Installation earns Commander in Chief's award

Kevin Larson

Fort Stewart Public Affairs

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield is a winner of the 2019 Commander in Chief's Annual Award for Installation Excellence.

The Department of Defense announced the recipients today. The Commander in Chief's Annual Award for Installation Excellence recognizes the outstanding and innovative efforts of the people who operate and maintain U.S. military installations. The installation's status as 2019 Army Communities of Excellence gold winner was a prerequisite to compete for the DoD award.

Stewart-Hunter garrison commander Col. Jason Wolter said the support of the southeast Georgia communities helped secure both wins. He thanked the communities for their support at an ACOE ceremony hosted by Maj. Gen. Lee Quintas, the 3rd Infantry Division commander and installation senior commander, on May 28.

"Without your commitments, we could not be where we are today," Wolter said. "You're an outstanding community that exhibits the support necessary to meet the unmatched readiness of your Army today. There's no place other than Fort Stewart or Hunter Army Airfield our Soldiers would rather call home. We could be here all night talking about the things you do for Soldiers without asking for recognition."

To win the Commander in Chief's award, installations compete on how well they achieve the department's objectives in several areas of installation management, including mission support, energy conservation, quality of life and unit morale, environmental stewardship, real property management, safety, health and security, communications and public relations.

Excellent installations enable better mission performance and enhance the working and living conditions for military men and women, DOD civilians and their families. Each of the winning installations succeeded at being the best in achieving excellence in performing installation management within their military service and the Defense Logistics Agency.

Each winning installation will receive a commemorative trophy and flag and a congratulatory letter from the president.

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield has won the Army Communities of Excellence gold seven times, in 2004, 2005, 2006, 2009, 2012, 2015 and 2019.

Quintas farewells community at ACOE ceremony

Master Sgt. Shelia L. Cooper
3rd ID Public Affairs

Maj. Gen. Leopoldo A. Quintas, commander of the 3rd Infantry Division and senior commander of Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield, farewelled the community during the Army Communities of Excellence award ceremony, May 28 at Club Stewart on Fort Stewart.

The Department of the Army named Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield as the winner for the 2019 Army Communities of Excellence award earlier this year, making it the seventh time the installation won the award.

"To be recognized for the seventh time is really a true mark of excellence," said Quintas. "We are very proud of this achievement. It is a comprehensive look and is truly a great achievement to be recognized as the best."

Quintas and key leaders accepted the ACOE award and thanked the community for their long-standing partnership to the Soldiers and Families who work on the installation.

"All the communities around here have been strong supporters of Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield for decades," said William Cathcart, Civilian Assistant to the Secretary of the Army. "This award is important from the standpoint of the Army, like all military services, they want to station their people and add missions where they are wanted, accepted and supported by the community."

Cathcart stated that the community support from Hinesville to Savannah is universally strong and committed to partnership and excellence.

"This great award enhances the pride that community residences feel for Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield," Cathcart said.

Quintas said the relationship with the community has never been better.

"In my 33 years in the U.S. Army, I have never seen it better, than what we have seen here at Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield," Quintas said. "There is no better community to be part of than the coastal Georgia community."

Quintas who changed command earlier this week, served three tours at Fort Stewart and considers the coastal Georgia area home.

"This has been the greatest professional honor of my 33-year career," said Quintas. "To have been able to serve as commanding general of the 3rd Infantry Division and the senior commander of Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield, it has been an honor."

Quintas, who deployed the division headquarters to Afghanistan in the summer of 2017, said it was one of the most memorable moments as a commander.

"It was an honor to be able to deploy a good part of the division to Afghanistan and conduct operations there on behalf of the nation," said Quintas. "It has also been an honor to partner with the Georgia National Guard and promote this idea of the Total Force Integration, which prepared them for their mission to deploy to Afghanistan."

Every brigade under his leadership has deployed in support of contingency operations and redeployed back to Stewart-Hunter.

"Some of the most important things I will always remember, was preparing our Soldiers to go into harm's way," Quintas said. "We took them through very difficult training to make sure they were fully prepared. And we prepared their Families for the deployment too. I also made it a point to be at every flight departing to deploy into harm's way. I wanted to look every Soldier in the eye, shake their hands and wish them the very best."

Seeing the Soldiers off to deploy is one thing. But Quintas also made it a point to be at every welcome home ceremony for units redeploying back to Stewart.

"Another important moment for me is when I shake their [Soldiers] hands as they come off of the plane," said Quintas. "I think success on the battlefield is about mastering the fundamentals. It's not about echelons of planning and maneuver, it's about fundamentals things like marksmanship, first aid, and communication. If you focus on lethality, being a Soldier and providing good sound leadership, it gives us the competitive edge on the battlefield."

During his tenure as the division commander, the division, brigades, and battalions completed complex multi-echelon training exercises to include three Warfighter exercises, rotations at the National Training Center and the Joint Readiness Training Center, several emergency deployment readiness exercises, hurricane and chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear defense response missions and southwest border security.

"This division is born out of a legacy of grit and determination which makes a difference," said Quintas. "Having come from a division that has been focused on building warfighting readiness that has deployed a brigade to Korea and the division headquarters, sustainment and combat aviation brigade to Afghanistan, I come with an element of experience and perspective that will help the Forces Command commander," Quintas said.

After commanding the 3rd ID for two years, Quintas relinquished his role as commander to Maj. Gen. Antonio A. Aguto. (See related story on Page 10.)

Quintas will continue to serve the country as the deputy commanding general for U.S. Army Forces Command at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Constanta, Romania -- A school field trip took place outside Mihail Kogalniceanu Air Base throughout the week of May 27-31 with volunteers from the Romanian, Italian, and U.S. Armed forces.

Each armed force brought equipment to show the children, giving them the opportunity to explore inside UH-60 helicopters, a military police vehicle, fire trucks, and an M1070 Heavy Equipment Transport system.

"The importance of this is the community relations," said Staff Sgt. Jeffery Laird, with the 396th Composite Truck Company, 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division, from Fort Stewart, Georgia. "We are out here building bonds and a stable relationship with the community."

From the local community, roughly four thousand students have come to the event hosted by Constanta's international airport.

"I've seen a lot of excitement out here, and I think the children like the Blackhawk helicopter the most," he said. "But once they get up in the truck and see how high they are, put the [Army combat helmet] on and get behind the wheel, I think they like that a lot too."

Laird was in charge of the M1070 Heavy Equipment Transport system. He and his team helped children walk over the catwalk and safely dismount the vehicle. Children tried on different gear, such as fire protection jackets and helmets. They also got to trigger the siren and speak into the megaphone in the military police vehicle, which was also on display.

"We have been introducing them into what we do and our presence here," said Spc. Sinaed Engleman, with Army Reserves unit 313th MP Detachment, a native of Fairbanks, Alaska. "[We are] out here just interacting with these kids so they are comfortable when they see us."

While the kids got to explore the inside and outside of the various vehicles, they were also fascinated by many of the uniforms and personal equipment used by the service members.

The volunteers could tell the children were excited to be there and probably had never done anything like this before. Most of the kids at the event were elementary to middle school ages.

The event was not only fun for the children but also for the Soldiers attending. Many of the Soldiers were reminded of their own children during their time volunteering.

"Reminds me of home a little bit, which is why I enjoy it," Laird said.

The interoperability between allied nations was extended to more than just the military this week, and the community showed their support by coming to see the multinational forces at the airfield.

"We're here as a peaceful mission to interact with the children, Laird said. "I know they like getting in the equipment, meeting us, and taking their little selfies, and I believe the children are really enjoying this. And I am having a good time out here doing this myself."

A Soldier with 396th CTC, 3IDSB, 3rd ID, helps a Romanian child walk down a M1070 Heavy Equipment Transport catwalk May 30 at Mihail Kogalniceanu Airport, Romania. The event hosted by U.S., Italian and Romanian Armed Forces, gave the children a chance to see and interact with real military aircraft, vehicles and equipment and was also a good opportunity for military personnel to meet the locals.

2018 Water Quality Report

Where does my water come from?

Fort Stewart’s main water supply comes from six municipal groundwater wells that are no less than 500 feet deep, while Hunter Army Airfield residents are serviced by four 500-foot deep wells and one 1100-foot deep well. Groundwater is stored in permeable rock layers called aquifers, which are like underground lakes. Our groundwater is supplied by the Floridan Aquifer. Before the water is distributed, the water is chlorinated to kill disease-causing organisms and fluoridated to promote dental health.

Georgia Water Restrictions

Georgia has received significant rainfall over the past year. However, the state still restricts outdoor water use to conserve our water resources. Homes and businesses with odd-numbered addresses may water on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays and even numbered or unnumbered addresses water on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays from 12 midnight to 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. to midnight. All outdoor water use is prohibited on Fridays.

Source Water Assessment

A source water assessment has been performed on the source of your drinking water (the Floridan Aquifer). The wellhead protection plans on Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield were developed to determine the susceptibility of contaminants entering our drinking water supply and to better identify ways for protecting our water source. For further information, a copy of these wellhead protection plans may be reviewed at the Fort Stewart Environmental Office, 1550 Veterans Parkway at building 1137 on Fort Stewart. The point of contact is Stanley Thomas at 767-2010.

Vulnerability

Both the U.S. Army Medical Department Activity Preventive Medicine and the Directorate of Public Works on Fort Stewart, continually monitor the drinking water for contaminants. Our water is safe to drink; however, some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immunocompromised persons such as those with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. The Environmental Protection Agency and Center for Disease Control guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 800-426-4791.

Conserving our Water Supply

Everyday throughout the world, nations are facing water problems in terms of both quantity and quality. Between 1950 and 1970, global water demand tripled and is expected to double within 35 years. Although 75% of the earth is covered by water, only 1% is available as renewable fresh water, and only about one-third of all precipitation that falls on the land goes back to the oceans by rivers and runoff. We are a nation whose water needs are rapidly rising while available supplies are shrinking; regional water crises are becoming increasingly frequent as water tables are falling and stream flow is decreasing. We can no longer take our drinking water for granted. This means that individuals, municipalities, industries, and governments must be proactive in conserving and protecting our water supplies. The consequences of recurring long duration droughts are far-reaching, affecting wildlife, vegetation, and humans. Additionally, drought impacts on society are often exacerbated by the demand that people place on the water supply. Water is one of the most precious commodities we have on this planet; we ought not to treat it as if it were an unlimited resource. By shifting our priorities for water usage, we can prevent water scarcity. The well has run dry in many places—let’s not make our community next!

Protecting your Water Source

DPW is pleased to present Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield’s Annual Water Quality Report (Water System Identification CG1790024 and CG0510107, respectively). Our water is safe to drink. This report provides you with a detailed account of all water monitoring and testing results gathered in 2018 confirming the Installation’s good water quality. As always, we’ve met our goal to provide our patrons with safe and dependable drinking water. Additional copies of this report are available at the Installation’s Environmental Offices: Fort Stewart, building 1137 and Hunter Army Airfield at building 615.

The sources of drinking water (both tap and bottled) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the land or through the ground, it can dissolve naturally-occurring minerals. Therefore, water can pick up substances as by-products from both the presence of animals and human activities. Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

- Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria that may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.
- Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial and domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, or mining and farming activities.
- Pesticides or herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban runoff, and residential uses.
- Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals (VOCs), which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and they can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff and septic systems.
- Radioactive contaminants, which can be either naturally-occurring or the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water, which provide the same public health protection. Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling EPA’s Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 800-426-4791. ## State Required Monitoring Frequencies

Only EPA approved laboratory methods are used to analyze your drinking water. Our personnel take water samples from numerous locations throughout the distribution system and residential taps; samples are then delivered to an accredited laboratory where water quality analyses are performed. At a minimum, samples are analyzed as follows:

Parameter	Fort Stewart Monitoring Frequency	Hunter Army Airfield Monitoring Frequency
Biological Contaminants	Once a month	Once a month
Volatile Organic Contaminants (VOCs)	Once every 3 years	Once every 3 years
Synthetic Organic Contaminants (SOCs)	Waived	Waived
Inorganic Contaminants (IOCs)	Once every 3 years	Once every 3 years
Lead and Copper	Once every 3 years	Once every 3 years
Nitrates/Nitrites	Once every year	Once every year
Total Trihalomethanes (TTHM)	Once a quarter	Once every 3 years
Unregulated Contaminants	Approx. once every 3 yrs	Approx. once every 3 yrs

Terms and Abbreviations:

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG): Level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL): Highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water.

MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Action Level (AL): The concentration of a contaminant which, when exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

ppm: Parts per million; a unit of measure equivalent to a single penny in $10,000.

ppb: Parts per billion; a unit of measure equivalent to a single penny in $10,000,000.

TTHM: Total Trihalomethanes; by-products of drinking water disinfection.

Range: The range of the highest and lowest analytical values of a reported contaminant. For example, the range of an unregulated contaminant may be 10.1 (lowest value) to 13.4 (highest value). EPA requires the range to be reported for certain analytes.

n/d- Not Detected.; n/a- Not applicable; pos- Positive for the presence.

TT: Treatment Technique.

MRDL: Maximum Residual Disinfection Level.

MRDLG: Maximum Residual Disinfection Level Goal.

LRAA: Locational Running Annual Average. The average of samples taken at a particular monitoring location during the previous four calendar quarters.

Questions. Any concerns can be addressed at our quarterly Environmental Quality Control Committee meetings. You may contact the Environmental Division at 912-767-2010 for the next scheduled meeting.

Familiar face takes command

Staff Sgt. Brian K. Ragin, Jr.
3rd ID Public Affairs

Soldiers, Family members, friends, past and future Dogface Soldiers gathered on a hot Georgia Summer day on Cottrell Field, Fort Stewart to witness the 3rd Infantry Division change of command on June 3.

Maj. Gen. Leopoldo A. Quintas, Jr. relinquished command of the Marne Division to Maj. Gen. Antonio A. Aguto, Jr., after 25 months command.

Aguto returns to the Division, after commanding 2nd Battalion, 64th Armor Regiment, 3rd Id while the unit was still in Germany.

The presiding officer for the ceremony was Gen. Michael X. Garret, commanding general of Army Forces Command. He shared his personal views and thoughts of the two commanders giving sound advice to Quintas, who is scheduled to take over as his deputy at FORSCOM later this summer.

"For those of you who haven't heard today's ceremony is also something of a swap meet," said Garret. "3rd Infantry Division, the loss of your commander today is my gain, Maj. Gen. Quintas will soon see a lot more of me as he joins the FORSCOM team as deputy commanding general."

Garret thanked Quintas and his wife Lori for their service to the 3rd ID Soldiers, Families and the community. Under Quintas' command the Marne Division achieved many accomplishments and garnered many accolades.

"I've been a Soldier since I was a brand new second lieutenant in 3rd Battalion, 63rd Armor Regiment, 3rd ID more than 32 years ago in Kitzingen, Germany," said Quintas. "There is no greater honor than to be a Dogface Soldier, so rather than review the many accomplishments of the division over the last two years, and there are many. I'm going to tell you what it means to be a Dogface Soldier."

Quintas went on to tell the story of Audie Murphy and said Dogface Soldiers are our competitive advantage in any conflict and will assure their victory, and he is very proud to have been counted among them.

Executed flawlessly the division's ceremony continued. The Marne Division's Band played symphonies that the crowd enjoyed as they watched the Division's colors pass from Command Sgt. Maj. Michael J. Coffey, the division's senior enlisted advisor, to Quintas, to Garret and finally to Aguto.

"I am awestruck and at a loss of words looking out at the mighty formation in front of us today," said Aguto. "Dogface Soldiers you have once again made this Division, and it's legacy proud. Thanks for what you and your Families do for each other every day."

JAMRS crew tours post

Kevin Larson
Fort Stewart Public Affairs

A six-person crew from the Department of Defense's Joint Advertising, Market Research and Studies office recently visited Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield for a two-day scouting trip to meet Soldiers and tour locations for an upcoming film shoot here later this month.

The team spent time with several Soldiers and Families to determine who would be the best fit to appear in the recruiting films. The crew also visited the Marne Bistro dining facility, the USO, the veterinary clinic, the Post Exchange, commissary and several Family, Morale, Welfare and Recreation facilities, including Holbrook Pond and the Corkan splash park.

The DoD team will return in greater numbers June 18-21 to film selected locations, Soldiers and Families.

The films will appear on the Today's Military website, www.TodaysMilitary.com. The website is produced by the DoD as a resource for young adults, parents and educators curious about military service. This site is not intended as a recruiting tool for any one branch of the U.S. military. Instead, it paints an accurate picture of what it's like to work, live and serve in the U.S. military.

The website features interviews with active-duty service members who provide genuine insight into the challenges and rewards of service.

If you are a Soldier in the rank of major or below, and are interested in supporting the Army as talent for the film, contact Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield Public Affairs at 435-9872 or email, kevin.m.larson.civ@mail.mil.

WINN BRIEFS

Grief recovery

A perinatal loss grief recovery and support group began meeting in the Winn Army Community Hospital chapel in April. This group meets twice per month on the first and third Tuesday and is for anyone that has experienced miscarriage or perinatal loss. The group run a continuous six session cycle. This group is hosted by a chaplain and a member of our mother/baby unit. If you have questions or would like to register for the group please contact douglas.yoder3.mil@mail.mil or 210-0415, or contact Lt. Col. Dorene Owen at dorene.a.owen.mil@mail.mil.

EMS: Answering the call on your worst day

Kaytrina Curtis

Winn ACH Public Affairs

Nestled between the Army Wellness Clinic and the Level 4 trauma designated Winn Army Community Hospital, the U. S. Army Medical Department Activity-Fort Stewart ambulance office and shelter sits.

Just inside its doors are a few of Fort Stewart's 24 first responders, who after completing a 24-hour shift greet the next shift of emergency medical technicians, paramedics and combat medic Soldiers.

"In this job nobody ever calls 911 on their best day," said MEDDAC Paramedic, Jim Luck.

A few minutes later, a call from the radio cut through the silence, "Assault with injuries." At once, MEDDAC AOS emergency medical services technicians and paramedics methodically prepare to answer the plea for help.

The proud wail of two ambulance sirens and blazoned strobe lights help the first responders maneuver through the on-post traffic. This call is one in approximately seven they receive each day.

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield women and men first responders remain ready to provide the highest quality of healthcare to Soldiers, Family Members and those in the surrounding communities.

Vito Powers, a paramedic and retired Soldier with more than 24 years' experience in the medical services field as a flight paramedic, said his role at AOS is a "most noble" profession, one of which he takes seriously.

"You are afforded the opportunity to save lives in the defense of our nation and in the face of our enemies," Powers lamented.

Uniquely, the medical services section has the opportunity to partner with Stewart-Hunter combat medic Soldiers on a 90-day rotational basis. This collaboration gives the Soldiers additional readiness training, while helping fill empty positions.

Spc. Paul Abante, a 1st Armor Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division Soldier was at the end of his three-month training and commented on the differences.

"On the line we are just taking care of our guys," Abante said about serving in his unit, "and they are completely different from civilians. The biggest difference to me was being able to actually see what we do in the back of an ambulance... I got to actually put all my skills to use. We want to see how well we can deliver under pressure and doing that here, was amazing."

Art Rincones, an emergency medical technician with more than a combined 40 years of military and civilian service under his belt, said mentorship is an important aspect of his career.

"They [Soldiers] get the chance to see the other side of EMS and hospital care," Rincones explained. "A lot of them have said they would like to go on, continue on with medical care, even possibly going into EMS."

Luck said the chance of seeing people's lives impacted in a "horribly negative way," is high, and a strong support system is important for longevity.

"The ability to deal with that [witnessing traumas], to process that is extremely important for long-term mental health," Luck said. "So we try to develop a group where they would feel free to talk to each other and reach out to each other, but it's still a struggle."

Luck said the camaraderie between him and his coworkers is second to none.

"The reality is that anything that we go through individually in our daily lives, the other guys are always reaching out and saying 'hey, how are you, what's going on, how did it go'...not with just negative things, but with positive things and that's extremely beneficial," Luck said.

So the next time red flashing lights are in the rear-view mirror, pull over, because no matter the call, the Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield EMS team is ready to answer on your worst day.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER: REMEMBERING D-DAY

Maj. John Hubbs

Plans and Operations chaplain

"We do not look at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen. For the things which are seen are temporary, but the things which are not seen are eternal." 2 Corinthians 4:18

This week marks the 75th anniversary of the allied invasion of Normandy in the largest amphibious military operation in history. Almost 7000 vessels deployed across the English Channel, carrying over 280,000 personnel. The amount of planning involved and the man-hours invested in coordinating Operation Neptune was immense.

While most of us are familiar with D-day as a turning point in World War II, fewer know the actual carrying out of the mission rested on one critical decision by General Dwight Eisenhower.

The success of operation was contingent upon several natural conditions. Lunar visibility, reasonably calm waters, and the weather had to be favorable. Postponing the launch would mean a delay of close to two weeks. This would increase the odds of the enemy discovering the plan. Eisenhower had set a tentative date of June for the assault.

Early in the morning of June 4, it appeared as if it would be impossible to execute the plan. However, late that same evening with a storm still visibly raging outside, Scottish meteorologist James Stagg informed Eisenhower that a thirty-six hour window would open up the next night. Stagg was confident of it, but Eisenhower's top advisors were divided. Knowing that the outcome of the entire war possibly rested upon this decision but seeing the driving rain still pouring, Eisenhower trusted Stagg's forecast. D-day was a go.

As I think of the critical moments leading up to the launch of Operation Neptune, I realize that few if any of us will ever be faced with such a colossally important military decision. But the situation General Eisenhower faced is a reminder to us of a decision we do all encounter. The immediate evidence on the night of June 4 suggested that the mission should be canceled. Eisenhower had to put his trust in what he himself could not see, the calm weather promised by Stagg. This is very essence of what is required to be a person of faith.

I have often witnessed or experienced situations that could have prompted me to doubt whether God cares about me or humanity in general. The immediate evidence does not lend support to my belief in a loving, omnipotent God. However, as a Christian I have a chorus of voices reminding me, just like James Stagg reminded Eisenhower, that a better day is ahead. One of those voices, St. Paul, shared this thought with the believers at Corinth, "We do not look at the things which are seen." The most important voice is Jesus himself who, before he faced the darkest day of all, encouraged his followers, "Let not your hearts be troubled... I go and prepare a place for you."

So, I make the decision to remain a believer and bet my life on the hope that despite all the times when evil seems to have the upper hand, the love of God will have the final word.

AAFES program supports AER, AFAF

Sylvia D. Carpenter
AAFES

For the third consecutive year, the Army & Air Force Exchange Service is partnering with Army Emergency Relief and the Air Force Assistance Fund to help service members and military families in need through the Give and Get Back campaign.

From June 14 to 18, the first of three 2019 giving-periods, shoppers can donate to either AER or AFAF at the register at the Fort Stewart-Hunter Exchanges.

For every $5 donated, shoppers will receive an Exchange coupon for $5 off a $25 purchase. Shoppers can also contribute online at ShopMyExchange.com during the donation period and receive a coupon code.

AER and AFAF provide emergency assistance, sponsor educational programs and offer community programs that make life better for service members and their families.

"Exchange shoppers are helping make the Army stronger," said retired Lt. Gen. Raymond V. Mason, AER director. "Soldiers and Families are more ready and resilient when they have support through tough times."

Every dollar given during the Give and Get Back donation period goes to help military members and their families who are facing difficulties.

In the previous two years of the Give and Get Back campaign, Exchange shoppers donated nearly $600,000.

"Army Emergency Relief and the Air Force Assistance Fund are making life better for the military community every day," said Exchange director/CEO Tom Shull. "The Exchange is honored to support the important work of these two amazing organizations."

The June Give and Get Back donation period is in honor of the Army's 244th birthday on June 14. There will be two more giving periods, Sept. 13 to 17 to celebrate the Air Force's birthday on Sept. 18, and Dec. 6 to 10 as part of the holiday shopping season.

Balfour Beatty Communities Foundation awards scholarships to Fort Stewart residents

Special to the Frontline

Fort Stewart Family Homes is pleased to announce that six of its residents, Patricia Jedynak, Allison Boyle, Christian Coffey, Michael Hagerty, Jolie Komlan and Benjamin Shealey, have received scholarships for the 2019/2020 academic year through Balfour Beatty Communities Foundation.

The scholarships will aid Patricia, Allison, Christian, Michael, Jolie and Benjamin in their pursuit of degrees in information technology, drama, aerospace engineering, criminal justice, nursing and environmental science. The annual scholarship program is open to residents throughout Balfour Beatty Communities' residential portfolio, including 55 military housing communities throughout the United States.

"We're consistently amazed by the applicants for this scholarship, and this group is no different. These young residents have shown us such dedication both academically and within their communities," said Kathy Grim, board member of the Balfour Beatty Communities Foundation. "The Foundation is proud to help these students with their education and look forward to the future that they will build. Congratulations to all of this year's scholarship recipients."

The Balfour Beatty Communities Foundation scholarship program awards academic scholarships to residents living in an owned and managed Balfour Beatty Communities community who are attending, or plan to attend, an accredited higher education or technical institution. Scholarship recipients are selected on the basis of academic achievement, demonstrated leadership qualities and a commitment to community involvement. This year, Balfour Beatty Communities Foundation awarded academic scholarships totaling more than $120,000 for the 2019/2020 academic year.

Balfour Beatty Communities Foundation is a non-profit organization which principally focuses on supporting the post-secondary education goals of residents who live in communities owned and managed by Balfour Beatty Communities, LLC. Since the scholarship program's inception in 2009, Balfour Beatty Communities Foundation has awarded more than 400 academic scholarships. The Foundation is also committed to honoring military personnel – active, wounded and fallen – by supporting organizations that assist military service members and/or their families. For more information, visit bbcommunitiesfoundation.org.

Fort Stewart Family Homes is one of more than 30 communities whose residents have received funding, totaling more than $120,000 given across the U.S.

TRICARE available for students, young adults

Special to the Frontline

“Going to college is a big transition,” said Debra Fisher, TRICARE Policy and Benefits Office at the Defense Health Agency. “It’s also a TRICARE Qualifying Life Event, which may open new enrollment opportunities for your student and other Family members.”

Your student’s health care options depend on the location of the college, the sponsor status, and a family’s individual preferences.

If a child is enrolled in TRICARE Prime and is attending college in the same region as the sponsor, he or she may keep the same coverage using the sponsor’s address. Enrollment may also be transferred to the school address.

“TRICARE Prime isn’t available everywhere,” said Fisher, who will speak at the webinar. “TRICARE Prime must be available in the new location, and the student must meet all enrollment criteria to maintain coverage.”

Use the TRICARE Plan Finder to see what health plans may be available in the location of your child’s college. You can also call your TRICARE regional contractor.

What if your student attends college in a different TRICARE region? If your student studies overseas? Will coverage change for children studying in the U.S. with TRICARE Select, TRICARE Prime Remote, or US Family Health Plan? Join the webinar to learn about TRICARE in these situations.

Children who graduate from college or turn age 21 are no longer eligible for regular TRICARE. But they have other health care options, including TRICARE Young Adult.

“After graduating college, your child may have the option to purchase TRICARE Young Adult,” said Shane Pham, a webinar presenter from the DHA TRICARE Policy and Benefits Office. “TRICARE Young Adult is available for purchase for qualifying young adults until age 26.”

TYA coverage includes medical and pharmacy benefits, but excludes dental coverage.

“While young adults may qualify to purchase TRICARE Young Adult coverage, it isn’t their only option,” explained Pham.

Another option for young adults is the Continued Health Care Benefit Program.

This program provides health coverage for an additional 18 to 36 months after losing TRICARE. You can find other health care coverage options through the Health Insurance Marketplace.

To learn more about TRICARE choices for college students and young adults, join the May 30 webinar. A question and answer session follows.

Providers teach, coach, mentor local football team

Sgt. Elizabeth White
31DSB Public Affairs

When the business day is done, parts have been ordered and the last wrench has been turned, most Soldiers hang up their hat, go home and relax. But two Soldiers in the 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade go above and beyond to teach and inspire young athletes in their community.

Staff Sgt. Eddie Peters and Sgt. Adrain Samples, both with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Special Troops Battalion, 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade, coach the Grid Iron Guardians, a football team in Hinesville, Georgia consisting of local kids ages five to 12.

For six years, Samples has been in the Army and has coached children's football teams. He first got into coaching when he was stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas, and, even when he changed duty stations, his affinity for the game inspired him to continue coaching.

"It all started with my son, both my boys love sports. I started helping coach teams when I was at Ft. Riley and it all just trickled from there," he said. "I love coaching, I got passion for the game and I want to pass that on to the kids and make sure they are learning the right way."

Samples is not only bonding with his sons through coaching, he is also fostering stronger teamwork with his battles buddies. Through working together, Peters and Samples discovered their shared love of football and desire to coach. Together, along with eight other Soldiers in their unit, they use what they have learned in the Army to help mentor the players.

"I bring all the respect and loyalty that I have in the Army to [coaching]. I feel like this is a part of my duty," said Peters.

Samples said the Army provided him the ability to organize activities and put things into perspective.

"That way I can focus on the mission and achieve the goal," Samples said.

The Army values of loyalty, duty, respect, selfless service, honor, integrity and personal courage don't end when these sustainment brigade Soldiers take off their uniform. Not only is it unit cohesion, they bring their families together to strengthen teamwork between young athletes using skills they have learned from military service.
