3rd ID celebrates with Marne Week

Special to the Frontline

The 3rd Infantry Division earned its motto as the “Rock of the Marne” in World War I, on the banks of the Marne River, near Chateau-Thierry on July 15, 1918.

When a flanking attack by Germans caused other units to retreat, then 3rd ID commander, Maj. Gen. Joseph Dickman told French allies “Nous Resterons La,” letting the world know, “we shall remain here.”

The stalwart actions there earned the unit the reputation for being the Rock of the Marne; almost six months following the unit’s creation, Nov. 21, 1917 at Camp Greene, North Carolina.

Throughout the unit’s history, the Soldiers of the 3rd ID continued to distinguish themselves with uncommon valor. In fact, 56 individuals from the 3rd ID have been recognized with the Medal of Honor - the nation’s highest award for valor in action against an enemy force which can be bestowed upon an individual serving in the armed forces of the United States.

To celebrate the unit’s history and more than 100 years of service and sacrifice by Soldiers and their Families, the 3rd ID holds its annual Marne Week celebration, Dec. 3-7, at Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield.

Family and friends are encouraged show support and participate in activities.

The week kicks off with a division run, 6:30 a.m. Monday, and continues with sporting and Soldier competitions and Family activities.

During the weeklong celebration, units will be competing for the Commander’s Cup to prove which is the most fit and lethal.

The Commander’s Cup has a number of event categories to challenge team and individual skills and fitness.

Participation and placement in the top four finishers for each category will be awarded points. Medals will also be granted to the top three finishers – gold, silver, and bronze.

The cup events include dodgeball, soccer, volleyball, flag football, tug-o-war, basketball, ultimate Frisbee, swimming relay, Family kickball, Marne’s Got Talent, the Marne Mudder, the Victory Run--a functional fitness challenge, combatives, and the Thornsbery Challenge.

3rd ID completes warfighter

Master Sgt. Shelia L. Cooper
3rd ID Public Affairs

More than 3,000 Soldiers assigned to 3rd Infantry Division participated and provided support during the warfighter exercise 19.2, Nov. 4-15, at Fort Stewart.

The warfighter exercise assessed the emerging capabilities and concepts of working with multinational forces, which enabled testing of the mission partner environment in order to evaluate the Army's interoperability with coalition and joint forces. These assessments help improve overall mission readiness and the division gated strategy.

"It is an every-other-year event," said Lt. Col. Ethan Divens, operations officer in charge for 3rd ID. "It is to train and assess the readiness of the division to deploy and fight."

WFX 19.2 provided multi-echelon training opportunities for III Corps, who is serving as 3rd ID's higher command, along with joint enablers, subordinate units and coalition partners from forts Bliss and Fort Hood in Texas; Fort Bragg, North Carolina; and Fort Stewart, who all participated in the exercise.

During this exercise, 3rd ID took the opportunity to train every echelon through the division.

"From young Soldiers collecting and processing intelligence, executing artillery and logistics but then also leaders planning at every echelon from company to battalion brigade with the main focus being on the division staff," Divens said. "It tests our warfighting skills and our readiness, as well as build and generates readiness because it's a multi-echelon event."

Every section within the division worked together to coordinate and synchronize efforts amongst subordinate unit.

"My role in the warfighter exercise is to assist and advise the commanding general to provide an overall picture and information about what's going on with the subordinate units to make it easier for him to make decisions about the battlefield," said Staff Sgt. Clinton Titus, operations noncommissioned officer with 3rd ID.

Overall, the purpose of this exercise was to train division staff members by utilizing military strategy to maximize training opportunities and increase joint and multinational interoperability while leveraging collective resources that may reduce personnel and resource cost. This is accomplished by using the six-warfighting functions.

These warfighting functions include mission command, protection, sustainment, movement and maneuver, information dominance, intelligence and fires, Divens said.

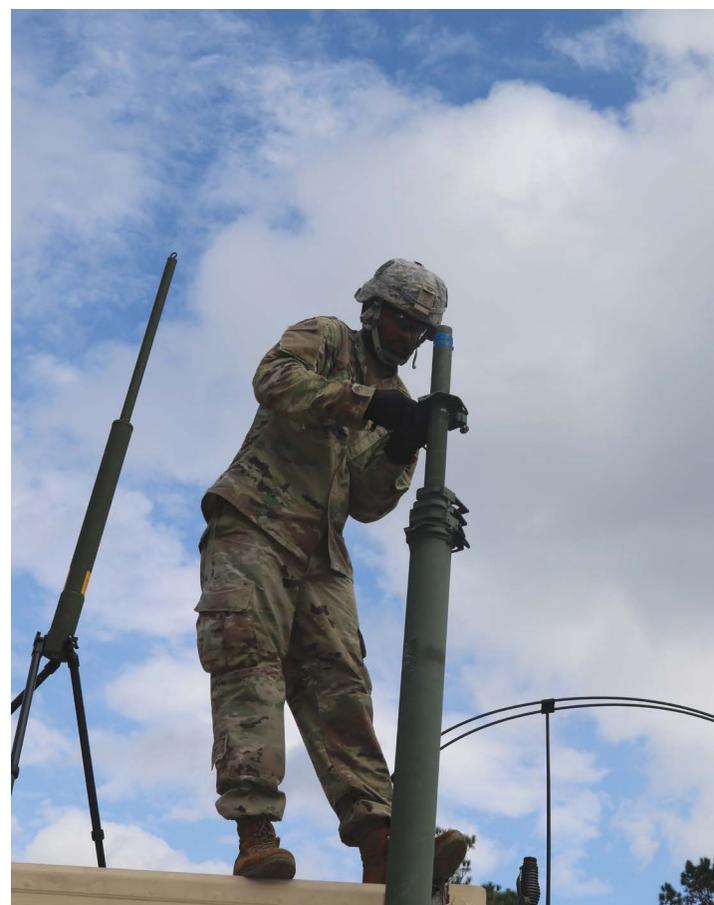

Although most warfighting functions were practiced, some functions stood out more than others.

"We use something called the operations process for activities; plan, prepare, execute, assess, and it stresses us and our leaders to continuously move elements and equipment across the battlefield for a week and a half straight," said Divens. "We have to leverage technology and enable and integrate to all organic subordinate brigades."

As more than 5,700 U.S. troops, to include Air Force elements, came together and used like systems to communicate during the exercise, the Army and 3rd ID employed one system that enabled all participants to work together.

"Our armored brigade combat teams replicated multiple subordinate units in addition to our sustainment brigade, division artillery brigade, and our aviation brigade," said Divens.

This exercise helped Soldiers of all ranks throughout the brigade enhance leadership capabilities by conducting operations that would not normally be done during garrison operations.

Sgt. Ryan Tatum
3rd CAB Public Affairs

Soldiers from 2nd Battalion, 3rd Aviation regiment, 3rd Combat Aviation Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division, conducted sling load operations with 48th Infantry Brigade Combat Team, Nov. 15 at Fort Stewart.

The training enables the 48th IBCT to meet the requirements for their upcoming mission to Afghanistan, while enabling Marne Air Soldiers to maintain unit readiness.

"We supported the 1st Battalion, 118th Field Artillery regiment by airlifting their equipment in order to help them certify their crews during their gunnery tables," said Chief Warrant Officer 2 Andre Teixeira, a CH-47 Chinook pilot for Company B 2-3rd Avn. "The training enables them to conduct the next phase of their gunnery tables which requires their equipment to be airlifted to set firing positions to conduct fire missions."

Marne Air Soldiers were tasked to lift 10 M777 and four M119 howitzers with their CH-47 Chinook 30 feet off the ground for 10 seconds to support the 127 "Hickory's Howitzers" Soldiers in their gunnery table II certification.

"This is preparation for what we are doing next month which is an air raid movement," said Master Sgt. Luther Lewis, an operations noncommissioned officer in charge for 1-118th FA. "The training we are conducting now will be the foundation of our mission in Afghanistan."

Prior to any of the training, the CH-47 Chinook pilots talked to the "Hickory's Howitzers" Soldiers and discussed safety and lift options.

"We looked into our sling load manual for the M777 and M119 howitzer to make sure that we understand what they should look like when they are rigged up," Teixeira said. "How much they are going to weigh to what sling sets are hooked up to them, so we understand what we are getting ourselves into in terms of aircraft performance and torque."

This training is not only for the pilots but the entire crew as well. The manning for an CH-47 Chinook requires two pilots and two crew chiefs.

"Our crew members are giving sling certification sheets from the ground unit but they still go out to look at those to make sure the load is not going to be damaged or damage the belly of the aircraft," said Teixeira. "Maintaining safety throughout the entire training is one of our priorities."

While the pilots take control of the aircraft, nothing else would get done without the crew chiefs making sure they guide the pilots on the load.

"We are the one who call the pilots over the load, call for the hook-up team when they hook up to the cargo hooks and when it is clear we call the aircraft up to pick up the sling load," said Staff Sgt. Benjamin McHugh, a crew chief for Co. B, 2-3 Avn. "We are basically in charge of the aircraft while we are doing any sling load operations."

As sling load operations continued McHugh was able to train his junior soldier in sling load operations.

"This is not my first time doing this type of training, I have been flying for 10 years and I have done it multiple times," said McHugh. "My other crew chief with me was his first time with the M777 and M119 howitzers, he really liked the training and need the training for himself. It gives the pilots and crew members more sound awareness in sling load operation."

Soldiers from 1-118th FA watch as a CH-47 approaches their position as they prepare for sling load operations, Nov. 15 at Fort Stewart.

Soldiers from 703rd Brigade Support Battalion, 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, participated in a military appreciation day Nov. 17 at Doak Campbell Stadium in Tallahassee, Florida, to watch Florida State Seminoles (5-6) take on 20th ranked Boston College Eagles (7-4). Military appreciation day provides Soldiers, retirees, and family members recognition for their selfless service given to the U.S. military.

Before the game, the Soldiers were called in front of the fans and applauded for their service and sacrifice. They also had an opportunity to greet the teams as they took the field.

In turn the Soldiers expressed their appreciation for the game, the fans, and teams as they put on an epic competition.

“Attending the Florida State University football games has always been a tradition in my family since my brother Tre McKitti plays for them,” said Sgt. Trevor Lloyd, a biomedical equipment technician from Company C, 703rd BSB. “This game honored military appreciation recognizing veterans, family, and current Soldiers for their selfless service given to the nation.”

Neither team scored in the first quarter. During the second quarter Boston took a one point lead 7-6. Both teams added seven more in the third quarter making it 14-13 favoring the Eagles. In the final quarter, the Seminoles went on the war path and were able to answer the Eagles seven additional points with nine of their own, to win the game 22-21.

Winn audiologist tunes in readiness

The 48th Infantry Brigade Combat Team, a modular infantry brigade with the Georgia Army National Guard, is committed to maintaining their Soldiers' lethality and survivability while also protecting against hearing loss during combat. As part of this aim, this team participated in training designed to educate the Soldiers of the 48th IBCT on the utilization and implementation of the Tactical Communication and Protective Systems. Maj. Jennifer Noetzel, U.S. Army Medical Department Activity – Fort Stewart audiologist and team lead for the Army hearing program at Fort Stewart, provided audiological support for this training.

“Our focus is really on prevention of hearing loss,” Noetzel said, “[and for Soldiers being able] to maintain operational hearing capabilities in an operational environment and making sure they’re fit for duty.”

During the TCAPS training, Noetzel and the MEDDAC audiological team from Winn Army Community Hospital oversaw a regimented auditory screening process, which included a hearing test and the device fitting. The team was then shown the inner workings of the device and the correct way of assembling and disassembling the TCAP unit. A process that was closely supervised by Noetzel and her team.

“It was really important that we had this kind of hands-on training,” said

Capt. Donna Sanders, 48th IBCT. “The fact that we had all this support and the fact that MEDCOM was listening to the fact that Soldiers wanted something to this level.”

The TCAPS is an advanced hearing apparatus designed to enhance communication and surveillance awareness while also providing incomparable auditory protection for the Soldiers. This is imperative as concise and clear communication on the battlefield may be the difference between life or death.

“Especially in a mission setting, it’s very important considering the fact that there could be so many things going on,” Sanders said. “If I miss one little thing, it could possibly kill Soldiers or it could get myself killed.”

To complete the training, the 48th IBCT utilized the TCAPS hearing system to target and ascertain the location of an exceedingly slight and mobile sound.

“I feel like it heightened my sense of awareness,” Sanders said. “With your regular hearing, you can usually hear what’s going on but, there’s always [like] distraction. With this, I felt like I had more situational awareness, and I had it with more clarity.”

Ultimately, the TCAPs training provides a valuable tactical tool that will protect Soldiers while also ensuring mission readiness. Fort Stewart-MEDDAC’s ability to provide this crucial service will ensure these Soldiers are not only ready for the battlefield but protected from dangers such as hearing loss.

Husqvarna TORO. Performance You Can Count On

Troops receive 150 tons of good eats

Devon L. Suits
Army News Service

WASHINGTON -- Troops protecting the United States' southern border and serving overseas will still get a "taste of home" on Thanksgiving thanks to 300,000 pounds of traditional holiday food transported to field kitchens, dining facilities and galleys around the globe.

Planning for the holiday began in May, according to Rich Faso, deputy director of the Defense Logistics Agency Troop Support's Subsistence supply chain in Philadelphia.

Since most of the food is fresh, the logistical support needed to transport the large quantity of food can be a challenge, especially since most of the food requires some form of cold storage, said Jack Skelly, chief of food services with the Army's G-4 logistics.

"It absolutely improves morale when you can provide a little piece of home to a Soldier when they're far away," Skelly added.

To ensure dining facilities are fully prepared for the holiday, the DLA team worked diligently with regional vendors both locally and around the globe.

This year, service members received:

- 9,738 whole turkeys
- 51,234 pounds of roasted turkey
- 74,036 pounds of beef
- 21,758 pounds of ham
- 67,860 pounds of shrimp
- 16,284 pounds of sweet potatoes
- 81,360 pies
- 19,284 cakes
- 7,836 gallons of eggnog

"All of [U.S. Army Central Command's] food, with very few exceptions, has to come from U.S. sources and moved into the theater," said Sgt. Maj. Kara Rutter, the ARCENT culinary management NCO in charge. "There are also challenges with the quantity of the food that we're getting. When you talk about buying 23,000 pounds of shrimp, obviously that affects the entire market.

"We also have to ensure we're respecting our host nations' cultures. In some countries, we might not be able to serve certain foods because of cultural and religious considerations."

Soldiers operating in isolated locations will also receive a hot Thanksgiving meal, Rutter added, thanks to food service professionals in the U.S. who prepared a series of "Unitized Group Rations," which is "basically a meal in a box."

"Being away from home during the holidays is very difficult," Rutter said. "There are a lot of Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, and Marines who frankly are away from home for their first Thanksgiving, and they are doing some difficult things.

"We want them to be able to take a minute, take a knee, and eat the same type of food that their families are eating 9,000 miles away, all while thinking of them at the same time."

Forestry begins controlled burn season

Amanda Price
DPW Environmental Division

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield's Forestry Branch begins controlled burn season Dec. 1.

Controlled burning is a managed burn that uses low intensity fire to improve and enhance our Soldiers' training lands, clear underbrush to reduce wildfire hazards and improve the wildlife habitat.

As a result of Fort Stewart's aggressive burn program, the number of wildfires has steadily decreased over the past decade. Since 2000, no training days have been lost due to wildfires.

Extensive preparation and work goes into each planned burn. The forestry branch develops burn prescriptions for each area that will be burned during the season. These planned burns may involve burning 500 acres to 2,500 acres per day during the burn season.

Even with planning, the dates of each burn are only estimates as they are dependent upon weather conditions as well as access to military training areas. However, the forestry branch goes to great lengths to ensure the installation and surrounding communities are aware and are up-to-date on any changes to the burn plan.

Forestry monitors weather via the National Weather Service in Charleston, the Georgia Forestry Commission, from five local remote access weather stations located throughout the installation and conducts close observation from at least two of the five fire towers located on the Installation.

Fort Stewart foresters manage smoke impacts from these burns and ensure the safety of residents both in and around the installation. However, there are uncontrollable conditions, such as sudden changes in wind direction and intensity that can cause smoke to drift into surrounding neighborhoods or highways. For this reason, the forestry branch asks residents to be aware of the ongoing burn season and to use extra caution when traveling through areas where smoke may be present.

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield recognizes that our forests and trees are a vital resource to both our present and future missions. Controlled burning is critical to sustaining the environment in which we train, work, live and play as well as preserving it for future generations.

For questions regarding the upcoming controlled burn season, please call 767-2010.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

A season of waiting

Capt. David Dyrenforth
6-8 Cav. Chaplain

Perhaps as soon as the first snow falls to inaugurate a new winter, or perhaps when the first Christmas song is played in a department store, the expectation of Christmas floods our imaginations and fills our lives. The sights, sounds and smells all tell us that Christmas is not as far off as the calendar would indicate. As kids, we trusted the calendar less than our senses and waiting for Christmas was a struggle; growing up I saw this played out with the countdown for Christmas in my home beginning with the first snow in early October. Everyday, someone in my house woke up with the hope and expectation of Christmas.

Please pause to reflect on the joy and hope you have held as you waited for Christmas to come. Do you still hold that same exuberance? I suspect that most people have trained themselves to ignore the impulse of enthusiasm for the coming season. How sad it must be to miss out on the preparations, the rituals, the fervent excitement of crowds filled with expectation.

The unbridled enthusiasm of children during the weeks leading up to Christmas provide a model for all Christians into how we are called to wait during Advent. This is a season of anticipation, penitence, and preparation that includes the four Sundays preceding Christmas. Advent, based on the Latin word adventus, refers to the final coming of Christ. In this season, we await Christ's triumph and the fulfillment of all God's promises to restore creation, reveal all truth, and set all things in their proper order according to God's love. This will be a time of reunion, of rejoicing for the righteous, and a time of humbling grace for all others.

Advent is a Christian season of waiting and intentional preparation that overlays one of the most frenzied periods of the year. In Advent, we prepare our hearts to welcome Christ. We prepare our souls to encounter Christ. We prepare our lives to humbly serve Christ. During many Christian Sunday worship gatherings in Advent, we will likely pause to light a candle and reflect on how we anxiously await the coming Christ, who is our hope, our peace, our love, and our joy. As we await, we seek to faithfully be the hope, peace, love, and joy in the world. We take time each Sunday to partake of the Lord's Supper as we reflect on soon being in Christ's full presence. Furthermore, during Advent, we hang wreaths and decorations. Each is a symbol that reminds us of what we can look forward to — a savior for all the world is coming. I invite you to slow down and look for Christ among the crowds frenziedly decorating, singing, playing games, and making crafts.

I pray that we each intentionally prepare for the celebration of our savior's return. May we all experience the child-like eagerness of this season as we await the glory that is to come.

Safety Spotlight: Avoid distracted driving this holiday season

Richard W. Rudolph
AFSBn Safety Office
Commentary

With the holiday season in full bloom, there will be lots of people out on the roads shopping. I need a gift for Aunt Lisa and Uncle Richard, I need to get stuffing for the turkey, and I need more tape to wrap Christmas presents. You can see how a person could become distracted while driving. It can be very dangerous especially in parking lots, drivers rushing to get the closest parking space to the store, drivers rushing to their next store. Drivers also will be trying to get to a spot they see before someone else, and might be focused on that instead of you pulling or backing out.

Distracted driving is dangerous, claiming 3,450 lives in 2016 alone. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration leads the national effort to save lives by preventing this dangerous behavior.

Distracted driving is any activity that diverts attention from driving, including talking or texting on your phone, eating and drinking, talking to people in your vehicle, fiddling with the stereo, entertainment or navigation system—anything that takes your attention away from the task of safe driving. Texting is the most alarming distraction. Sending or reading a text takes your eyes off the road for five seconds. At 55 miles per hour, that's like driving the length of an entire football field with your eyes closed. You cannot drive safely unless the task of driving has your full attention. Any non-driving activity you engage in is a potential distraction and increases your risk of crashing. Not only is it the holiday season, it's the Rush season, so do yourself a favor and spend your money on gifts and such instead of car repairs and hospital bills.

This year, please be aware of children and others when driving in parking lots and public garages. Here are some safety driving tips to remember, if possible, park in spots you can drive forward out of for a better view of others. Back out of parking spots slowly, looking left, right than left again. Watch your speed and use your seatbelt. Ensure children are properly secured in correct age appropriate children's car seat. Do not drive or let others drive while fatigued or under the influence of alcohol.

If you have a new or inexperienced driver in the family, please review parking lot safety before they drive.

Remember these tips and look for other tips at www.NHTSA.gov/risky-driving/distracted-driving.

Cyber needs modernization, people

Devon L. Suits
Army News Service

WASHINGTON -- With an increase in digital connectivity and a rapid development of technologies, such as advanced computing, big data analytics, and artificial intelligence, the character of war has changed, making cyberspace a critical battlefield of the 21st century and beyond, the U.S. Military Academy superintendent said Wednesday.

Near-peer strategic competition -- not terrorism -- has become a threat to national security, said Lt. Gen. Darryl A. Williams.

Army senior leaders must continue to prioritize efforts, he said, that directly support readiness, modernization, and lethality in line with the Defense Department's National Defense Strategy.

"For us old-timers ... when we talked readiness and modernization, it is typically in conventional terms -- better tanks and weapons, improved precision fires and missile defense, and aircraft," Williams said. "Today, you can't talk about either readiness or modernization without addressing cyber and space."

Williams spoke during the International Cyber Conference on Cyber Conflict U.S., or CyCon U.S. For the past three years, CyCon has provided opportunities to communities of interest to gather and discuss the critical topics surrounding cyber conflict.

"The first shots of the next war will likely be fired in cyberspace, and likely have devastating effects," said Williams, paraphrasing a previous statement by Chief of Staff of the Army Gen. Mark A. Milley.

"The Army is engaged daily in the cyber domain to achieve and maintain superiority against our adversaries," he added. "Our adversaries aim to separate alliances and challenge our traditional methods of deterrence by conducting operations that make unclear the distinctions between peace and war."

However, training and retaining cyber professionals to support a growing mission continues to be a significant issue for the DoD and NATO Cooperative Cyber Defense Center of Excellence allies, according to Gen. Riho Terras, Estonia's chief of defense.

Moving expenses now taxable for civilian employees

21st Theater Sustainment Command Legal Assistance Office

The Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, passed December 2017, eliminated a number of deductions that taxpayers have come to rely on. One of these was the moving expense deduction. The act eliminated the deduction for the tax year 2018 through the tax year 2025. However, the deduction will come back in 2026 unless Congress intervenes to eliminate it permanently.

This change does not apply to military personnel, but does apply to Department of Defense civilian employees and contractors.

In the past, if your move was motivated by a job change, you could deduct the expenses related to the move. Your new workplace must be at least 50 miles farther from your old home than your old job location was from your old home. This deduction was available even if you did not itemize your deductions, but it will be gone for 2018.

In addition, moving benefits paid in 2018 to DoD civilian employees and contractors will now be taxable to the employee, regardless of whether the employer reimbursed the employee for their out-of-pocket moving expenses or paid the moving company directly. DoD civilian employees and contractors must now include the cost of their PCS moving benefits in their income. This can be a substantial increase in taxable income. The average cost of a military move is estimated to be over $13,000.

The following reimbursements, whether by direct or indirect payment, are now taxable to the relocating U.S. Government civilian employee:

- Lodging expenses for en-route travel to the new duty station
- Mileage for using POV to travel to the new duty station
- Transportation using common carriers (such as airlines) to the new duty station
- Shipment of household goods, to include unaccompanied air baggage and professional books, paper, and equipment
- Temporary storage of HHG in transit, as long as the expenses are incurred within 30 calendar days after the day the items are removed from the old residence and before they are delivered to the new residence

- Shipment of mobile home in lieu of HHG
- Extended storage of HHG for OCONUS assignments
- Shipment of POV, CONUS and OCONUS.

Temporary Quarters Subsistence Expense is an optional taxable allowance intended to reimburse employees for some costs of lodging, food, and other necessities when occupying temporary quarters at the old or new duty station for a CONUS to CONUS move. Temporary Quarters Subsistence Allowance is a non-taxable supplement for employees traveling to or from an overseas duty location on official travel orders and authorized Living Quarters Allowance. The taxability of TQSE is not changed by the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017.

Relocation expense and TQSE reimbursements are subject to 22 percent IRS income tax withholding by DFAS on behalf of the employee. The reimbursements are also subject to Federal Insurance Contributions Act withholdings of 6.2 percent for the employee and 6.2 percent for the employer for Social Security and 1.45 percent for the employee and 1.45 percent for the employer for Medicare. Income tax withholdings and FICA contributions made by DFAS on behalf of employees will be withheld from the employee's travel settlement payment amount (if possible) or billed to the employee as a debt.

For DoD civilian employees, some of this tax burden may be offset by the Relocation Income Tax Allowance (RITA). This entitlement reimburses DoD civilian employees for most federal, state and local income taxes incurred as a result of receiving taxable relocation benefits. Unfortunately, RITA itself is also considered to be taxable income and there is no additional benefit or offset to reimburse civilians for that tax burden.

RITA is not automatic. The employee must apply for RITA in the year after receiving taxable travel pay. Employees who receive a Withholding Tax Allowance entitlement (see below) with the travel settlement must submit a RITA claim by April 30 of the following calendar year.

The method for calculating the RITA payment is based on the date the employee reports to the new duty location. For employees who reported to a new duty location on or after January 1, 2015, the RITA calculation is based on taxable income from the Federal Income Tax Return (Form 1040) (after exemptions and deductions) and IRS published tax tables. RITA voucher submission requires DD Form 1351-2, DD Form 1614, Direct Deposit Form, all W-2s, RITA Status Certification Form, and the completed Federal income tax return. The amount of income reported on the Certification Form has to match the income tax documentation submitted with the RITA claim.

RITA payments are taxable pay in the year received. There is no relief for the tax consequence of a RITA payment. In addition, RITA is not available to new and retiring employees, although legislation to extend RITA to these employees is now pending. RITA information and forms can be found at the DFAS website.

The Withholding Tax Allowance is an advance against RITA claimed by the employee on settlement voucher DD Form 1351-2 following the completion of travel. WTA is an election, and can be declined by the employee. WTA payments are taxable in the year received, and are deducted from the RITA settlement computed in the following year. WTA is calculated using the prescribed withholding tax rate of 22 percent. If WTA is elected by the employee, the employee must file a RITA claim within 120 days (April 30) of the following calendar year.

Failure to file a timely RITA claim will result in a DFAS debt and collection of the entire amount of WTA paid on the employee's behalf.

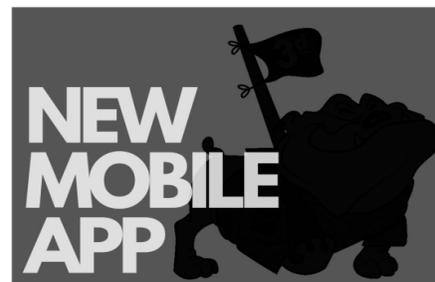

A WTA Selection Form is filed with the employee's travel settlement voucher, DD Form 1351-2. Employees should review marginal tax rates to determine whether a 22 percent WTA payment will exceed the final RITA payment (resulting in a debt to DFAS). Employees with a marginal tax rate below 22 percent may be subject to repayment of WTA amounts. Marginal tax rates can be found online at: <https://www.bankrate.com/finance/taxes/tax-brackets.aspx>. WTA information and forms can be found at the DFAS website: <https://www.dfas.mil/civilianemployees/civrelowithholdingtaxallowance.html>

Employees can reduce the costs of a move by reducing the weight of or avoiding the HHG, unaccompanied baggage, or POV shipment. A do-it-yourself move may provide options to control or mitigate move expenses.

The Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017 concerns the taxability of reimbursements for previously deductible moving expenses, and does not appear to affect direct or indirect reimbursements for student travel, renewal agreement travel, or early return of dependent travel.
