Walk each year to do just that. Ever since Fort Stewart’s inaugural event in 2007, the Family has maintained the tree of Staff Sgt. Vincent Summers, which they adopted when they discovered his Family could not attend due to distance.

Fort Stewart’s Wreaths for Warriors Walk was inspired by Arlington National Cemetery’s Wreaths across America when Lt. Col. (Ret.) Tony Justi saw a photo of it in 2006.

“I thought we could do something similar here, and I found other volunteers who wanted to remember our fallen Soldiers and their loved ones in a special way,” said Justi, president of Wreaths for Warriors Walk. “The first event at Fort Stewart was in 2007, and there was such a good turnout that it has continued every year since then.”

Justi recognized the local volunteers including JRTC cadets, Soldiers and Family Members of Fort Stewart, and local restaurants for donating to the Gold Star Family reception.

The 469 white flowering Crepe myrtle trees lining Cottrell Field has made it a hallowed place in which ceremonies of all sorts are conducted, commands are changed, colors are cased, and Soldiers are farewelled and welcomed home from deployment.

“These trees serve as a symbol and reminder of the sanctity of life and the purity and innocence of our Nation’s greatest treasure, the American Soldier,” Coffey said. “These trees are a solemn reminder to us all - past, present and future - of the sacrifice of service to the country, and the willingness to go into harm’s way so that others may be safe.”

Steve Hart retires after 42 years of service

1st Lt. Eve Sampson

Hunter Army Airfield Public Affairs

Public Affairs Officers bring information to the community. They highlight newsworthy people and events. Working behind the scenes, seldom are they subjects of commemoration. For 26 years, Steve Hart has served as the Hunter Army Airfield PAO – after he retired as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Army. On Dec. 31, he will hang his hat on 42 years of public service, ending a chapter filled with the note-worthy accolades he often assigned to others.

Born to humble beginnings, Hart was the fourth of seven children. Initially, Hart chose community college over the Army. When funds for school ran out, he met with local recruiters. Motivated by the promise of money for tuition, Hart enlisted in the Army as a Personnel Records Specialist.

A marriage to the love of his life and a few years later, Hart was awarded an ROTC scholarship to study at the University of Tampa. In 1980, he received his commission as an Adjutant General Officer.

Hart recounted after his move to Fort Stewart in July 1190, his promising Southern adventure quickly evaporated as Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait, Aug. 2, 1990. By mid-August, He, as deputy public affairs officer and other members of the 24th Infantry Division, headquartered at Fort Stewart deployed to Kuwait. He traveled through Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, and Iraq in support of Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

“Day to day existence was tough,” Hart said as he recounted driving through sandstorms without navigational aids or windshields. “Showers were scarce, and communication with family nonexistent.”

Despite harsh conditions, Hart found moments of joy escorting critically-acclaimed journalist Joseph Galloway around the battlefield.

“We would stay up late listening to his stories,” Hart said. Galloway also possessed a satellite radio – a rare luxury before the age of cell phones. “We were starved for news,” He said.

During the March 1991 Gulf War cease-fire, Hart also escorted veteran CNN correspondent Jim Hill to the destruction of Iraqi munitions in Southern Iraq. Nearly thirty years later, Hill retained vivid recollections of Hart. Despite only spending a day together, Hill recalled that Hart stood out for his command and knowledge of information. “He struck me as someone in his element,” remarked Hill, “he was a pro.”

After the Gulf War, Hart left active duty. While dedicated to serving his country, he was also determined to be a present father. In 1992, he began work as the Hunter Army Airfield PAO while also serving in the Reserves. He was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel after spending time in Egypt and a post September 11 mobilization.

In 2004, Hart volunteered to serve as the PAO for Guantanamo Bay, before retiring and returning to Hunter Army Airfield in 2005 as the Hunter Public Affairs Officer.

Neither the Gulf War nor Guantanamo Bay could prepare him for what came next. After suffering strange symptoms in 2008, doctors found a golf-ball-sized brain tumor. After surgery, Hart awoke to a shock. Though the surgery removed the tumor, it damaged a facial nerve. The result was facial paralysis on the left side - life changing for someone whose livelihood was public interaction.

That surgery was the first procedure of many. Though he can't move laterally or hear well, Hart maintains a sense of humor. He joked that in the midst of things, he was “two surgeries away from being a reality TV star.”

Despite surviving cancer, Guantanamo Bay, and the Gulf War, Hart is most proud of something else - his sons.

In their youth, he introduced them to baseball and basketball. He started leagues to cater to their age brackets. In their adulthood, he dotes on their careers and children. The affection is mutual - one son caught a flight from Amsterdam to make his father's retirement dinner. Though he left early the next day, Hart said the hours the two spent together meant more than anything.

Hart's retirement plans show he has no signs of slowing down.

He said when he is not spending time with his beloved grandchildren, he plans to travel the world and be active in local veterans associations.

If his past 42 years are any indication of what is to come, it is safe to say that Savannah an expect great things out of the newly retired Hart.

Program lays framework for future jobs

Sgt. Zoe Garbarino
50th PAD

The Home Builder Institute transitioning military program hosted a graduation ceremony at the Sgt. 1st Class Paul R. Smith Education Center, Dec. 13 on Fort Stewart.

The ceremony was held to certify 16 Soldiers transitioning out of the Army with certificates to work in the construction industry.

HBI started in 2012 to prepare transitioning Soldiers to attend training and receive job skills that will qualify Soldiers to fill positions available in the construction industry. It is a 12-week training apprenticeship that partners with Home Depot and other local businesses. Upon completion, students are provided a toolbag, a toolbelt and the essential tools to get started.

"Most of them will have a job prior to leaving the Army," said Richard Williams, the regional skills program coordinator at the education center. "Others seek to become their own boss of a welding company, construction company or electrical company."

Soldiers on active duty must be within 180 days of separation as of the class start date and must have approval from their unit commander to attend the Soldier for Life - Transition Assistance Program sponsored course. The program is also open to honorably discharged veterans and military Family members.

Sgt. 1st Class Edward Barnett, an armored crewman, recently graduated from the course. He will retire in the Liberty County area and aspires to work in residential maintenance and construction.

"These are invaluable skills that you learn that can apply to your personal life at home or work if you continue to work in construction," said Barnett. "This course steers you in the right direction. Whether you are a private or a major, you will be prepared for the work force outside the military."

HBI training has been expanded to 12 installations along the east coast with classes running every month. Fort Stewart Career Center's recent cohort brings the location's graduate total to 357 in 2019.

"This program does not set Soldiers up for a job, it sets them up for a career," said Williams. "We make sure that our Soldiers feel empowered and can easily transition into the civilian population."

188th IBCT Soldier earns Sgt. Audie Murphy Award

Master Sgt. Nickolas Flowers
188th IBCT Public Affairs

First Army, Division East held its quarterly Sergeant Audie Murphy Award selection board this week at Camp Atterbury, Indiana.

The 188th Infantry "Ready" Brigade on Fort Stewart, sent Staff Sgt. Arturo Solano Hernandez from 3rd-395th Armor Battalion.

Hernandez was the only candidate that successfully navigated the brigade selection process and was nominated to participate at the division board. Over the course of two days at Camp Atterbury, Hernandez conducted a rigorous selection process including an Army Physical Fitness Test in which he was required to score a minimum of 90 points in each event, write a 500 word essay, take a 50 question written exam, and appear before a selection board, chaired by the First Army East Division Command Sergeant Major, Command Sgt. Maj. Carl A. Fagan along with brigade command sergeants major from across the Division-East.

Hernandez started Tuesday morning by executing the APFT in which he met all requirements with ease, scoring 295 points. He then was administered a 50 question exam in which he successfully answered situational and doctrinally based questions.

The culminating event took place Wednesday morning in which he appeared before a selection board. During the board, Hernandez demonstrated his technical and tactical knowledge as well as his leadership ability by answering questions based on doctrine.

Due to his exceptional performance, he was unanimously recommended by each board member to receive the prestigious Sergeant Audie Murphy Award.

Hernandez said he is already looking forward to getting involved with the 3rd Infantry Division - Fort Stewart chapter, in addition to leading a brigade study group to help future candidates prepare for the board.

"This is only the beginning," Hernandez said. "I am going to try to influence as many NCOs as I can to compete for this award."

Time remains to make housing voice heard

Kevin Larson
Fort Stewart Public Affairs

Have you wanted to share your opinion on housing here on Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield? Thought you missed the deadline to make your voice heard with the latest survey?

Think again.

The deadline for the latest independent third-party survey is extended to Friday, Dec. 19. Housing residents have a few more days to complete the CEL & Associates survey.

Housing residents should have received an email from ArmyHousingSurvey@cel-associates.com. Check your email junk folder if you didn't get the email in your in-box. Earlier this year, CEL & Associates emailed housing surveys to nearly 100,000 residents.

The survey is a critical tool for the Balfour Beatty Communities team to gauge residents' thoughts on living experience, customer service, maintenance, and community quality, Cheryl Sutton, Fort Stewart Family Homes community manager, said.

"We review each and every response we receive and put the feedback into action—whether they're property improvement projects or process and policy changes," Sutton said. "Our goal is to provide all residents an exceptional living experience, and the results of the survey keep us on track to ensure that we are doing just that."

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield housing branch manager Doug Delzeith echoed the importance of the survey.

"The CEL survey is the litmus test for Army leadership to get a sense of how Soldiers and their Families feel about their on-post housing experience," Delzeith said. "It only takes a few minutes for residents to let their voice be heard. So, please complete the survey."

Currently, 18% of Fort Stewart and 26% of Hunter Army Airfield residents who received the survey have completed it. More than 2,700 residents at Stewart and 600 residents at Hunter received surveys.

Army officials said the housing surveys will be used to find areas that are top priorities to residents, to identify which areas are successful or need improvement, and to determine where funding could have the most effect. They hope for a high participation rate, which will provide a more accurate depiction of resident satisfaction and of changes that have been implemented over the past eight months.
