1st Lt. Garlin M. Conner, who served with the 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, 3rd Infantry Division, was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor, June 26, for actions while serving as an intelligence officer during World War II on Jan. 24, 1945.

WASHINGTON -- After more than 70 years, the late Garlin Conner, Kentucky farmer and World War II veteran, was finally awarded the medal that escaped him for so long.

President Donald Trump presented the Medal of Honor to Conner's widow, Pauline, in a White House Ceremony Tuesday, for acts of bravery during WWII.

"Lt. Garlin Murl Conner was indeed a giant," Trump said to an audience that included Conner's family and two other Medal of Honor recipients. "In his daring, his devotion, and his duty, he was larger than life. And that, he was. He will never, ever be forgotten. We will never forget his story."

Trump recalled the morning of Jan. 24, 1945, when Conner ran alone toward an attacking battalion of 600 German soldiers and six towering Panzer tanks in the frigid cold to direct American artillery rounds. The first lieutenant's actions saved dozens of American lives in the Third Infantry Division, the president said.

Trump detailed Conner's bravery to family and friends in attendance, many of whom didn't know the extent of Conner's valor until after his death in 1998. Conner served in 10 campaigns while spending 28 months on the front lines.

Pauline Conner, an 89-year old resident of Clinton County, Kentucky, cared for her husband in the later stages of his life, when he suffered from Parkinson's disease, diabetes and kidney failure. She also participated in the 22-year campaign that resulted in his service being recognized with the Medal of Honor.

"She hoped and prayed she would live to see this day," Trump said. "Pauline is truly a wonderful, incredible person. And it's my privilege to be with you today as we award your late husband our nation's highest military honor."

Sustainment Brigade returns

Special to the Frontline

More than 200 Soldiers from Headquarters, Headquarters Company, 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade returned home July 3 to Fort Stewart following a nine-month tour to Afghanistan.

The Soldiers led the 3rd Infantry Division Resolute Support Sustainment Brigade, overseeing all logistics operations in support of U.S. Afghan and Coalition Forces in Afghanistan. In addition to the 3rd ID, the RSSB comprised civilians, Army Reserve units, National Guard units, and active duty units from the 4th Infantry Division and 10th Mountain Division.

The 3rd ID RSSB supported 54,000 personnel spread across 24 installations throughout Afghanistan. They moved more than $100 million worth of rations, on average issued out 2,500 gallons of fuel daily, managed more than 630 million rounds of ammunition, and oversaw the movement of more than 80 million pounds of cargo via airlift and ground transportation.

In addition to the supply operations of moving food, fuel, ammunition and other supplies throughout Afghanistan, RSSB units served as customs agents, delivered all mail within the country, trained the Afghan National Defense Forces, and assisted in security operations, among many other missions.

The 3rd ID Sustainment Brigade hosted a homecoming and uncasing of colors ceremony on Fort Stewart's Cottrell Field, Tuesday.

See next week's edition of The Frontline for news and photos regarding the return.

IMCOM welcomes two leaders

Nate Allen
Fort Sam Houston, Texas

JOINT BASE SAN ANTONIO-FORT SAM HOUSTON, Texas --U.S. Army Installation Management Command has two new Senior Executive Service leaders within its headquarters staff at Joint Base San Antonio-Fort Sam Houston.

J. Randall Robinson and Delia Adams will fill new positions within the IMCOM headquarters staff, which will help drive enterprise strategies and operations that enable the command to support Army readiness initiatives and priorities into the future.

Robinson will serve as the executive deputy to the commanding general, while Adams will serve as the command's senior contracting executive.

Robinson has previously held positions within the installation management community at the installation level such as garrison plans and operations officer and deputy garrison commander provided opportunity to understand how IMCOM directly contributes to mission readiness. From there, Robinson served as an IMCOM region director and later as the Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Army for Installations, Energy and Environment.

At a recent ceremony at the Fort Sam Houston Theater to welcome the two new SES leaders, Lt. Gen. Kenneth Dahl, IMCOM commanding general, said Robinson's experience with the tactical, operational and strategic workings of installation management will help the executive deputy improve how IMCOM serves the Army.

"We're asking the executive deputy to strengthen and build those necessary relationships at the strategic level - at Headquarters Department of the Army," Dahl said. "It's also strengthening relationships laterally with the other service providers at the installation level. The third piece is strengthening relationships with the commands we support -- the warfighters."

As IMCOM's senior civilian, part of Robinson's job is helping the command's more than 50,000 civilian employees grow professionally to better serve at Army installations all over the world. Robinson said his passion for professional development and service to the Army is stressed at his Monday morning staff meetings.

"I say, there are five days left in the week to improve the lives of Soldiers and their family members, and I ask them to look in the mirror and say, today I'm going to do my best," Robinson said.

As IMCOM's senior contracting executive, Adams is responsible for an annual $4.5 billion portfolio of appropriated and non-appropriated contracts and procurements.

Dahl said the first two job announcements for IMCOM's senior contracting executive yielded unfavorable results.

"I started asking the other senior people in this business why no one wanted to come to San Antonio and they said that talent doesn't exist, you're looking for a unicorn!"

Adams' resume displays the procurement and acquisition experience needed for the position, from execution to policy level positions.

Adams began her contracting career with the Air Force as a vice presidential intern. She later transitioned to advising procurement and contracting policy through private industry for the state government of Pohnpei in Micronesia.

Adams went on to gain greater insight of the Army's needs as contracting officer for U.S. Army Europe, where she would deploy to the Balkans as an emergency essential civilian.

Adams' assignment as a senior procurement analyst gave her experience with acquisition policy at the Office of the Secretary of Defense level. Most recently, Adams served as the director of Service Area Office West for the Veterans Health Administration.

Adams says she looks forward to working with IMCOM and its mission partners in developing the command's contract acquisition strategy, but she will have to add a new hobby to her resume.

"I'm going to have to start collecting unicorns now; I like that analogy," Adams said.

Fourth softball championship win for Co E, 2-3 Aviation

Steve Hart
Hunter Army Airfield Public Affairs

They say the only certainties in life are death and taxes. Add a third certainty: Company E, 2nd Battalion, 3rd Aviation Regiment winning the Hunter Army Airfield Softball Championship.

Company E broke open a tight game by erupting for five runs in the top of the seventh to advance their lead from 14-11 to 19-11. The resilient team from the 224th Military Intelligence Battalion was unable to score in the bottom of the seventh in the championship game played before a boisterous crowd in attendance at Squires Sports Complex June 25.

"Company E came together at the right time," said

Mike Hughes, Hunter intramural sports director, of the team that finished fourth in the regular season. "They ended up going undefeated in the tournament, including a dramatic come from behind victory over 224 MI 12-11 in their second game of the tournament."

The 2-3 Aviation squad relinquished an 8-7 lead to 224 MI in that game played on June 20 when 224 MI plated four runs in the top of the seventh. Company E would answer with four runs of its own in the bottom of the frame, the final runs scoring on a hit by Darsayle Pearson, cleanup hitter and coach.

"We are blessed to have the support of our battalion commander and sergeant major and our company commander and first sergeant," said Pearson. "The fact they support us by allowing us to get off work early to take batting practice is a real difference maker."

Pearson declared Case Mulherin has his team's most valuable player in the tournament based on his performance and leadership. "He showed his leadership by taking charge in the outfield during the games by communicating positioning and defensive strategy and was also a key hitter, Pearson said. His three-run double in the championship shifted momentum in that game. Pearson also singled out Jeremy Franklin, who recorded the highest batting average on the team during the tournament.

Next up for 2-3 Aviation is the annual challenge game that pits Hunter's champion against Fort Stewart's champion. The Hunter team has defeated Fort Stewart's team each of the last four years.

Happy birthday United States

Chap. (Maj.) Jerald Jacobs
USAG Plans, Operations Chaplain

Everybody loves a birthday celebration. They're full of fun, excitement and pleasant memories. Mostly, birthdays are about hope and expectations. We celebrate the joy of our shared lives, but we're always a little like the Roman god, Janus (for whom the month of January is named). Janus is depicted with two faces, situated back to back, looking at past and future.

As we continue to think about the birthday of our nation, we do well to look back and affirm all that is positive about this 243-year-long experiment in democracy. It's also a good time to reexamine and reaffirm our connection and commitment to our nation (meaning one another, the citizens of this nation, not just the political entity known as the United States of America).

Being a part of each other's lives is what we celebrate, not just being in this place at this time. I don't know all of the 326,500,000 other people make up the United States of America, but we (the members of the Armed Forces) are connected to them as public servants and fellow citizens. If we lose sight of that foundation, our service becomes self-serving - and much harder.

No one likes to think of himself or herself as a servant, but it is in serving those whom we love or value that we find our deepest fulfillment and joy. I remember how good it made me feel when I was able to do something special for my children. You may have heard the term, "servant leadership," and thought, "that makes no sense!" In a way, you're right - it doesn't make sense in a consumer economy like ours.

But in a much deeper sense, we know that Soldiers follow leaders whom they believe care about them and will take care of them. If you don't think that's true, how many of us would continue to serve if Uncle Sam said, "I really appreciate you, but we won't be able to pay you for the next six months?" One reason we serve is that we believe that the U.S. government will take care of us by paying us regularly.

It's not the long hours, hard physical labor or intellectually exhausting work that puts folk off from military service. It's the responsibility to take on the role of servant, even if we know we're capable of being the leaders. Soldiers who serve America because they love America will almost certainly feel a sense of pride, accomplishment and fulfillment, irrespective of how hard or inconvenient that service is. Less than one percent of the population of the United States has had the chance to know that feeling.

At this year's birthday party for the United States, I encourage you to choose to be a willing servant of the United States. In ways that I could never predict, you'll find it the most rewarding and uplifting experience of your life.

I'm quite certain that this is part of what guided our Founding Fathers when they built the structures that have guided us for 243 years. So certain were they of this that they served at virtually no cost (Okay, 50 cents a day in 1789). Fortunately, you get a little bit more than that nowadays. Happy Independence Day!
