Installation launches ‘whole-of-community’ effort to remediate mold

3rd Infantry Division

Early last week, Command Sgt. Maj. Quentin Fenderson, the 3rd Infantry Division enlisted senior leader said, “No one individual, group of individuals or agency here is responsible for or able to fix these concerns on their own. It’s a ‘whole of community’ effort.”

He directed a stand down to emphasize the value of engaged leaders in the barracks and certify leaders on how to properly tackle mold and other maintenance concerns. Throughout the week, senior leaders from across 3rd ID, Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield checked their units’ barracks following Soldiers voicing concerns to installation leaders and posting imagery of mold in rooms on social media. We will continue to assess, address, remediate, and maintain all of our facilities to ensure the quality of life and living conditions Soldiers deserve.

According to the installation’s Director of Public Works, mold can be found almost anywhere. It can grow on virtually any organic substance, as long as moisture and oxygen are present. There are molds that can grow on wood, paper, carpet, foods, and insulation. When excessive moisture accumulates in buildings or on building materials, mold growth will often occur, particularly if the moisture problem remains undiscovered or unaddressed. It is very important that issues with HVAC system and leaks be quickly identified and repaired to prevent mold growth.

According to the CDC, “there is always a little mold everywhere – in the air and on many surfaces. Certain molds are toxigenic, meaning they can produce toxins (specifically “mycotoxins”). Hazards presented by molds that may produce mycotoxins should be considered the same as other common molds which can grow in your house. Not all fungi produce mycotoxins and even those that do will not do so under all surface or environmental conditions. Mold growth, which often looks like spots, can be many different colors, and can smell musty. Color is not an indication of how dangerous a mold may be. Any mold should be removed and the moisture source that helped it grow should be removed. It is impossible to eliminate all molds and mold spores in the indoor environment. However, indoor mold growth can be controlled by controlling indoor humidity.”

To combat mold in Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield facilities, it’s important to understand roles and responsibilities.

Level 1 Mold (less than 10 square feet) should be cleaned by the room/facility occupant and a work order needs to be submitted through the Army Maintenance Activity site, or ArMA app, and/or call the DPW work order number. The occupant will be contacted by the Mold Team for a Moisture Related Issues assessment.

Clean with a non-chlorine based cleaner i.e. vinegar or lye based hand soap. Soak for an hour before drying. Wear personal protective equipment, including latex gloves, eye protection, surgical or other type mask. Leaders and Soldiers should not purchase equipment out of their own pocket and should procure these cleaners and PPE from DPW.

Senior leaders from across 3rd Infantry Division, Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield, checked barracks facilities for mold and other maintenance concerns last week, following Soldiers voicing concerns to installation leaders and posting imagery of mold in rooms on social media.

Level 2 Mold (10 to 25 square feet) is a unit building manager and mold team responsibility. After calling in a work order, the Mold Team conducts an MRI assessment, implements a cleaning plan and re-inspection appointment. This level should be cleaned with a hydrogen peroxide mix and PPE requirement includes: Tyvek suit, N95 Mask, latex gloves, eye protection, and air scrubber.

Level 3 Mold (more than 25 square feet) is a Mold Response Team responsibility and after calling in a work order, the occupant will be contacted by the Mold Team for an MRI assessment, containment actions, and will receive notice of timeline for possible reoccupation of dwelling.

It’s crucial to note that if Soldiers or Leaders suspect mold in duct work or HVAC systems, it must be addressed by DPW. Please call in a work order stating such.

Leaders can help combat mold. Before deployments contact DPW and the Mold team for a preventative walk-through planning for rear detachment (Even for extended field exercises). Routinely check the barracks- even just walking through hallways or common areas should give an indication of moisture levels or musty smells if mold is happening. Report water intrusions and other moisture related issues before mold colonies can develop.

Leaders should encourage Soldiers to use ArMA and/or call in suspected mold or moisture problems. Ensure windows and doors are kept closed so systems can function effectively. Obtain temporary dehumidifiers from the Facilities Management Office and may need to do so for common areas or in level 2 remediation where an active leak has been detected. Help provide access to PPE and resources from DPW for level 1 and 2 clean-ups as Soldiers should not purchase out of pocket. Ensure a work order is called in, regardless of how small the area for inspection and data collection. Finally, ensure people new to Coastal Georgia environment, (where the average relative humidity can be at or above 80%) know what to look for and how to address.

Additional actions implemented immediately by installation and division leadership include detailed unit reporting on mold in unit footprint; and, like severe weather planning, provide unit leaders a predictable ramp-up towards combating mold when the mold threat is at its worst.

Submit work orders via armymaintenance.com/arma or call 767-2883 for Fort Stewart or 315-4003 for Hunter Army Airfield.

Check out the CDC site for more information about mold: cdc.gov/mold/default.htm.

Tour showcases Fort Stewart, 3rd ID to community

The installation hosted a Come Meet Your Army event, Sept. 15 on Fort Stewart. The day consisted of a tour of the base designed to showcase the installation to potential recruits and civilians from the local community who are interested in learning about the Army. The tour was open to the general public.

"We hope to achieve a better relationship with our neighbors outside the gates and allow those without a military connection to come and learn about the 3rd Infantry Division, Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield, like how Soldiers live, where they work and train, and recreation opportunities," said Dina McKain, Fort Stewart's deputy garrison public affairs officer and chief of community relations.

Attendees were treated to a walk through of the 3rd ID Museum, a windshield tour of the installation, lunch at Club Stewart, and ended the tour at Warriors Walk, a monument dedicated to 3rd ID Soldiers who were killed in combat during Operations Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom.

"My dad is a Vietnam veteran," said Michelle Edenrusick, a Navy veteran and teacher. "I thought this would be a good opportunity for my son to come out and see what the Army is about."

Tours like Come Meet Your Army help bridge the divide between Soldiers and civilians by allowing civilians to see the sights and sounds of a military installation and develop a better understanding of what Soldiers do on a daily basis.

"I think the Come Meet Your Army tour is imperative, because as a recruiter we get applicants, we get families, and parents who want to know about the Army," said Staff Sgt. Mariah Jones, an Army recruiter. "We talk about some of the incentives and benefits that the Army can provide, but seeing it first hand, they can see the facilities on post, such as gyms, housing, and get a better look at the Army as a whole, as opposed to us just talking about it."

Community engagement events like the Come Meet Your Army tour are important because they showcase Soldiers' daily lives to Family members and the public to raise awareness and spark patriotism.

"I enjoy the relationships between the people on the Come Meet Your Army tour," said Chap. (Maj.) Lee Frye, a Fort Stewart chaplain. "I like that people love to come support our country and support what we do here on Fort Stewart."

MARNE HISTORY

Remembering Maj. Gen. Keith L. Ware: Nov. 23, 1915 to Sept. 13, 1968

Keith L. Ware was born in Denver, Colorado, and attended basic training in 1941. He commissioned in the U.S. Army Infantry as a Second Lieutenant in 1942 and by that October, was assigned to the 3rd Infantry Division where he participated in the North African campaigns.

By August 1944, Ware had participated in several major battles in Italy, including the invasion of Sicily and the landings on Anzio.

On Dec. 26, 1944, Ware was serving as the battalion commander of 1st Battalion, 15th Infantry where he led a small element of his battalion forward to destroy or capture four machine-gun positions. After being wounded, along with half of his small element of Soldiers, Ware held the positions until his battalion was able to occupy the area. He received the Medal of Honor for his actions.

Maj. Gen. Ware died on Sept. 13, 1968, when his helicopter was shot down by Vietnamese forces.

Battalion stands ready to enhance division's intelligence-related capabilities

Spc. Duke Edwards
3rd Infantry Division

The 3rd Infantry Division welcomed the 103rd Intelligence and Electronic Warfare Battalion with a standup ceremony, Sept. 16 on Fort Stewart.

The 103rd Intelligence and Electronic Warfare Battalion will provide multi-domain intelligence collection efforts to 3rd ID and enhance the division's intelligence-related capabilities.

Originally known as the 103rd Military Intelligence Battalion, the unit was first organized on September 16, 1981, and resulted from the direct merger of the 851st Army Security Agency Company and the 3rd Military Intelligence Company.

In 1996, the 103rd Military Intelligence Battalion, along with the 3rd Infantry Division, relocated to Fort Stewart, Georgia, until its inactivation in 2004 due to modular force structure changes in the U.S. Army. Soldiers of the 103rd participated in Operation Iraqi Freedom (OIF-1), the seizure of Saddam International Airport, and the Battle of Fallujah.

The battalion's reactivation is part of ongoing force modernization efforts aimed at ensuring 3rd ID is ready to face near-peer threats on a modern battlefield.

"It's an absolute game changer," said Col. David E. Violand, commander of 525th Expeditionary Military Intelligence Brigade. "We bring capacity that does not exist inside of the division. So it gives the division commander a new set of collection capacity and analytic capacity to better understand what the enemy looks like and how he can apply his resources to get after defeating that enemy."

Violand added that this battalion is part of a larger Army transformation that recognizes changing global threats, the need to re-focus on large-scale combat operations, and the necessity of keeping pace with adversaries.

The command team for the 103rd IEW now consists of Lt. Col. Marcus O'Neal, commander of the 103rd IEW, and Command Sgt. Maj. Nam Nguyen, senior enlisted advisor for the 103rd IEW battalion.

"They are very excited," O'Neal said. They understand the history of the 103rd, and what the 103rd means to the 3rd Infantry Division. So they are excited."

O'Neal also said his Soldiers understand the importance they will play for the 3rd ID and are ready for the challenges to come.

"You'll see a lot of Soldiers with their chest out and their head up," O'Neal said. "They understand what the Army needs them to do and they are ready to take on that mission. We look forward to providing 3rd Infantry Division modernized and lethal intelligence that will ensure success on the battlefield."

MARNE AIR ELEVATES TRAINING TO NEW HEIGHTS

Sgt. Aaliyah Craven
3rd Sustainment Brigade

Soldiers assigned to the Forward Support Medical Platoon, Charlie Company, 2nd Battalion, 3rd General Support Aviation Battalion, 3rd Combat Aviation Brigade, provided simulated medical evacuations in support of the 14th Field Hospital validation exercise, Sept. 7-19 on Fort Stewart.

To continuously support the 14th FH the FSMP stayed in the field, along with their aircrafts.

"Anytime we go to the field we're always bringing our helicopters with us, I mean in aviation you don't go anywhere without your aircraft," said Cpl. Nicholas Barnes, a UH-60 helicopter repairer assigned to Charlie Company. "Sometimes you'll be in the field, but you'll be stationed at the hangars where you're not actually in the field."

Having an FSMP placed next to the hospital gave opportunities for the 14th FH to utilize and practice 9-line MEDEVACs and get familiar with how to move around a helicopter.

"Not everybody who works in a field hospital, or role two, knows how to properly utilize MEDEVAC or how to act around a helicopter that is actually spinning and the capabilities of what we are able to do in the aircraft," said Sgt. Ricardo Hernandez, a combat medic assigned to Charlie Company.

During the validation exercise the FSMP performed multiple medical evacuations with simulated casualties. The MEDEVAC crews in most scenarios were the first to respond and provide care to the simulated casualties.

The 14th FH validation exercise provided the MEDEVAC crews the opportunity to train and stay mission ready by putting them through challenges that mirror those they may face in real life scenarios.

"It's one of those things where the more you do it, the better you get at it," Barnes said. "The quicker we are able to get to the site of the emergency the faster we can get the patient to the health care that they need."

Being able to provide medical evacuations gives patients a better chance of survival, whereas with ground transportation it may take longer for them to receive medical care. The MEDEVAC Soldiers pushed through many different simulated medical scenarios to test their knowledge and capabilities.

The MEDEVAC Soldiers conducted numerous medical evacuation calls and had the opportunity to simulate on ground medical care and care while in the aircraft.

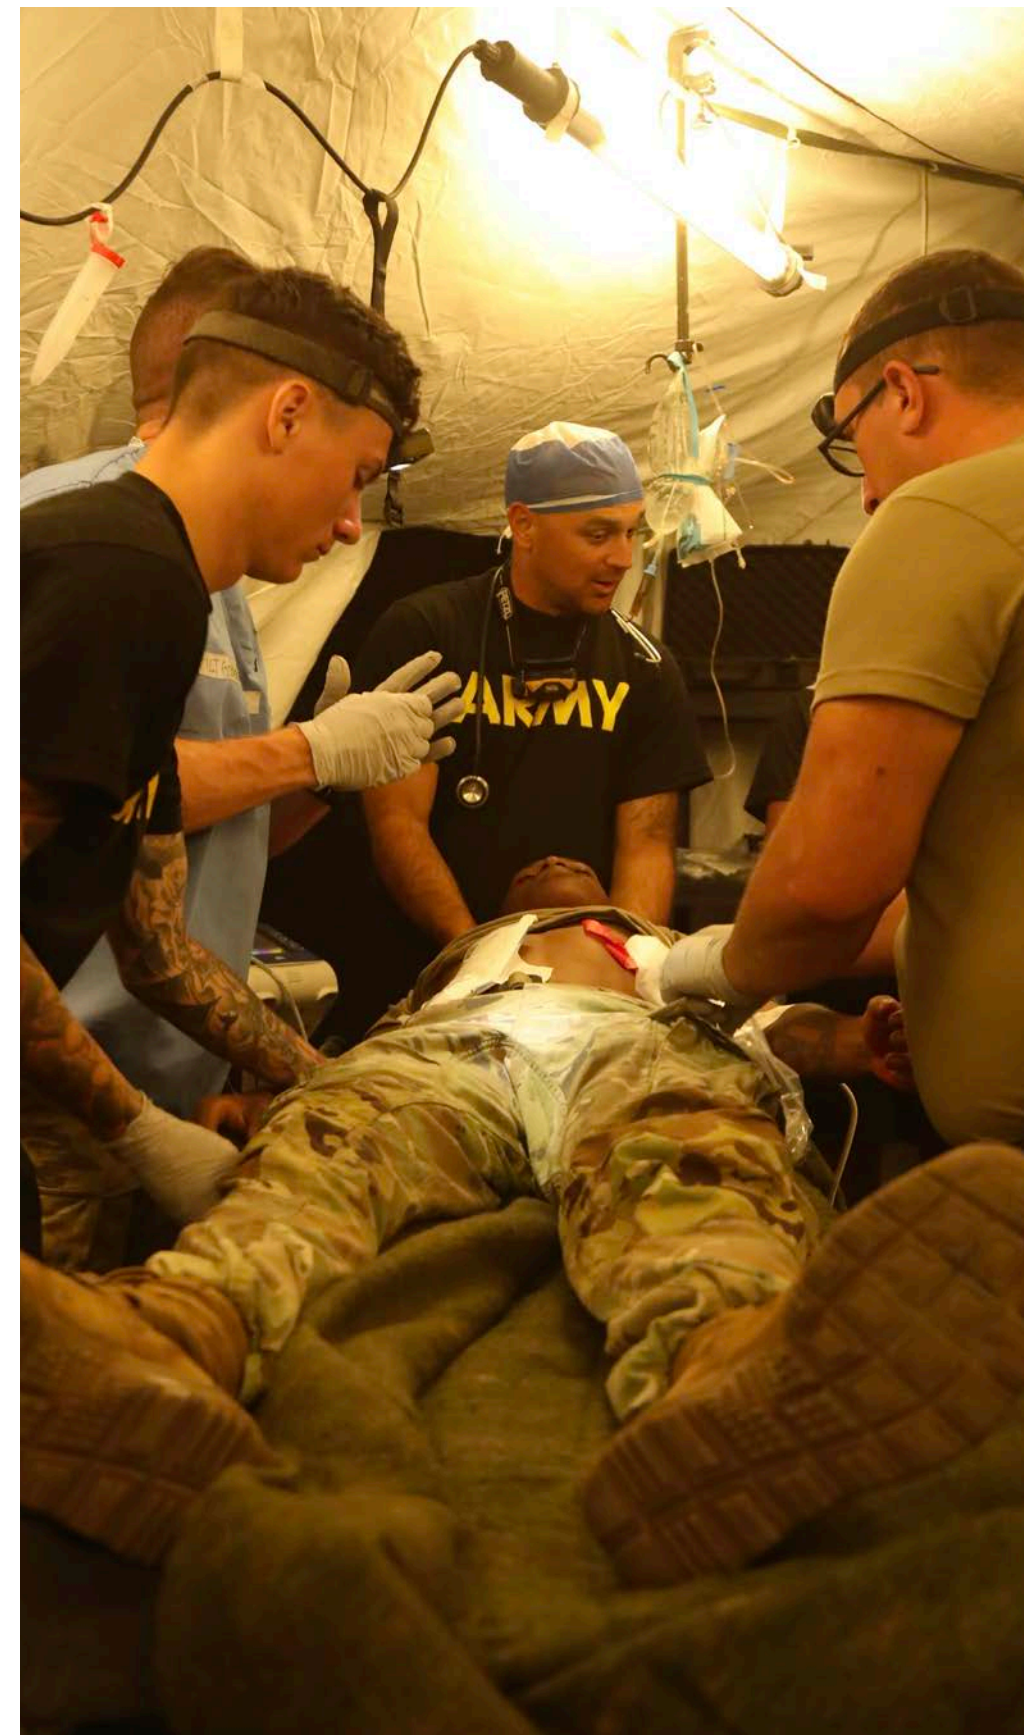

Being attached to the 14th FH allowed the 3rd CAB Soldiers to conduct numerous medical evacuation calls and receive training that is not very common. During the training medical personnel on the aircraft had the opportunity to simulate on ground medical care and care while in the aircraft. Medical personnel also had the opportunity to perform aid to cadavers.

"It's nice for us being in the MEDEVAC community, that may or may not have deployed, to work with the role two and the role three, and then actually getting real life cadavers for training for the medics in the back," Mills said.

Not only were there obstacles for the MEDEVAC Soldiers to overcome but the pilots also had to deal with the weather conditions and the landing zones. Being able to fly in clear safe weather was a constant factor to the crew.

"The challenges that we face are coordination with internal dark crews, communication with the different hospitals, role two ground forces, how fast can we get there and the challenges en route," said Chief Warrant Officer 2 Matthews Mills, a flight chief assigned to Charlie Company.

Continuous training and developing FSMP Soldiers sets them up for success in providing the best medical care they can as they provide real world support to Fort Stewart's training areas.

Brig. Gen. Kevin Lambert, the Deputy Commanding General– Maneuver for 3rd Infantry Division, delivers remarks to retirees, families, and distinguished guests during the Retiree Appreciation Day event at Club Stewart, Sept. 16 on Fort Stewart.

Retirees connect with installation during appreciation day event

Pfc. Bernabe Lopez III
3rd Infantry Division

“We consider you Soldiers for life,” said Brig. Gen. Kevin Lambert, the Deputy Commanding General– Maneuver for 3rd Infantry Division. “We are grateful for the foundation you laid for us... and our goal is to honor your legacy.”

The Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield Retirement Services Office hosted a Retiree Appreciation Day at Club Stewart, Sept. 16 on Fort Stewart, to gather and honor retirees of the U.S. military and inform them of various retirement programs that could assist them for the future. The retirement programs include healthcare, finance and veterans groups. RAD gives retirees the opportunity to ask questions about these programs and be guided in the direction that will benefit them.

The RAD is also a day to show appreciation to retirees who served in the U.S. military.

“It is the day in which we show appreciation to the men and women who have served and give them updates on their privileges, rights and benefits,” said Anna Taylor, the Chief Retirement Service Officer for Fort Stewart. “We give them the most up-to-date information, foster goodwill, and ensure Soldiers are always available because you want to bring your community alongside the men and women who served.”

The event is held annually but this was the first time since 2020 that RAD was held in person.

“This is the first one that we’re going back to in person,”

Taylor said. “There was a need for it because so much time had gone by where we hadn’t provided an appreciation day.”

A small percentage of Americans serve in the military and an even smaller amount serve until retirement, so it’s important for RAD to help retirees feel appreciated and gain helpful knowledge to assist them in their lives.

“We want to have a successful event where our retired Soldiers come out and feel appreciated,” Taylor said. “That they have taken some value from what we’ve put together... and that each person can take something away they didn’t know.”

The Retirement Services Office invited different vendors to provide new knowledge and experiences for retirees.

“Every year we have different presenters come in,” said Julie Lovelady, the Assistant Retirement Service Officer. “We do this every year for them because there’s so many different vendors that we have here... and we try to get somebody different to come talk to the retirees [about] what’s new, what’s happening.”

Not only will vendors assist with informing retirees on what they can provide, but they also lay out the steps and best approaches to take.

“A lot of people wonder, ‘Hey, what happens [now]? What should I do? Who do I call?’ So we’ll have all that information there for them,” Taylor said. “They’ll walk away being more knowledgeable.”

For RAD, it is a continuous learning experience not only for retirees, but for event planners as well to figure out new ways to help everyone involved.

A vendor gives an attendee information on their benefits during Retiree Appreciation Day, Sept. 16 at Club Stewart on Fort Stewart.

“After every event, we do an after action review,” Taylor said. “We have comment cards at the event where people can leave their thoughts... and we take all that into consideration on how we can improve. If we need to improve, what would the community like to see differently?”

At the end of the day, the goal for hosting Retiree Appreciation Day is to honor retirees’ legacy of selfless service.

“[The] number one thing is to honor our retirees,” Lovelady said. “That’s what this is about. It’s about them, not about us.”

Holistic health event focuses on suicide prevention

Capt. Nancy Hausterman
2nd ABCT
Commentary

“A very high level of participation and engagement,” was the overall feedback received from Soldiers, providers and facilitators during last week’s Spartan Foundational Day training.

It is National Suicide Prevention Month and Fort Stewart’s Spartan Brigade, 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, showed commitment to the Army’s objective of zero suicides by participating in holistic health and fitness training, Sept. 9. The objective of this event was for leaders to engage with Soldiers and strengthen the Soldier’s ability to use the support of the embedded behavioral health team and others on the installation who are here to support their resiliency and wellness. The outcome goals for our Spartans were to be aware of and educate others about ways to prevent suicide and substance misuse and the abundant resources within reach at Fort Stewart.

Spartan leaders balanced between meeting mission requirements and allocating time and space for their Soldiers to learn ways to improve holistic fitness. They recognized that improving Soldiers’ coping skills to combat stress is as important as certifying their gunnery proficiency, resulting in being physically fit, expertly trained and mentally tough.

“The Spartan Foundational Day integrating H2F and suicide prevention training was timely for the Panther Battalion’s upcoming intensive training cycle,” said 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, 2nd ABCT, 3rd ID, operations noncommissioned officer, Sgt. Maj. Adolfo F. Dominguez. “The training will individually test the stress coping mechanisms of [our] Soldiers and possibly identify areas for growth. The hope is that the foundational day integrated training allows Panthers to be educated on the resources, life skills and tools available to them for the ongoing development of individual resilience, which then strengthens the whole team.”

The 2nd ABCT medical operations officer and planner, 1st Lt. Patrick Patterson, planned and coordinated with other battalion medical officers to ensure all training objectives were met. Overall, a team of 40 experts came together to ensure the training was successful.

Representatives included the unit ministry team; counselors from the Military and Family Life Counseling Program; Soldiers certified in master resiliency training; Substance Use Disorder Clinical Care, and behavioral health providers. Ready and Resilient Performance Center representatives and the Army Substance Abuse Program, were also on hand during the event.

During the training, each discipline had an opportunity to introduce their team members and provide an overview of their capabilities and how they can help Spartans reduce stress and optimize their performance. For instance, Spartan Soldiers and leaders were informed that R2 Performance trainers can provide training that is tailored to fit their needs, such as delivering team building training in the field.

Emily Thompson, an R2 Performance trainer reflected, “It was a great opportunity for the Soldiers to learn a bit more about the available resources and how we can assist in overall readiness.”

During the training provided by the MFLC, Anya Montefiore, the Spartans were surprised to learn that MFLC capabilities include support in understanding the real causes of stress, changing to healthier habits and understanding important elements of resolving conflicts.

“To understand a Soldier’s protective factors, we must start with one basic concept – knowing those in our squad, platoon, and company,” Montefiore said. “We have to empower those around to see themselves as worthy but also understand that sometimes this is a challenge based on past and current experiences.” Wright and her team also encouraged Soldiers to “create a social circle where they can be open, vulnerable, and willing to ask and receive help.”

At the end of the training, each command team participated in two vignettes that were based on real-life cases with prompts to facilitate a discussion with Behavioral Health providers.

The discussion-based format provided opportunity to test our Soldiers’ knowledge about warning signs and risk factors that are associated with suicide attempts.

Michael Ohama, the battalion chaplain for 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor Regiment, 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, discusses spiritual and emotional fitness as part of the brigade’s foundational day training on suicide awareness/intervention, Sept. 9 on Fort Stewart.
