Thunder Run hero earns Distinguished Service Cross

Sgt. 1st Class Sierra A. Melendez
3rd ID Public Affairs

Staff Sgt. Stevon A. Booker, a 3rd Infantry Division Soldier who was assigned to Company A, 1st Battalion, 64th Armor Regiment and killed in action in Iraq in 2003, is slated to be awarded (posthumously) the Distinguished Service Cross – the nation's second highest award for valor – in Pittsburgh, April 5.

Now famously known as “Thunder Run”, Booker's unit led an offensive armored-attack into Baghdad on April 5, 2003 – subsequently resulting in the collapse of the Saddam Hussein government.

During the raid, Booker's platoon came under heavy small-arms and rocket-propelled grenade fire. Booker immediately reacted – communicated the situation to his chain-of-command, returned fire with his mounted machine-gun and reassured his crew that they would make it to their objective.

When his crew machine-gun malfunctioned,

Booker completely disregarded his personal safety and took up an exposed prone position on the top of his tank. While still engaged by heavy enemy fire, Booker maintained communication with his platoon, accurately destroyed an enemy vehicle and effectively protected his platoon's flank.

Booker continued to engage the enemy and protect his platoon while exposed for nearly five miles until he was fatally wounded.

He was originally awarded a Silver Star for his actions that day. However, following a comprehensive review directed by former Secretary of Defense Ash Carter of all awards issued during Operation Iraqi Freedom, it was determined that Booker's award would be upgraded to the Distinguished Service Cross.

Booker's mother, Freddie M. Jackson, will be presented the award 16 years to the day after her son sacrificed his life for this nation. The ceremony is scheduled to be held at the Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall at 10 a.m. in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Maintainers prep for National Training Center

Pfc. Devron Bost
2ABCT Public Affairs

Soldiers of 703rd Brigade Support Battalion, 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, held a field training exercise to become more efficient in managing and moving a brigade support area enhancing unit combat and sustainment readiness on Fort Stewart, Feb. 6.

The training provided companies the opportunity to refine their standard operating procedures and identify requirements needed for their upcoming missions at Spartan Focus and a deployment to the National Training Center on Fort Irwin, California, slated for later this spring. The NTC rotation will certify Soldiers for worldwide deployment in support of the brigades mission.

Prior to any mission, troops and commanders execute rehearsal of concept drills identifying areas of improvement, making needed changes and proofing those changes in a tactical environment. That is what this FTX aimed to provide the Soldiers of the maintainer battalion.

"Our main objective is to evaluate and align where we are as a whole within the brigade said First Sgt. Tyrone Thompson for Combat medics of 703rd Brigade Support Battalion, 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division. This is the first training event where 703rd BSB has participated with other Forward Support Companies, so it is vital that there is cohesion between us."

The battalion commander oversees each company and ensures it displays working continuity within its operation as a functional support group. From special supply activity, to mechanics and medics, every job is important.

"Our mission is to prepare for upcoming training events like the National Training Center said Spc. Dylan Winegarner, utilities equipment repairer for 703rd Brigade Support Battalion, 2nd Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division. It is my job to oversee maintenance on equipment so it is ready to go when needed."

The brigades upcoming rotation at NTC will consist of realistic unified land operations certifying the brigade level combat team for deployment. While at NTC units face obstacles that will challenge them to adapt appropriately in a hostile environment, while providing leaders and Soldiers with feedback and suggestions on things that need to be fixed and adjusted.

"This is not my first time supporting the sustainment brigade operations however this is my first time engaging and expanding our perimeter with the brigade as a whole said Capt. Jesenia Perez, commander of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 703rd BSB. "We are responsible for all the logistical support that the maneuver units within the brigade are required to have."

The training concluded with the entire BSA being moved from one location to another under a time constraint. Successfully testing the units ability to effectively deploy and redeploy in a short period of time.

Leaders to address Soldier, Family housing concerns

Special to the Frontline

As part of an ongoing Army-wide effort to address concerns with Soldier and Family housing, Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield's leadership will hold community town halls Feb. 27.

These town halls will present information and gain feedback from participants at Hunter Army Airfield's chapel, 1-2 p.m., and Fort Stewart's main post chapel, 6-7 p.m.

"Our enduring obligation as Army leaders is to take care of our Soldiers and Army Families," said Maj. Gen. Lee Quintas, commanding general of the 3rd Infantry Division and Fort Stewart/Hunter Army Airfield. "Their health and welfare is of utmost importance to our Army's readiness. This assessment and follow-on actions are top priorities for us."

The town halls are an internal forum for installation leaders to connect with Soldiers, Army Families and other residents of Stewart-Hunter to ensure we are meeting our obligations to provide safe, quality family housing.

"Our leaders are monitoring the conditions of Army-owned and privatized housing for health, safety and environmental concerns," Quintas said. "I expect we will execute our assessments in our housing areas in a decentralized manner down to the company commander and first sergeant with appropriate notice and consent of our Families."

Senior members of Balfour Beatty will join Quintas and Col. Jason Wolter, Fort Stewart garrison commander to listen and address residents of Stewart-Hunter.

Installation leaders want to ensure residents understand their rights as tenants in privatized housing; how to report concerns and receive prompt action; and how to follow up on any complaint they feel is unresolved.

Residents unable to join in person can participate at the Facebook town hall threads at the Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield pages, <https://www.facebook.com/events/760694737637136/> and <https://www.facebook.com/events/568350643682035/>.

JROTC students experience Stewart

Photos by Dina McKain

One hundred fifty area high school JROTC cadets experienced the Army Feb. 14 during a consolidated tour of Fort Stewart and the 3rd Infantry Division. Bryan County High School, Richmond Hill High School, Emanuel County Institute and Jenkins County High School attended. The day's events were intended to give cadets an opportunity to talk to Soldiers about their jobs and the real experiences they encounter by serving. The cadets visited an engineer battalion motor pool, saw a Bradley and Assault Breaching Vehicle, went to a Gray Eagle UAV hanger, and toured a CH-47 Chinook.

Sgt. Robert Simpson, 2-3 Aviation, 3rd CAB, from Chattanooga, Tenn., explains his job on the Chinook and answers cadet questions

Spc. Jack Collins, 10th Brigade Engineer Battalion, 1ABCT, from Dallas, and Spc. Curtis Rowan from Salisbury, Md., assist a JROTC cadet as they show her how to wear the improved outer tactical vest.

Embedded financial counselors wanted

Do you want to take control of your finances? Well, the ACS financial readiness team has embedded a financial counselor within each brigade to service all your financial needs. Whether you are considering buying a car, home, saving, investing, or just want assistance with creating a budget the financial counselors are here to assist? The financial counselor also provides monetary assistance through Army Emergency Relief to assist our Soldiers and Family members with life's unexpected challenges. If you require assistance, don't hesitate to contact your brigade financial counselor. For more information, you may contact ACS at 767-5058.

REAL FRG command team training

The REAL family readiness group command team training is targeted towards company commanders and first sergeants but is also informative for brigade and battalion commanders. This training delineates the roles and responsibilities of the command team regarding how to leverage and execute the Family readiness mission. Topics include Family readiness, mission essential tasks and regulatory guidance. This training is required under the Marne inspection program. It will be conducted in ACS building 87 from 9 a.m. to noon. Register by calling 767-1257 or the ACS Eventbrite page.

Hearts Apart/foreign-born spouse social

Starting in January, ACS is proud to partner with the USO to conduct the Hearts Apart/foreign-born spouses social. If your Soldier is on an unaccompanied tour or deployed, this group is for you. If you are a foreign-born Spouse, this group is for you. The meeting will be held on the second Thursday of each month at the Fort Stewart USO. This event provides an opportunity for a cultural blended experience to interact with others and build friendships that will last a life time. Children are welcome. For details call Linda McKnight, 767-5058.

Pet boarding limited

Due to installation of new turf to enhance the pet boarding center, the center temporarily can accept only 25 dogs per day for doggie daycare and/or boarding. This limitation will be effective for about 30 days (weather dependent). We regret any inconvenience this causes our customers. # Practicing applied suicide intervention skills to save lives

Sgt. Elizabeth White
3rd Sustainment Brigade

Suicide. Just the word can make us uncomfortable.

“Suicide itself is a taboo subject, we don’t talk about it, we are unfamiliar with it because it is something that is not acceptable in our society,” said Maj. Carl Otis, the 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade chaplain. “There is no training for this to interface on a regular basis with a person who is at risk of suicide and yet it happens frequently.”

According to data released by the Pentagon, a total of 321 active-duty military members committed suicide in 2018, the highest it has been in six years. At all levels, the Army teaches to never leave a fallen comrade and the Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training program teaches Soldiers how to recognize the signs that a battle buddy is having suicidal thoughts.

Soldiers in the brigade took steps to prevent suicide in their units by participating ASIST on Fort Stewart, Feb. 13-14.

“ASIST is a two-day, intensive training that is geared towards identifying someone who is thinking about suicide, how to engage them and get them to a place of safety,” said Otis. “Its not counseling or professional care it is just training on how to get people to safety.”

According to Otis, the class teaches a model of how to connect, how to ask if someone’s thinking of suicide, how to hear their story and listen for a turning point where they can recognize a portion in their thought process that is life or hope.

During the training, the Soldiers worked in groups, going over different scenarios where they helped a person who was thinking about suicide, played by their instructors. They also participated in one-on-one exercises where they talked an instructor off of a metaphorical bridge.

“It’s difficult,” said Sgt. Courtney Boles, 396th Composite Truck Company, 87th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion, 3IDSB. “In training it’s a lot different than the real thing but it helps you practice, it is good preparation for when you’re in a real-life scenario.”

“There are always going to be people out there that are lonely and are going through things that need somebody,” said Boles. “Having this training and knowing what to do in those situations is good for me to bring back to my Soldiers, teach them and my fellow leaders.”

ASIST is a program that is good for the Army, Soldiers and military Families to prevent suicide by recognizing the signs and addressing them. Through training and education, the Army is reducing the stigma against talking about suicide to promote a mentally fit fighting force.

Use your voice to help make a better tomorrow, inspire others to help

Maj. Lee Greenfield
FSGA Family Life Chaplain

In the last 10 years, the Army has rolled out two distinctive campaigns called The Army Family Covenant and Total Army Strong. The campaigns strove to promote Soldier and Family readiness and to ensure they could find resources they need, when they need them. And to provide them tools to remain self-reliant.

Some of the campaign noted the Army understood the strength of the Soldier comes from the strength of their Families. It demonstrated a committed to providing Soldiers and Families a quality of life commensurate with their service. It intended to provide a strong and supportive environment Soldiers and Families could thrive. Building a partnership with Army Families embracing their strength and resilience.

We, who represent Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield garrison and community support, fully embrace those ideals. They are not only applicable to our Families living on-post; but off post too. We recognize 70 percent of Soldiers live off-post in one of our surrounding communities. These ideals also extend to single Soldier living in our barracks and in the local communities.

We are constantly reassessing if these campaign promises are being effectively met in their vision for total care for our Army communities here. We know the “Marne Express” is a fast train that is hard to stay on at times, especially with the continued field training and recurring deployments that happen. So we ask, do you think you have the necessary support tools and help resources you need to be self-reliant and resilient in your Army life?

Only those who live and work here, can answer that question. While we have made significant and measurable progress in improving programs, health care, housing, child and youth services, recreation, and education and employment opportunities, there is work to be done.

A story from Rome, Georgia may encourage you.

In the 1980’s and 90’s, the city went through an economic down-turn. Manufacturing companies were leaving the city. Leaving many citizens unemployed. Instead of letting the city die, the mayor’s office, chamber of commerce and city commission came together to devise a plan. They decided to allow the town’s citizens tell them what they needed in order to make Rome successful. They asked people of all ages. Each contributed their ideas to help retain its citizens and work force and to stimulate new growth.

These ideas led to many positive actions. Teenagers and young adults responded by saying they needed jobs there, rather than Atlanta. The chamber of commerce and county development authority responded by asking Coosa Valley Technical College to come and train its young people in high-tech jobs. Once its young labor force was sufficiently trained, the city advertised and marketed its ready labor force to large companies, who subsequently relocated their manufacturing operations to Rome.

When children and parents said they needed updated facilities, parks, and youth and sports programs for children to play in, the commission responded by renovating the Boy’s and Girl’s Club facilities to support a robust youth program. When a request was made to establish a sports team in the city, one citizen contacted Ted Turner to invite him to relocate one of his Atlanta Braves farm teams to Rome. Turner requested a ball park. The city commission voted to build the baseball park. Today, Rome is home to the Atlanta Brave’s Single-A baseball team, whose games attract a visitors and money to the city. Families and Senior citizens said they wanted better comprehensive healthcare for special needs children and geriatric care. The city developed into the medical hub of northwest Georgia with the state’s largest multi-specialty clinic. Rome is now a center for manufacturing, medical care, sports enthusiasts, art and culture. When its citizens spoke, the city commission listened and responded with creative and innovative ways to promote growth and development.

When you use your voice, it really does make a difference. So we ask you, please use your voice to let us know what we can do to better care for your needs and the communities. What can we do better to promote stronger and more resilient Soldiers and families and a more resilient you? Let’s keep the feedback and requests positive for positive change and growth.

You requests can strictly cover the services and care we provide for Army community life. These include programs and events for single Soldiers, family programs, single parent programs, health care, housing, school services, education and employment assistance, or anything you can think of that will make our community a better place to live in.

We want our efforts here to be an empowering experience for you and to let you know we can make a difference together. When we work together, it makes our community better by promoting stronger and more resilient Soldiers and family members. Ultimately, our hope is that our work together can inspire you to invite others to join you in this community we call home, a community to take pride in and enjoy, together. Send ideas to the Community Ready and Resilient Integrator, Marjorie Freeze at marjorie.d.freeze.civ@mail.mil.

New shop to cut ribbon on Fort Stewart

Jeni Putnam
MCSC Public Relations

The Marne Community and Spouses' Club will hold a grand opening and ribbon cutting for Operation: Deploy Your Dress at 10 a.m. on March 8 at the Marne Community and Activity Center, 54 Coe Ave.

Operation: Deploy Your Dress is a military-spouse-run, non-profit organization that gives new and gently used formal gowns to military and dependent ID card holders. Visitors to the shop may select one gown and one accessory (purse, shoes or jewelry) per year to keep. Benefactors have already donated hundreds of dresses and accessories.

"I'm so proud of the Marne Community and Spouses' Club for taking on this project," said Lori Quintas, honorary president of the club and spouse of 3rd Infantry Division commander, Maj. Gen. Lee Quintas. "Providing free formal-wear to military ID holders is an amazing service to members of our community."

Following the event, attendees will be assigned a time to "shop" in groups of 20 between noon and 3 p.m. The shop will be open from 12:30-2:30 p.m. every Wednesday and by request for Family Readiness Groups or coffee groups. The club will host a prom event from 1-4 p.m. on March 17.

"MCSC has the ability to affect so many people and can make attending formal events a reality for many who may not have afforded it otherwise," Quintas said. "The Marne Community and Spouses' Club has the potential to give away thousands of dollars of formal wear through Operation: Deploy Your Dress — Fort Stewart. Over time, that contribution will continue to grow."

Operation: Deploy Your Dress started in December 2015 at Fort Bliss, Texas when a group of five military spouses hosted an event to help their unit spouses find affordable formal wear for a military ball. The event quickly gathered momentum, received national media attention and through the overwhelming generosity of the American public has received more than 9,000 dresses and given away more than 3,000 dresses to date. Ft. Stewart will be the sixth ODYD location joining Fort Bliss, Fort Eustis, Virginia, Fort Irwin, California, Fort Benning and Joint Base Lewis-McChord, Washington. Contact ODYD Chair Kari Novak at odyd@marnecom-munityandspousesclub.com for more information.

Dining at Fort Stewart consolidated Exchange restaurants, Expresses

Special to the Frontline

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service at Fort Stewart is offering a warm welcome and a bite to eat to visitors, Department of Defense contractors and civilians at Exchange restaurants and Express locations.

The Fort Stewart Consolidated Exchange's quick-serve restaurants and Expresses are open for anyone with installation access to dine-in or pick up grab-and-go fare as long as the items are consumed on the installation.

"Along with serving Soldiers and their families, the Fort Stewart Exchange is pleased to offer food and refreshments to civilian visitors and workers," said Exchange General Manager Hollie N. Morales. "All are welcome to dine with us or grab a quick bite. No need to leave the installation for meals."

All of the Fort Stewart Exchange's restaurants offer better-for-you menu choices featuring reduced-calorie entrees. The Fort Stewart Exchange carries BE FIT-approved items, including fresh fruit, yogurt, hard-boiled eggs, nuts, bottled water and more. Healthier Choices, Healthier Lifestyle shelf tags easily identify these items at Express locations.

Guidelines on who is authorized to use Fort Stewart Exchange operations are prescribed by Army Regulation 215-8 and the Armed Services Exchange Regulations, Department of Defense Instruction 1330.21.

Since 1895, the Army and Air Force Exchange Service has gone where Soldiers, Airmen and their families go to improve the quality of their lives by providing valued goods and services at exclusive military pricing.

The Exchange is the 61st-largest retailer in the United States. Its earnings provided $2.4 billion in dividends to support military morale, welfare and recreation programs over the last 10 years.

Quality of life, retention, among service priorities

Joe Lacdan

Army News Service

WASHINGTON -- As service members continue to be heavily tasked overseas, separation from Families and the impact of deployments on children rank as top areas of concern, a Blue Star Family survey revealed.

The 2018 Military Family Lifestyle Survey, which evaluated responses of more than 10,000 service members, spouses and veterans, also showed quality of life remains a key issue.

"Improvements in our quality of life for our men and women and their families is our focus each and every day," said Lt. Gen. Gwen Bingham, the Army's assistant chief of staff for installation management. "I think when we do this well, our Soldiers, civilians and families really prosper.

Additionally, military spouse employment also scored high, as spouses often must transition their careers and home life to frequent deployments and change of duty stations.

ACSIM has partnered with Army Training and Doctrine Command to develop a vision for future installations and the services provided for the comfort and well-being of military Families and spouses.

ACSIM conducted surveys among younger Soldiers and their families. The results showed the top priority was accessibility and interaction through social media to learn about installation benefits and services, Bingham said. She addressed concerns of veterans and military families during a panel discussion in Washington Wednesday.

"They want to be connected in a way that gives them that instantaneous response," she said of young Soldiers.

Bingham added the Army is looking into the possibility of adding more self-service cash registers at installation facilities to expedite the purchasing process for service members and their families.

Partnering with local community leaders will also be crucial to improving quality of life for service members, as on-average, only 35 percent of an installation's population lives on base, she said.

"That's really one of the things that we benefit from: those strong relationships and partnerships," Bingham said. "We cannot do it by ourselves."

Strengthening the force

Lt. Gen. Nadja West, Army surgeon general and commander of Army Medical Command, addressed the issue of long-term retention in the service in another panel discussion. The general said the Army must gain an understanding of young recruits' career aspirations.

When Army leaders and recruiters can help chart the path of a young Soldier or lieutenant, they can increase the possibility of a long-term commitment to the Army. Showcasing the diversity of career fields in the Army can be crucial to retaining women and men, she said.

In recent years, the number of careers for female Soldiers has increased, as the Defense Department opened combat-related jobs to women in 2015, including combat engineers and Army Rangers.

"That only makes us better as a nation -- as a military," Bingham said.

An educational campaign to better inform female recruits about jobs could also be key in retaining female service members, the general said. A mentoring program that addresses issues and challenges of each career field could provide assistance.

Safety and well-being could also be a concern of potential female recruits, West said. She said the Army remains dedicated to ending sexual harassment in the service. While sexual harassment in the workplace remains an ongoing battle, Army leaders continue to strengthen prevention efforts.

"Our senior leaders take this extremely seriously at the highest levels," West said.

Among the strategies: the service has stressed Army values early in Soldiers' careers. Soldiers are given lessons on acceptable behavior, and Army values are established as a foundation for conduct.

Each unit has been assigned an advocate and educator trained on sexual harassment and sexual assault issues. Victims can seek counsel from these individuals and provide assistance. They also create a welcome, safe environment for victims who may be afraid to seek help.

"If anyone is a victim of any of those types of behaviors, they have someone to go to directly that knows how to get them help if they need it," West said. "Just to make sure that there is a culture that the victims -- no matter if they're males or females -- can go somewhere to get assistance. There's no tolerance for [sexual harassment and sexual assault]."

Watch webinar today on TRICARE dental options for service members, Families

Special to the Frontline

Want to learn more about your dental options with TRICARE? Join the “TRICARE Dental Options for You and Your Family” webinar today, from 1 to 2 p.m. ET. This webinar will discuss dental options for service members and their family members. Dental experts from the Active Duty Dental Program and TRICARE Dental Program will provide detailed information on these programs.

If you're an active duty service member, you automatically receive TRICARE dental benefits. And if you live or work within 50 miles of a military dental clinic, you must seek care from a military dentist. But if you need care outside of a military dental clinic, you can seek care from a civilian dentist. The ADDP provides civilian dental care to service members who:

- Receive referrals from military dental clinics

- Live and work more than 50 miles from a military dental clinic

United Concordia Companies, Inc. (United Concordia) administers the ADDP. The ADDP is available to service members in the U.S. and U.S. territories. For ADSMs in remote overseas locations, International SOS Government Services, Inc. coordinates your dental care.

If you're an active duty family member, you can get TDP coverage. Administered by United Concordia, TDP is a voluntary dental program that also covers National Guard and Reserve members and their family members. You can get dental care worldwide with TDP.

To learn more about ADDP and TDP, as well as how to get dental care through these programs, don't miss the Feb. 21 webinar. Register today. A question and answer session, led by the presenters, will follow the presentation.

The fruit of love makes a difference

Capt. Angel Berrios
48 CHEM Bde Chaplain

Love. Ah - yes, what a pleasant and delightful thought. Songs have been composed, books have been written and poems have been expressed concerning what true love really is. What does love look like or how do we know if we are in love? With the recent Valentine's Day celebration, Feb. 14, I think this is a right question.

For about sixty years or so, the entertainment world has defined and dominated our society's idea of love. The result has been that a lot of people are operating on the assumption that love is some mysterious thing that just happens over which one has no control. It is no wonder that a reason cited for divorce is, "I just don't love him/her anymore." This statement is often accompanied by a sigh and a shake of the head as though the speaker can't understand what went wrong.

The Bible reads, "Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It does not dishonor others, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, and it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, and always perseveres. Love never fails." (1 Corinthians 13:4-8) If you got married in a church by a minister, chances are somewhere in the ceremony these Bible verses were recited. In 1 John 4:7-8 we learn that love comes from God because God is Himself love.

Love is not a warm fuzzy feeling, if not it is a choice. Jesus tells us to love our enemies in Matthew 5:44. The word "love" here is actually in the imperative form, meaning we are actually commanded to love our enemies. Wow. Normally, we don't like our enemies and here Jesus commands us to love them! Therefore, since we know God wouldn't ask, or command us to do something we are not capable of doing, love must be a choice.

Let's take time to appreciate those people in our lives that we love. This is special and needed. Also, ruminate and ponder God's love for us and think about how we can love Him more. We are all blessed people for many reasons, but mostly because of the love all around us.

Jesus said, "By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another." (John 13:35). By understanding the nature of love and then choosing to operate in it we declare ourselves as followers of Christ. Have you ever met a Christian who's hateful, bitter and anti-social? Love is not evident in such a person. As there can be no mistake between an apple tree and a peach tree; so there can't be between a believer and non-believer. The fruit of love makes a huge difference.

In Galatians 5:22-23 we read, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control." This means that love, along with the other fruits, can be cultivated, or grown. Initially, love appears perhaps small and insignificant, but it can eventually become big, healthy and appealing as we grow in Christ. Simply said - "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself." (Luke 10:27)

SecArmy compares Soldiers to pro athletes

The Army may soon place nutritionists, physical therapists and sports trainers at the unit level to improve individual readiness, said Secretary of the Army Mark T. Esper.

The idea is "to really start looking at Soldiers as professional athletes," Esper said Friday morning while speaking at the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

The athletic trainers and therapists are slated to be assigned to brigades and some battalions later this year as part of a pilot program under the Army's holistic health and fitness system.

The H2F system is overseen by the Center for Initial Military Training and a spokesperson there confirmed that 130 military authorizations will be allocated to units by the end of fiscal year 2019 to "enhance personnel readiness."

Occupational therapists may also be in that mix, Esper said.

While most of the positions will go to brigades, some will be assigned to the 30 maneuver battalions that Army Forces Command selected last fall to train with health and fitness professionals in hopes of reducing Soldier injuries.

"In the future, once these take place and really take hold, we'll have a more deployable and more capable force," Esper said.

In 2016, the Army began placing athletic trainers at its initial-entry training centers. That year, 20 of them went to Fort Benning, Ga., to work with Soldiers at all five of the post's training battalions. One goal was to prevent musculoskeletal injuries.

Athletic trainers were also brought into basic combat training sites at Fort Jackson, South Carolina; Fort Sill, Oklahoma; and Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

The sports trainers not only educated Soldiers on injury prevention, they also provided treatment to Soldiers following injuries to reduce their recovery time. Instead of sending injured Soldiers to hospitals, they were treated at their units and this saved a significant amount of training time, officials said.

The Army is also extending infantry initial-entry training to improve personnel readiness. A pilot program last year at Fort Benning, Georgia, extended the infantry one-station unit training, or OSUT, from 14 to 22 weeks.

Esper visited Benning to observe the extended OSUT training and said the results were dramatic.

"You're seeing Soldiers with much higher physical fitness scores," he said, adding that the infantry graduates were "much more competent, tactically and technically."

The Army has also developed a new fitness test that Esper said better prepares Soldiers for the rigors they will face in combat.

The Army Combat Fitness Test with its six events "for the first time really links physical fitness with the demands and rigors of the battlefield," he said.

In October, the Army selected 63 battalion-sized units to try out the ACFT as part of a pilot program. Mobile training teams went to the battalions to train NCOs how to conduct the tests. Now these 63 units will begin "field-testing" the ACFT.

Each of the battalions will need to conduct two ACFTs before October and space them about six months apart, according to the Center for Initial Military Training. The field tests will provide data to possibly adjust the ACFT grading standards before the test is adopted by the entire Army.

In October 2020, when the ACFT is implemented across the Army, officials expect it to further decrease injuries, improve personnel readiness and combat effectiveness.

"At the end of the day, the Army is a people business," Esper said, "and people are our most important asset."
