Installation explores ride-share program

Community members are invited to provide feedback regarding an Army ride-sharing initiative, Commute with Enterprise.

The Mass Transportation Benefit Program focuses on providing Department of Defense employees and civilian employees an alternate community experience, which reports saving an average of $6-$10 thousand dollars annually at some installations," according to the Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield Deputy Garrison Commander Wesley Leisinger, the program was designed to help reduce stress, pollution and traffic congestion, while saving money."

Exploring the community interest in the program,

Leisinger said the installation will initiate a survey and distribute it through the Marne Message and installation website. The garrison leadership hopes to determine community interest along with possible routes, times and locations.

According to www.whs.mil/Mass-Transportation-Benefit-Program, the MTBP program was established in October 2000 and offers eligible employees and military service members an opportunity, in some areas, to receive transit passes in the amount equal to their personal community costs.

For employees who work on Fort Stewart, the survey is available at https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/work\_at\_Stewart\_commute. For employees at Hunter Army Airfield, visit https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/work\_at\_HAAF\_commute.

The survey closes Friday.

Soldier earns President's Hundred

Maj. Pete Bogart
1ABCT Public Affairs

Sgt. 1st Class. James Ruiz currently serves as the 3rd ID Infantry Division Memorial Affairs noncommissioned officer-in-charge and is one of just a few Soldiers in the division with the President's Hundred Tab.

The President's Hundred Tab is a badge awarded by the Civilian Marksmanship Program to the 100 top-scoring military and civilian shooters in the President's Pistol and President's Rifle matches. The tab is authorized for wear on military uniforms of the U.S. Army. It is also one of just four tabs awarded to Soldiers for individual skills that is authorized for permanent wear and is first in order of precedence on the uniform over the Special Forces, Ranger, and Sapper tabs.

Ruiz's first Presidents Hundred was in 1993 when he served in the United States Marine Corps. Since then Ruiz has competed eight more times and placed in the top 100 every time. Ruiz said all the success from his years of competition come down to mastering the fundamentals.

"There are five important rules to follow," said Ruiz. "Trigger control, sight alignment, point of aim, breathing, and natural resting position."

Ruiz said of the five, trigger control is by far the most important and that once he truly understood that is when he began to have success in various marksmanship competitions.

Over his career in the Marines and Army he has earned the Lauchheimer Gold Medal, Walsh Pistol Trophy as the top pistol shot in the Marine Corps, served with the Army Marksmanship Unit, and competed with the Army Rapid Fire International Pistol Team.

Ruiz said that while every competition and marksmanship assignment have been gratifying, he is proudest of being one of only a few Soldiers to be double distinguished in the pistol and rifle during the Presidents Hundred competition.

Ruiz also taught for three years at the Army Marksmanship Unit, said his advice to Soldiers interested in earning the tab is to never give up.

"If you want to compete you need to ask around," said Ruiz. "Begin with the Commander's Cup or the All Army Marksmanship Competition that is held every year at Fort Benning."

Family and friends gathered to celebrate 21 cadets who were commissioned as Army second lieutenants from the Eagle Battalion Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Georgia Southern University in Statesboro, during a commissioning ceremony, May 9.

The guest speaker, Maj. Gen. Lee Quintas, commanding general of the 3rd Infantry Division, shared some words of wisdom to the cadets before becoming lieutenants.

"Studying, learning and training will never stop," he said. "It is a lifelong effect and that's why we call it progression."

Quintas shared some encouraging words on what their platoons, sections and companies would expect of them.

"Lead by example and remember as a leader you are always under observation," said Quintas. "Learn to improve every day, listening to your Soldiers and especially your noncommissioned officers. Show your Soldiers you care and always stay focused on the mission."

After Quintas' speech, the top cadet of the class presented him a gift on behalf of the class and the cadet association.

Before becoming lieutenants, each cadet had to take the oath of office and unveil of second lieutenant rank. By tradition, the new lieutenants passed a silver dollar to a saluting Soldier of their choice.

The coin represents more than a dollar in currency and signifies the new officer's gratitude for the knowledge of an enlisted Soldier or a noncommissioned officer who have impacted them during their training.

"The most important thing about becoming a lieutenant is learning how to communicate," said 2nd Lt. Leonard Soriano, a chemical, biological, radiological officer. "I was an enlisted noncommissioned officer before becoming a lieutenant and to get the opportunity to gain more knowledge as an officer was a great idea for my career. If anyone wants to achieve their goals by becoming an officer then go for it and don't be afraid."

Continuing TRICARE health coverage after retirement

By TRICARE.mil Staff

When you retire from active duty or turn age 60 as a retired reserve member, your TRICARE coverage changes. After either of these Qualifying Life Events, you must take action and enroll in a TRICARE retiree health plan so that you and your family members don't have a gap in your TRICARE coverage after retirement. Typically, you have up to 90 days after your retirement date to enroll in a TRICARE plan as a retiree. If you don't, you and your family members will only be able to get care at a military hospital or clinic if space is available.

Each service is responsible for updating the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System with your retirement date. Until that date is posted to DEERS, you can't enroll in a retiree TRICARE plan. In some cases, the retirement date doesn't show up in DEERS until days or even months after you've retired. For the time being, the Defense Health Agency is allowing retiring members and their eligible family members up to 12 months from their retirement date, or turning age 60 (for retired reserve members).

"This 12-month period is longer than the standard QLE period of 90 days," said Mark Ellis, TRICARE Select program manager, DHA. "This allows plenty of time to update DEERS and enroll in a TRICARE health plan as our new retirees adjust to civilian life."

Coverage must begin effective the day after you ended your previous TRICARE coverage, and any TRICARE enrollment fees must be paid retroactive to that date.

Continuing TRICARE health care coverage isn't automatic following these QLEs. If you don't enroll in a plan after retiring from active duty or turning age 60, you'll lose TRICARE coverage and only be able to receive care at military hospitals and clinics if space is available. After the 12-month period, you may only enroll in or make changes to your health plan during the annual TRICARE Open Season or following another QLE.

You'll need to make sure you update your and your family's information in DEERS. You and your family members will also need new identification cards upon the sponsor's status change. No matter when you enroll within the 12-month period, coverage begins on the first day of your retirement and you must pay all enrollment fees back to that date.

Retiring from Active Duty

If you're retiring from active duty, you previously paid nothing out of pocket and your family's costs were minimal (if covered under TRICARE Select). As a retiree, you'll now pay retiree costs for care. Depending on the retiree TRICARE health plan you choose, you may see an increase in your enrollment fees, deductibles, co-payments, cost-shares, and other fees.

Retired Reservists Turning Age 60

If you're a retired reserve member who turns age 60 and were enrolled in TRICARE Retired Reserve, your TRR coverage ends the day you turn age 60 and become eligible for

TRICARE Prime

A managed care option available in Prime Service Areas in the U.S.; you have an assigned primary care manager who provides most of your care.

TRICARE Prime or TRICARE Select coverage.

You must have your retirement fully completed with your service personnel office or command. This means your retirement pay is processed and activated with the Defense Finance and Accounting Services.

To confirm your retired status is properly reflected in DEERS, visit <https://www.dmdc.osd.mil/milconnect> or call the DEERS Support Office (1-800-538-9552). Once DEERS is accurate, enroll in a TRICARE health plan based on your residence within 12 months from your 60th birthday. As a retiree, you'll pay retiree costs such as enrollment fees, deductibles, copayments, and cost-shares.

Health Plan Options

You and your family members may be eligible for one of the following TRICARE health plans:

- TRICARE Prime (if residing in a Prime service area)
- TRICARE Select or TRICARE Overseas Program Select
- US Family Health Plan
- TRICARE For Life

Visit the TRICARE Plan Finder to learn more about your options. Once you enroll in a TRICARE health plan, you also have pharmacy coverage.

Dental and Vision Options

Retiring service members and their eligible family members have the option to enroll in the Federal Employees Dental and Vision Insurance Program (FEDVIP). You don't have to be enrolled in a TRICARE retiree health plan to purchase dental coverage. However, you must be enrolled in a TRICARE health plan to potentially qualify to purchase vision coverage through FEDVIP. For more information about FEDVIP and to check your eligibility, visit the FEDVIP website.

Learn more about retiring with TRICARE by downloading the retiring from active duty brochure and costs and fees sheet. Take command of your health and understand your benefits before you retire.

Fort Stewart joins local leaders in addressing Opioid epidemic

Pat Young

Fort Stewart Public Affairs

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield joined Bryan County community partners May 9 for an Opioid Education Forum at the Wetlands Education Center in Richmond Hill.

The Richmond Hill-Bryan County Chamber of Commerce and the Bryan Prevention and Recovery Project hosted the event with the installation's Lisa Pokorny, Army Substance Abuse Program Employee Assistance Manager, joining representatives from local businesses, civic organizations and law enforcement to talk about the national opioid abuse issue, its affect in the local area and ways to help community members.

Dallas Daniel, BHBC Chamber of Commerce Chairman said he realized the opioid issue was hitting close to home following conversations with community members and local law enforcement agents and thought the chamber could provide a platform for community members to join together, learn more, and determine a way ahead to address the issue.

Mary Fuller, Bryan Prevention and Recovery project coordinator said legal opioids are prescribed to treat significant pain and include oxycodone, hydrocodone, codeine, morphine, and synthetic opioids such as fentanyl. These drugs are chemically, the same as illegal opioids like heroin.

The Center for Disease Control, www.cdc.gov, reported more than 70,000 people died in U.S. in 2017 with more than 67.8%, 47,600, involving opioids, representing a 12% rate increase from 2016. About 1,000 of the 2017 death were from Georgia alone. Most in the 25-34 year-old age group.

Fuller said Bryan County's opioid prescribing rate is 82.3 per 100 people while 70.9 is the Georgia average. She added that Bryan County youth report misuse when in middle school at 210 per 10,000 and at high school that number increased to 450 of 10,000 which were both higher than the state average.

Fuller said that an estimated 66.2% of the self-report illicit opioid use were employed either part or full-time creating potential hazards at the workplace and potentially impacting worker's compensation claims.

She said individuals can help by talking to their doctors about what is being prescribed to them, only using the medicine as prescribed, and securing and disposing of medicine properly. She said businesses can help by becoming drug free workplaces, providing employee training and developing workplace policies that stop abuse but support recovery. One of the resources attendees noted was Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield benefited from a dedicated ASAP Employee Assistant Manager. Business representatives noted finding available resources and programs to help counseling and education was a challenge.

Pokorny shared information about the ASAP, as a commander's program, which included testing, education, risk reduction, and suicide prevention available to all active duty service members. She related services such as screening, assessment, short-term solution-focused counseling, referrals, liaison with referrals, on-site training and follow-up counseling, were available to all active duty dependents, DoD Civilians, retirees and their Families; adding veterans could also contact them for assistance.

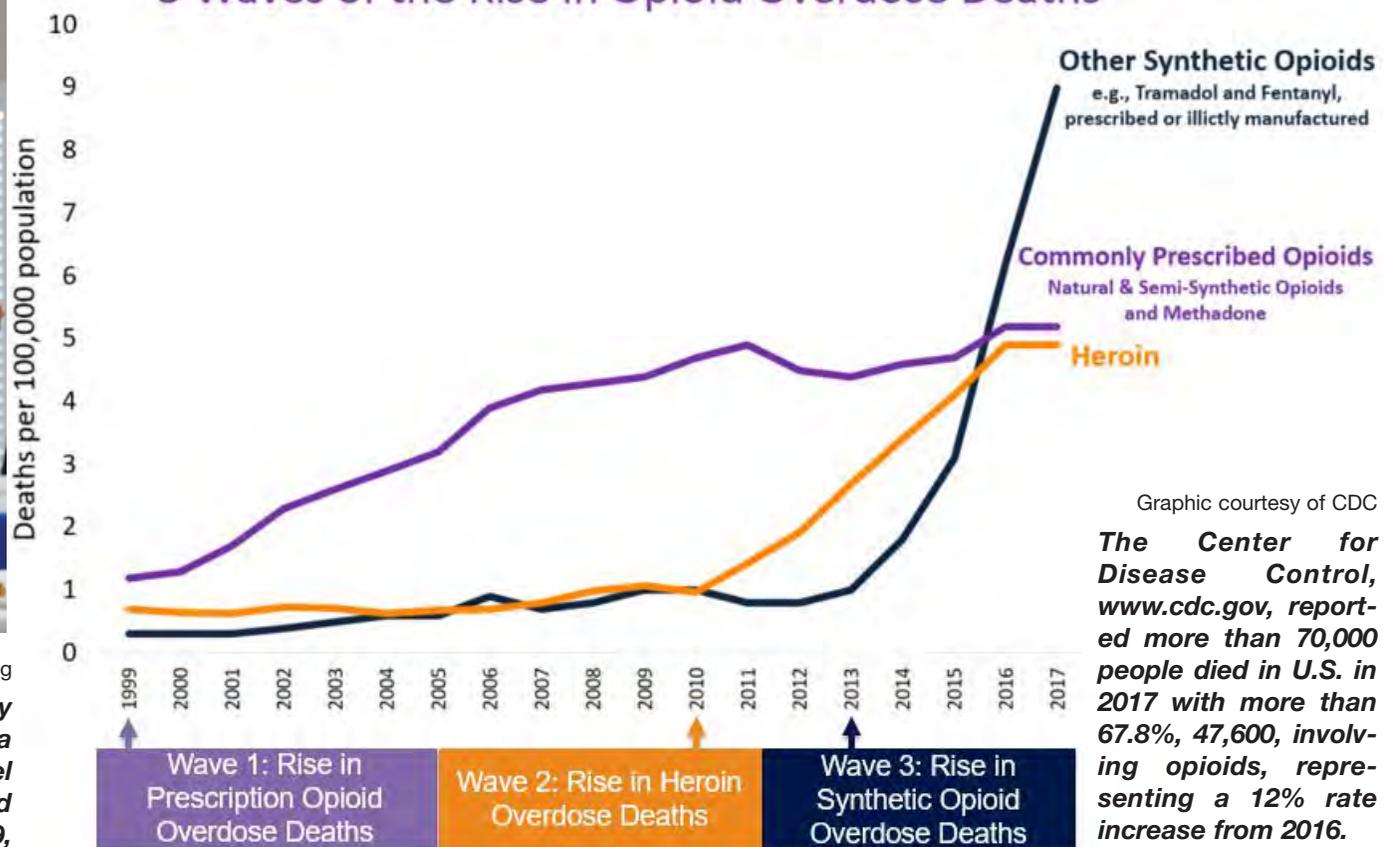

Attendees expressed their appreciation for Fuller and Pokorny and other emergency responders in attendance for helping enlighten the community regarding the opioid issue and possible solutions. The chamber plans on holding future meetings to determine additional plans and resources. Community members are invited to follow the BCRH Chamber of Commerce on Facebook or online at www.rhbchamber.org.

Marne Bistro opens for business

Sgt. Elizabeth White
3rd Sustainment Brigade

The Marne Bistro dining facility reopened during a ceremony May 6, on Fort Stewart. Revamping the facility is part of an Army initiative to modernize food services on military installations.

Fort Stewart culinary facilities have evolved to meet the demands of a high operational tempo, a large geographical footprint and a mix of various units from the National Guard, Reserve and maneuver units. Within the past couple of years, the Culinary Outpost Kiosk and food trucks were introduced on post, and now the Marne Bistro opened to replace the Thunder Café DFAC.

“We began planning the relocation from Thunder DFAC to Marne Bistro in order to be closer to the condensed Soldier population here on Fort Stewart,” said Col. Jeffrey Britton, the 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade commander. “There are over 3,500 Soldiers that work and live within a ten minute walk of [Marne Bistro] compared to the 600 near Thunder Inn.”

According to Britton, by switching to the Marne Bistro the food trucks are able to be used for their original intent: to accommodate areas that have smaller pockets of Soldier populations.

Reopening the DFAC, “allows for food service operations to provide total population coverage between the Kiosk, Marne Bistro and the two food trucks,” he said.

WRESP builds vision readiness for Soldiers

Zach Rehnstrom
Winn ACH Public Affairs

The Warrior Refractive Eye Surgery Program at U.S. Army Medical Department Activity- Fort Stewart, Winn Army Community Hospital performs ocular surgical procedures on Soldiers from Forts Stewart, Benning, Jackson, Gordon, and surrounding areas.

The WRESP utilizes doctors with specialized training in diseases and surgery of the eye, such as Col. Thomas Lovas, deputy commander for U.S. Army MEDDAC –Fort Gordon Surgical Services.

“We have multiple different types of battle spaces that we engage in around the world,” Lovas said. “Not all of them are predictable; eye-wear is unpredictable. Refractive surgery gives you the ability to reduce your dependency on eye-wear.”

During combat, a Soldier’s ability to see correctly is imperative to complete the mission effectively. To improve the medical and vision readiness of Soldiers on the battlefield, the Warrior Refractive Eye Surgery Program provides vision readiness surgical services that reduce the dependency of eye-wear in the field.

The Warrior Refractive Eye Surgery Program at Winn Army Community Hospital offers many different ocular surgical procedures designed to ensure vision readiness by reducing dependency on prescription eyewear.

“The bottom line is it’s a procedure that you’re committing maybe 10 or 15 minutes of your time to,” Lovas stated. “And the upside potential is significant in terms of not just combat multiplier type processes, but also from a lifestyle perspective.”

Lovas and his surgical team utilized the WRESP to accomplish a Photo Refractive Keratectomy procedure on Brig. Gen. Neil Hersey, commandant at the U.S. Army Cyber Warfare School.

“This is my first opportunity to work with Dr. Lovas,” Hersey said. “I’ve worked with several professionals in the medical community, and I would say that the Army, in my humble opinion, is ahead of all the other services in terms of medical care.”

The PRK is a roughly 10-minute laser-assisted refractive surgery procedure designed to correct myopia or nearsightedness, and hyperopia, better known as farsightedness, which is imperative for increasing combat effectiveness.

“The ability to operate without requiring corrective lenses in any situation provides a higher level of readiness,” Hersey said. “To be able to adapt to any situation rapidly, and perform whatever tasks are necessary in combat or in other types of operations.”

Autumn Currence, a certified ophthalmic technician at Winn, is part of the surgical assisted who assists the surgery, as well as, many other refractive surgical procedures.

“Having the ability to do this, and to increase the readiness ability of the Soldiers, makes Winn vital in the readiness platform,” Currence said.

The WRESP provides the ability for Soldiers to function at optimum readiness without requiring corrective lenses in any situation. These procedures allow our Soldiers the ability to adapt and perform as necessary no matter the conditions.

Measles: Help prevent the spread

Special to the Frontline

Winn ACH, APHN

Measles is a very contagious respiratory disease caused by a virus that is spread through the air when an infected person breathes, coughs or sneezes.

The virus can be contracted from an infected person even before a rash is developed. Measles can be contracted just by being in a room where a person with measles has been up to two hours after that person is gone.

Measles is most common in Europe, Asia, the Pacific Islands and Africa. The virus is often brought into the U.S. by those who live in other countries or by U. S. residents traveling abroad. Measles then spread to individuals who have not been vaccinated.

Symptoms begin with a fever and progresses to a cough, runny nose, red eyes, ear infection and a rash of tiny, red spots that starts at the head and spreads to the rest of the body. This highly contagious viral disease can be deadly, especially for babies and young children. It can lead to pneumonia, life-long brain damage, deafness and death.

According to Maj. Atia Mbah, Chief, Preventive Medicine Department at Winn Army Community Hospital, the best way to prevent your child from catching this infection, is to get your child vaccinated.

"It is never too late to get your child vaccinated if you have not done so," Mbah said. "Talk to your child's doctor to find out if your child has received the recommended doses of the vaccine or if your child needs the vaccine. Measles can be prevented with the measles-mumps-rubella vaccine, which is safe and effective. Some people have concerns that autism spectrum disorder might be linked to the vaccine; however, studies have shown that there is no link between receiving the vaccine and developing autism."

If there are cases or in some circumstances, a single case, of a vaccine-preventable disease in your community, parents or guardians may be asked to take their child out of school, childcare, or organized activities such as, playgroups or sports programs.

Your school, childcare facility, or other institution will tell you when it is safe for an unvaccinated child to return. If a child becomes infected with measles, parents can be prepared to keep their child home for several days up to several weeks.

For more information about measles, speak with your child's primary care provider or visit <https://www.cdc.gov/measles/vaccination.html>

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Thoughts on Mother's Day, every day

Capt. DooSoo Lee

2-7 Inf. Chaplain

Once upon a time, there was a husband who bought a brand new vacuum cleaner for his wife on Mother's Day. "Happy Mother's Day," he told her. "This is a brand new one!" She waited a month, and bought an electric meat cutter for her husband. "Happy Father's Day," she said.

Yes, many stories, feeling and emotional reactions are recounted from Mother's Day memories.

When I served at a parish in Elgin Illinois, I once visited a lady who was hospitalized at a local medical center. She had been taken there with acute appendicitis, by ambulance, at 2 a.m. When she told me the pain started around 10 p.m. I asked her why she didn't call anyone until 2 a.m. She said she didn't call her children living near her because she didn't want them to worry about her. Adding it was too late to wake them. I told her they weren't babies any longer. But I know what she meant. It reminded me how my mother loves me. Her story is no different from my mother and yours. Our mothers gave us birth in pain but never want to share's with us.

That is the core of a mother's heart – to nourished and nurture us. With the recent Mother's Day, we celebrate the mother's love and thank God for allowing us the awesome mother.

But, friends, I want us to remember that Mother's Day is an emotional and stormy day for some people.

One of my old friends died suddenly in December 2018, a few days after his 40th birthday. His mother grieved the death of her only son on Mother's Day.

Another neighbor in my town struggled with infertility for years. Every Mother's Day was a reminder of that pain.

Another Soldier in my unit and her family, had an unexpected miscarriage and grieved the loss of their unborn child. Mother's Day was a day of grief to them.

There was a mother in my old parish whose child fell into various addictions, rebellion, and ran away. Mother's Day always reminded her of how she failed in raising her child, although it was not her fault.

While many of us celebrated and laughed with our mothers on recent Mother's Day, I hope we do not forget that there are struggling and grieving mothers around us. If there are mothers around you who are struggling with motherhood and grieving her child, remind them that you care.

And remember, though the official Mother's Day has passed, every day is a good day to express your gratitude to your mother.

"As one whom his mother comforts, so I will comfort you." Isaiah 66:13

Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield garrison leadership held a State of the Garrison May 8 at Club Stewart.

The semi-annual briefing highlighted the installation's accomplishments and future challenges, the Army and installation priorities, an awards session recognizing outstanding efforts, time in service awards and retirees, followed by a question and answer session.

Garrison Commander, Col. Jason Wolter, opened the event by congratulating employees for their outstanding support of the 3rd Infantry Division, Soldiers and their Families, which helped earn the installation the Army Communities of Excellence Award for an unprecedented seventh time. He noted the achievement in light of the recent reduction in force and active deployment schedule was indicative of the professional attitude, work ethic of the workforce, and community partnership.

Wolter said one of the immediate challenges the installation faces is the seasonal personnel turn-over noting 16 other changes across the installation including the 3rd Infantry Division command of Maj. Gen. Lee Quintas with incoming commander Maj. Gen. Antonio Aguto in May; the Hunter garrison command between Lt. Col. Kenneth Dwyer with Lt. Col. David Escobar in June; as well as his own in June with incoming garrison commander, Col. Bryan Logan.

"Readiness remains the Army's first priority," Wolter said, yet added modernization and reform were part of that effort - maximizing the value of every dollar, operating transparently and using resources wisely.

"Part of that effort is the realignment of Installation Management Command under Army Material Command - a four-star command," Wolter said, adding while the command changed, the installation's framework to provide training and power projection, improve community safety and security, investment in installation infrastructure and provide effective Soldier and Family programs, remains.

Helping execute this effort, Wolter said the workforce is anticipated to grow from 800 employees to 837 from fiscal year 2019 to 2020, which includes an increase in 38 authorizations for Directorate of Emergency Services. While the number of employees are expected to grow, the SOTG was also an opportunity to farewell others who were retiring.

Twenty six retirees were recognized including Paul Ahrens, Terry Anderson, Richard Baboian, Jon Bairnsfather, Leo Barrett, Robert Baumgardt, Revis Baxter, Dale Blocker, Duane Bostick, Keanan Caudle, Jerome Dart, Larry Durrence, Donald Estep, Michael Etheridge, Caroline Fore, Rickey Frazier, Gary Glemboski, Joseph Hightower, Deborah Jefferies, Brandt Kicklighter, Joe Reno, Kenneth Sapp, Tadd Saylor, Janie Smith and Wilma Sparks.

Seventeen other employees received Length of Service awards ranging from 30 to 40 years and more than 50 were recognized with achievement award.

Wolter said during his tenure as garrison commander, the installation has faced a number of hurdles and he realized there would be more. But Wolter expressed his confidence the installation would be successful.

"We have some challenges ahead of us," Wolter said. "But we'll face it together, as a team."
