Check cashing limit

Soldiers living on the economy in cash checks for up to $1,000 in thange for foreign currency at USAREUR finance offices. To qualfor the new limit a soldier must ing certain paperwork to the finance office, including his current Leave and Earning Statement (LES) howing basic allowance for quarters and overseas housing allowance enintlements and net pay in excess of $1,250 per month. The soldier can then write one check for up to $1,000 in foreign currency to pay rent and utility expenses.

The increased limit, part of a one year USAREUR test program, is only available on the end-of-month payday and five working days thereafter. Soldiers within 30-60 days of separation from the service have additional requirements. For more information contact your local finance office.

Use of Chapel Annex

Potential users of the community activity room of Bldg, 118 (Chapel Annex) are advised that due to Wintex '89, this room will not be available from Feb. 23 through Mar. 11. Second floor classroom and other first floor offices will still be available. For details contact the Chapel Annex administrative office at 420-7022/7339.

Facility closes

The privately-owned-vehicle inspection point at Flak Kåserne will close permanently effective Feb. 21. The last day of operation is Feb. 17.

The last day of operation is Feb. 17. In future all vehicle inspections for the northern Stuttgart area are to be conducted at the Pattonville inspection point, adjacent to the AAFES auto parts store.

Bank machine

Effective Wednesday, the automatic teller machine in the Pattonville housing area will offer "on-line" service. This new improved service means that automatic teller patrons will be able to obtain larger cash withdrawals of up to $500 or its equivalent in local currency, providing that the account has sufficient balance to cover the cash withdrawal.

"On-line" service will also allow customers to obtain their balance from the machine, perform account transfers and receive cash advances on check deposits. Check with your local community bank facility for exact details.

DRMO retail sale

The Defense Reutilization and Marketing Office in Ludwigsburg will conduct a retail sale on Friday. The sale begins at 8 a.m. and will include miscellaneous excess government property. DRMO is located on Osterholzalee, around the corner from Coffey Barracks. This monthly sale is open to the general public including non-ID card holders. Contact DRMO for specific information at ETS 4282-554/891 or LC-44675.

Army revamps REFORGER exercise Hi-tech improvements slated for '90

In a move designed to help USAR-EUR "train smarter" and ultimately improve combat readiness, computer simulation technology will be integrated into future REFORGER exercises.

The REFORGER Enhancement Program (REP) will allow U.S. forces to obtain the maximum training value from major exercises by integrating new computer simulation technology into Command Post Exercises (CPX) and Field Training Exercises (FTX).

In addition, the Command Field Exercise (CFX), which encompasses aspects of both an FTX and CPX, will assume increasing importance in future RE-FORGER exercises. CFXs focus on the training of commanders and their staffs at different levels of command, rather than on the evaluation of technical and tactical skills demonstrated by the soldier in the field.

Under the REFORGER Enhancement Program, REFORGER '89, originally scheduled for September 1989, will be delayed and merged with REFORGER '90. Also, a corps-level exercise called Caravan Guard, usually conducted in the spring, will be pushed back to the fall in deference to REP. U.S. forces will use this smaller exercise to test the improved training techniques planned for RE-FORGER '90.

Scheduled to run from January through March 1990, REFORGER '90 will be the first in the exercise series to be conducted under the enhancement program and the 21st in the REFORG-ER series overall.

While the enhanced REFORGER concept will still enable the United States to deploy significant numbers of soldiers from the U.S., the overall number of soldiers in the field will lessen in subsequent maneuvers. Smaller forces will result from the "training smart" philosophy; using an innovative mix of simulations, FTXs, CPXs and CFXs to accomplish training objectives established for each of the participating units. As in the past, REFORGER will continue to exercise all of the logistical and administrative aspects involved in moving large numbers of forces from the U.S. to Europe. Soldiers will arrive from various ports to link up with equipment arriving by ship and then draw from prepositioned stocks stored in Europe.

Forces will then participate in major NATO field exercises in the Federal Republic of Germany. Manuever damage prevention and environmental protection will continue to receive strong emphasis during all phases of the enhanced concept.

REFORGER is an annual strategic deployment and maneuver exercise which is intended to display resolve and demonstrate an ability to reinforce NATO. REFORGER came about under a 1967 tripartite agreement between the United States, the United Kingdom and the Federal Republic of Germany. The annual exercise is geared towards improving the combat capability of both deploying and in-theater forces in the European environment. (ARNEWS)

The castle nearby

The impressive Ludwigsburg Schloss (castle) is surrounded by beautiful parks and serene gardens. The castle, built by Duke Eberhard Ludwig from 1704 to 1733, and its "Baroque in Bloom" gardens are located in the center of Ludwigsburg, a short distance from most GSMC installations. The 452-room palace which served as the seat of court for the Dukes and later the Kings of Wuerttemberg makes an excellent weekend excursion.

Outlook

Commander's comment Honoring the contributions of Black Americans

This month the Greater Stuttgart Military Community will be conducting its annual observance of Black History Month. Beginning in 1976, February was designated as a time to recognize the historical and current contributions of Black Americans.

Many times people inquire as to why we as a nation take time out to honor a specific group. The fundamental idea behind these observances is to highlight those groups which have been neglected in traditional historical accounts of America's development.

This is particularly important in today's world where racial tensions seem heightened. By showing that we value the efforts of all Americans toward our country's growth and development, we can encourage harmony within diversity.

This is an opportunity for all Americans to consider what makes our country the greatest in the world. Each generation of immigrants has brought different traditions, customs and dreams to the United States. By combining the strengths of these various groups in a melting pot, a new nation was formed

America's greatest strength is that all her citizens are afforded equal opportunity and freedom from discrimination according to law. This is the case with the military as well.

The Army serves as a microcosm of America. We have a vast diversity in the composition of our population. Yet, everyone comes together in order to accomplish our mission of defending our country.

Afro-Americans are a vital part of our national defense. They began serving during the Revolutionary War and now comprise over 20% of Department of Defense personnel. Statistics, however, do not tell the whole story

Black History Month is a chance to tell the rest of the story. It is a time to explore the role played by Black Americans in our country's development.

During February events commemorating this Afro-American contribution are happening all around us. Types of activities range from video presentations to an original drama production to guest lecturers and ethnic meals and much more. Whatever your interests, you will be able to find an activity in which to participate.

I encourage each of you to join in these events and open your mind to something new. Our local GSMC theme is "Pride breeds excellence." Nothing could be more appropriate to life within our community. Pride is essential to every job within the military. Pride serves as an inspiration for getting the job done right.

With pride as the means, excellence is the ultimate goal. Often I speak of a "community of excellence. For Stuttgart to become such a model community, we must live, work and play together in harmony.

We are interdependent and need one another in order to succeed. Working together without prejudice will help us in our strivings for excellence. To paraphrase Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., reaching our goals for the future means evaluating individuals according to the content of their character, not the color of their skin.

By recognizing the importance and contribution of one segment of the American population during Black History Month, we ensure that all people are aware that America truly values all of her citizens.

Take care of soldiers. Maj. Gen. James B. Allen

A common experience for married couples who experience a short period of separation can be used as a key indicator of what needs to be done to increase marital intimacy. Absences due to field training and TDY give rise to the often quoted cliche 'absence makes the heart grow fonder.' There is some truth to this phrase.

Absences can make us realize what we appreciate and miss about our marital partner. Times of loneliness also help us to value more the attributes of our spouse we have taken for granted. This often leads to fantasizing how wonderful it will be when we are reunited.

So often this bubble of hoped-for-marital-bliss quickly pops when reunion occurs. The at-home spouse often harbors resentment for the lack of support, companionship and shared responsibility which the separation caused. The accumulated anger and resentment frequently are projected onto the returning spouse, whose hopes for a romantic encounter are shattered in disillusionment.

If both parties continue to focus on their own respective individual wants and needs, then the marriage relationship will continue to deteriorate.

Each spouse will feel hurt and resentful that the other partner does not understand their needs. Both will feel the other is being inconsiderate.

STOP! What exactly does one marital partner need to do to prevent the escalation of negative feelings. One person has to care enough and be disciplined enough to block their own ego needs. Suppressing selfish desires may seem like weakness - like giving in — but there is more to gain here than to lose; greater marital intimacy is within your reach.

LOOK! Gaze into the eyes and focus on the face of the one you love more than anyone else in the world. You would sacrifice anything, even your life, to safeguard your partner from harm. This willingness to die to protect someone is the highest degree of love. It is the greatest sacrifice one can make to evidence their love

The sacrifice of blocking your own thoughts and feelings to focus singularly on your spouse's face and words is a small price to pay in comparison.

Focusing total attention on the spouse conveys care. Your partner will begin to feel valued and respected. . . and will respond in kind. Some of us vowed on our wedding day, 'to have and to hold from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and cherish, until death do us part." Times of marital stress and disagreement give us some of the worst moments in our lives. The best way to cherich your spouse when he/che is talking is not to cherish your spouse when he/she is talking is not only to focus on the content of what is said but also on the feelings expressed.

LISTEN for opportunities to empathize. Being able to reflect back to your spouse on what is being said and felt will leave them feeling loved and understood. The warmth of care and understanding fosters an attitude of endearment in response.

We at the Chaplain Family Life Center are available to help couples enrich their marriages through improved communication skills. For assistance, call us at 420 - 6219/7339.

Child care credit worth considering

Parents who pay someone to care for a child or dependent while they work or look for work may qualify for a special tax credit.

This Child and Dependent Care Credit may be taken not only for payments to babysitters and day-care centers, but also to certain relatives paid for this service.

This credit is available to married couples who both work part time or full time or are actively looking for work and file a joint tax return. If one spouse works full time and the other works part time; is a full-time student, or is disabled, they are also eligible for the credit, according to the IRS.

The credit may also apply to a divorced or separated parent who has custody of a child under the age of 15 or physically or metally incapable of self-care, even though the parent may not be entitled to dependency exemption for the child.

The parent claiming the credit must, however have custody for a longer period during the year than the other parent. A married person living apart from his or her spouse for the last six months of the taxable year is eligible for the credit if a separate return is filed.

Expenses that can be used for the tax credit include only amounts paid for household services and care of the qualified persons. Child support payments are not qualified expenses, nor are amounts paid for an overnight camp.

The credit is from 20 to 30 percent of eligible expenses, depending on the taxpayer's adjusted gross income. The maximum credit that may be taken is limited to $720 for one qualifying person and $1,440 for two or more qualifying persons.

To qualify for the Child and Dependent Care Credit, a taxpayer must have been gainfully employed or in active search for gainful employment when the expense for the child's or dependent's care was incurred, and must have paid over half the cost of maintaining his or her household, which included one or more qualifying individuals.

Also, the IRS has emphasized that the taxpayer and the qualifying person must have lived in the same home during 1988.

A qualifying individual is defined as a dependent child under the age of 15 or a spouse or dependent who is mentally or physically incapable of self-care.

To claim the credit, taxpayers can file Form 1040A, using Schedule 1 (Form 1040A) to compute the amount of the credit. Taxpayers who file Form 1040 may also claim the credit, even if they do not itemize deductions. These taxpayers compute the credit on Form 2441, Credit for Child and Dependent Care Expenses," and attach this form to Form 1040.

A LUNCHEON IN CELEBRATION OF BLACK HISTORY MONTH

Black History month '89 A military resume of the Black American

A first sergeant with the 93rd Infantry Division, and a veteran of two world wars, rests alone with his thoughts during a break along the Numa Numa Trail on Bougainville during World War II. There were over 400,000 blacks participting in the first World War while more than a million patriotically served during World War II. The experience of settling America and the burden of defending it, have been shared by people from many continents. Black Americans began serving their country long before the nation formally came into being. They have fought long and honorably in ever major American conflict.

The Revolutionary War (1775-1781

Crispus Attucks was one of the first martyrs of American independence. Every major battle during the war included blacks in its troops. Peter Salem and Salem Poor were singled out for gallantry.

The War of 1812

Three black seamen were aboard the British ship when the Chesapeake Incident signalled the start of the War of 1812. By the war, one of every six members of the Navy was a black. William Brown was cited for courage and service in The Battle of New Orleans (1815).

An integrated army, including two Negro battalions, defeated British troops.

The Civil War (1861-1865)

The Negro soldier fought bravely and won praise in more than 20 battles. Twenty won the Medal of Honor, America's highest military honor.

The Indian fighters

Negro units of the Army helped keep the uneasy peace in the Western territories. Fourteen blacks won the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The Spanish-American War

Four black units were sent to Cuba under America's highest ranking black officer, Major Charles Young.

Four of these soldiers earned the Medal of Honor. World War I

There were 404,348 black American troops in the first World War. Henry Johnson and Needham Young of the 93rd Infantry, 369th Regiment became the first Americans of any race to win the French Croix de Guerre.

World War II

Dorie Miller was America's first hero on December 7, 1941, when he shot down six zeros with a machine gun which he had never fired before. He was awarded the Navy Cross. More than a million blacks entered the armed forces. Seven thousand served as officers; four commanded Merchant Marine ships; Colonel Benjamin O. Davis flew 60 missions.

Korea

The policy of complete intergration in the U.S. Army was adopted in January, 1950. The first to integrate was the 81-year-old all black 24th Infantry. Two black soldiers were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Vietnam

By 1965, according to Defense Department figures, almost 15 percent of the infantrymen serving in Vietnam were black. Also 5.1 percent of the Navy; 8.9 percent of the Marine Corps, and 8.3 percent of the Air Force. Nineteen were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Fifty-nine blacks had been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor by 1969. In addition, the Navy Medal of Honor had been awarded nine others. (AR-NEWS). Page 4 THE STUTTGART CITIZEN

Outdoor Rec's Day Trippers

Story and photo by Bob Gonsalves Stuttgart Citizen staff

For most ski enthusiasts in the States, a day on the slopes in the Bavarian Alps of Germany is only a distant dream. But for servicemembers and their families living in the Greater Stuttgart Military Community, some of the finest skiing in the world is only an Outdoor Recreation day trip away.

From first-time adventurers to seasoned ski fanatics, the day outings sponsored by the Outdoor Recreation Branch at Robinson Barracks is sure to have a little something for everyone.

"We're trying to dispel the image that skiing is too expensive for someone breaking into the sport. For $30, we'll put you in skis and get you to the mountain along with providing the beginner with a day of instruction," said Ralph Brecht, Outdoor Recreation Branch director.

For more information on future ski trips sponsored by the Outdoor Recreation Branch, call or visit their facility at 420-6202, Bldg. 121 on Robinson Barracks.

No easy solutions HRO tackles Stuttgart housing dilemma

The Housing Referral Office (HRO) basically "tries to stay in touch with anybody who has anything to do with housing in GSMC," according to Franklin Wilson. Chief of Housing.

The HRO staff pours over nine newspapers a week advertises in a like number. They are continually earching for housing opportunities available for soldiers. The office works closely with local government gencies, builders, park commissions and the like to check out any possible housing leads.

But it's not enough. HRO suffers from a severe staff shortage. While there are 26 HRO employees in the GSMC (18 authorized and 8 overhires), the office still falls short of the USAREUR recommended strength of 44 people. Wilson said. Unlike many European HROs, Stuttgart's branch spends little time seeking new rental housing because at current staff levels they just don't have the horses. Their workload barely affords them the time to process customers and maintain paperwork.

There's a lot of processing and paperwork to keep up with. The government is responsible for managing 3,575 on-post housing units and 236 government-leased units for a total inventory of 3,811 units. Out of 3,000 military families currently residing off-post in GSMC, the waiting list for on-post quarters contains approximately 1,500 soldiers. An analysis of the figures, then, leads to the conclusion that about half of the people prefer living on the economy.

Official Department of Defense policy is to house soldiers in the local community. When said communities can't handle the housing demand, a deficit housing need is said to exist. Right now, there is a deficit of 151 Army housing units. To handle the deficit, the government is obliged to either build houses on post or lease units off-post. The government usually chooses the least expensive option.

Economic projections forecast that by 1993 GSMC will have a housing deficit of 360 units; 151 family units and 159 UPH (Unaccompanied Personnel Housing).

Of the six major subareas in GSMC, the northern ones generally have surpluses in housing. These include the Ludwigsburg-Kornwestheim area (encompassing the Ludendorf, Pattonville, Wilkin and Flak installations) and the Bad Cannstatt-Zuffenhäusen subarea (Robinson and Wallace Barracks, 5th General Hospital).

Down south the livin' ain't so easy. Vaihingen (Patch Barracks), Boeblingen-Sindelfingen (Panzer Kaserne). Nellingen-Esslingen-Echterdingen (Nellingen Barracks) and Moehringen-Degerloch (Kelley Barracks) are areas where soldiers have had the most difficulty in finding housing. Because housing is (relatively) easier to obtain in northern Stuttgart, many soldiers commute from units there to their assigned stations in the south. Commuting involves hardships. Driving through heavy traffic, for example, between let's say Ludwigsburg and Patch, takes more than an hour.

North or south, landlords pretty much have prospective tenants at their mercy. A waiting list for any vacancy usually runs up to ten people when applying for housing in the German economy. HRO's big accomplishment has been to encourage German landlords who have rented to Americans in the past to do it again. According to Wilson, over 90 percent of renters to Americans will rent again to another American, partly through the good offices of HRO.

It's tough to make an initial contact for renting from a German landlord. Local landlords typically ask for leases which start at three years and go up from there. German Grundbesitzers usually expect Americans and other tenants to pay for renovations. Americans, though, aren't used to sinking money into temporary housing.

A reluctance to sign long-term leases and to invest heavily into renovations insures that Americans who do secure living quarters will pay an average of 10 percent more for the space.

That's assuming, of course, that housing can be found. Wilson emphasizes that the best contacts for Americans seeking housing are other Americans. By necessity, GSMC places the burden of finding housing on the individual involved. Soldiers can expect and should insist on support from sponsors, HRO and the military community. But for the forseable future the struggle to attain housing will remain just that — a struggle.

"There is a perception that the Housing Office is not doing all it can (to secure housing for soldiers)," Wilson said. In his view it's a cheap shot. "I don't believe they're (housing units for rent) out there now," he said, noting also that the staff size of HRO leaves much to be desired.

Government housing at Patch Barracks

Cost of housing

Although senior enlisted personnel and officers can generally afford housing in the GSMC area, lower ranking personnel face greater difficulties.

The system of military housing allowance is called EMD (Effective Military Demand). EMD is the U.S. military's recommended maximum expenditures by military grade. In other words, higher military grades obtain greater housing allowances. It is not surprising, then, that lowerranking soldiers will feel a greater pinch when competing for housing in a tight market.

By military definition, unaccompanied personnel are either bachelors or married soldiers who choose not to bring their spouses overseas. Unaccompanied personnel housing (UPH) levels range from $638 to $1,273 per month compared to $500 to $700 typical monthly costs (including utilities) required to maintain a one-bedroom unit (assuming a DM/US dollar exchange rate of $1.80).

For families, EMD levels range from $775 to $1,530 per month. Two or three-bedroom units typically cost anywhere from $600 to $1000.

High-priced housing can, in the final analysis, sometimes outpace the EMD level a soldier receives from the government. Monday, February 13, 1989

Avery returns with desire and goals

Avery serves up the best in table tennis.

Sweet is revenge - especially to women. Lord Byron . And so the ball bounces again back to Trina Avery.

For more than half of her life Avery has played table tennis, 13 of her 25 years. Her record speaks for itself: four-time winner of the Peace Games, three-time winner of the White River State Park Games and a rank-ing of 16th in the U.S. Table Tennis Association, an association that has more than 20,000 members. Her latest accomplishment was a second place finish in the VII Corps Table Tennis Championship. Her next step is competing in the USAREUR Table Tennis Championship.

"I hope they have the USAREUR tournament before I have to leave in April to go to Fort Meade (Maryland)," Avery said. "I'm really looking forward to it because I think I've got a good chance to win it."

When Avery leaves for Fort Meade, she will be able to take the Riverdale Training Center up on their invitation. Avery was one of two that got this exclusion invitation which is strictly for table tennis players – good table tennis players.

Avery has her goals that she is striving for.

"I'm trying for the Pan-Am Games and the Olym pics and then possibly going professional," Avery said "I would also like to be a table tennis instructor and coach younger children."

All of these goals are attainable since Avery has already been considered for the Pan-Am Games once (in 1987). She was stationed in Germany and could not compete because she was not located in time.

But, right now Avery is focused on the USAREUR Table Tennis Tournament — and a certain opponent she faced in the VII Corps tournament.

"I was beaten by a German in the VII Corps tournament," Avery said.

So, are you looking forward to a possible rematch with her?

Without hesitation and with determined confidence. Avery replied, letting a little vengeance creep into her tone, "Oh yes. Definitely."

Billiard tournament

Krabbenloch Community Recreation Center will host the GSMC 14.1 Billiard Tournament on Feb. 25 at 10:00 a.m. The winners will advance to the VII Corps 14.1 Billiards Tournament to be held in March. To enter you must qualify in a qualifying meet at your local recrea-tion center. For more information contact Susan Matey at 421-6234.

Thanks LKYS coaches

The LKYS Basketball season is well underway and going strong. The staff of the YS would like to say "thank you" to all our dedicated coaches. Without their help our sports program would not be able to continue. So parents please help your child's coach anyway you can; they are an invaluable resource to our children and community. Let's show them how much they are appreciated. We are always in need of volunteer coaches and team parents. Please come to the YS today and VOLUNTEER!

Racquetball tourney

Come out and participate in the 1989 GSMC Racquetball Championships start-ing Feb. 27 and running through Mar. 3. We need players to represent the Bad Cannstatt-Zuffenhausen community. This is open to active duty soldiers, so register now at the Robinson Barracks Gym.

Bowling Roll-offs

The GSMC Bowling Roll-offs are coming up starting Feb. 13 and running through Feb. 19. The Roll-offs are conducted in preparation for participating in the following VII Corps, USAREUR and all-Army Bowling Championships. The schedule is flexible and the competition tough, so contact the Pattonville Bowling Canteen in Ludwigsburg at 07141-85956 for qualifications, rules and scheduling.

Caught in the middle

The Patch Panthers fight it out underneath the hoop in AA basketball action against the Bitburg Barons in their latest victory. However, last Saturday (Feb. 11) Patch's record fell to 2-2 in their 49-32 loss to the undefeated league-leading Mannheim Bisons. Patch plays two critical games this weekend as the high school basketball year winds down with just one week remaining in the regular season.
