Tax exempt policy

GSMC residents seeking tax relief from the German value added tax (14%) are reminded that a new policy did go into effect March 1. This policy increases the fee for processing tax relief requests to $4 per request. As previously reported by the Citizen, the fee increase was directed by HQ USAEUR due to a budget shortfall in the 14% tax relief program throughout USAEUR.

Women's week

March marks the beginning of Women's History Month and Federal Women's Week (FWW). This year's theme is "Heritage of Strength and Vision."

The GSMC FWP has revised its program for FWW. Its highlight will now be a special dinner celebration at Robinson Barracks Community Club March 8 at 6:30 p.m. The dinner will feature guest speaker Brig. Gen. Myrna H. Williamson, Deputy Director, Military Personnel Management, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Washington, D.C.

Preventive Medicine now has an AIDS/HIV Community Health Nurse to assist commanders in their force testing responsibilities and administrative functions associated with AR 600-110.

Jewel Czuchta will provide contact interviews, educational programs, counseling and routine adjunct patient screening programs for soldiers and military community groups. Please call preventive medicine at 420-6075 or 0711-819-6075 for further information or assistance.

Taxpayer service

The taxpayer specialist from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) will once again be available at the Stuttgart Amerika Haus, Friedrichstr. 23A to assist American civilians in filling out their 1988 Federal Tax Return Forms. Advisory sessions are scheduled for March 20, 21, 22 and 23 from 9 a.m. till noon and from 2 to 5 p.m. For additional information, contact 0711-210/221 or 420-7367/6279.

Mall boosts RB shoppers

by Steve Snyder
Stuttgart Citizen staff

Robinson Barracks' new mini-mall expanded on Feb. 23 when ribbon-cutting ceremonies were held celebrating the opening of the Information, Tours and Travel (ITT) there. ITT joins six other shops in the mini-mall in what eventually will be a nine-shop area. The move is part of a major expansion of goods and services to be offered by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service in the RB shopping mall.

"We're looking at an expansion of services which should make RB mall the place where people want to go," said Barry Gordon, general manager of AAFES for GSMC.

RB's shopping mall is already oozing with consumers. Gordon estimates that "anywhere from 12,000 to 15,000 people pass through the mall on an average Saturday." With the addition of the projected nine-shop mini-mall, located in front of the PX, business is expected to increase.

According to Gordon the mini-mall costs $403,000, taken entirely from AAFES profits. "Some people have trouble seeing where the dollar goes — this is where it goes," he said. Additionally, 50 percent of AAFES profits go to the Morale, Welfare and Recreation fund, as mandated by the House Armed Services Committee.

In addition to ITT, the mall includes a video rental shop, optical shop, a military gifts shop, watch repair store, and Budget Rental Car shop. RB's Keys and Engraving shop is scheduled to move to the mini-mall shortly. A European accessories store and a German curiosity shop are other stores slated to open there in the near future.

AAFES, like any major business, conducts and takes advantage of various market surveys to determine what customers want. In addition to providing goods and services to military customers and making a profit, AAFES attempts to improve the quality of life in its home communities, such as the optical shop. Eventually, two full-time optometrists will be employed there. Customers will be able to be fitted and obtain prescriptions for both eye-glasses and contact lenses. This service will relieve current burdens placed on military optometrists, Gordon noted.

Stores moving from the main to the mini-mall within the RB shopping complex frees space in the main mall. Gordon intends to make good use of that space.

Eventually, AAFES intends to convert the entire first floor of RB's main mall into what Gordon describes as a "food court". Among the new stores planning to come in are Robin Hood Deli Sandwiches, a baked potato shop and Wok Works (specializing in Oriental food).

Women: a heritage of strength and vision

Annually in March we celebrate Women's History Month and Federal Women's Week (March 5-11, 1989). These special emphasis holidays have been designated by public law in recognition and appreciation of the many contributions of women to every aspect of our nation's life.

With the many changes in the status of women at present, it is possible to lose sight of the fact that this revolution in women's rights is a recent one. Historically, women were treated as second-class citizens. They were denied the right to vote, the opportunity to pursue advanced levels of education, employment, rights and equal pay for equal work.

Today, equal rights for women are part of the norm. This equality within our society is supported by legal changes and new attitudes due in large part to those women who broke down existing barriers.

The '80s have brought more women pioneers to the forefront in nearly every aspect of American life. In art and literature, science and technology, business and industry, women are present at all levels and are advancing at a rapid rate. In recent years we have witnessed this pioneering effort with the first woman astronaut, the first female vice-presidential candidate from a major political party, and the first woman Supreme Court Justice.

The history of women in the armed forces reflects these dramatic changes within our society. In the military as well as the civilian sector, a wider range of opportunities has been opened to females as a result of changing attitudes and legislation.

It is well known that a great many women have participated in the military as nurses, cooks, and laundresses. But a more active role was pursued by some women pioneers.

Although not documented, women have participated in the military since the American Revolution. Deborah Simpson and a number of other women masqueraded as men in order to be accepted as Revolutionary War soldiers. Another individual, Margaret Corbin, took her husband's place at his cannon after he was killed during the Battle of Fort Washington.

The Civil War found women volunteers on both sides. As nurses, couriers, and even spies, women were represented in Union and Confederate forces. The tradition of women serving the United States through the military continues today.

Currently, the armed forces includes over 215,000 women among its ranks. These women perform in a broad range of skills areas. They also are represented at the top ranks. In the Army there are four female general officers on active duty, while the Navy is represented by two female admirals on active service. There is also a female general serving in the Marine Corps.

In GSMC, equal opportunity for everyone, including military women and civilian employees, is a command priority at every level. Commanders and supervisors are invested with public trust. Part of our responsibility in serving our country is to ensure that all Americans are treated fairly and without discrimination or prejudice.

The Federal Women's Program (FWP), an organization designed to assist both military and civilian women in obtaining non-traditional jobs, career advancement, and professional development, is very active within our community. Throughout the year, FWP presents seminars, workshops, and lectures. During Federal Women's Week, the spotlight is really on this excellent program.

On Wednesday evening at 6:30 p.m., FWP will present a very special dinner with guest speaker, Brig. Gen. Myrna Williamson. I encourage all of you to come to the Robinson Barracks Community Club and hear this fine speaker. For individuals interested in the role of women in the military, it will be an unsurpassed opportunity to hear from someone with a wealth of personal experience.

There will also be a seminar featuring Patricia Watkins Lattimore, a federal employee with the Senior Executive Service, who is director of the National Capital Service Center. This will take place on Tuesday beginning at 11:30 a.m. at the Hilltop Theater on R.B.

Moving from a heritage of strength and vision, women of the 80's are creating a brighter future for all of us.

Take care of soldiers,
Maj. Gen. James B. Allen, Jr.

Chaplain's Corner

Last century brings change to women's status

by CH. (CPT) Hanson Boney
GSMC Administrative Chaplain

In recent years, women have been in the forefront of the daily news. Several women have become leaders of prominent nations. Among them are Golda Meir of Israel, Indira Gandhi of India, Margaret Thatcher of the United Kingdom, and Benazir Bhutto of Pakistan.

Even though these recent occurrences seem amazing, women leaders are not new. The Old Testament, Book of Judges speaks of a woman judge in ancient Israel whose primary purpose was to guide and direct the moral lives of the people living under the theocratic rule of God. Ancient Ethiopia was ruled by several queens with the title "Candace." The book of Acts speaks of the conversion to Christianity of the treasurer of one of the Queens of Ethiopia.

Women are not only prominent in politics but have also made tremendous strides in other arenas — especially in the United States. When our nation was founded over 200 years ago, there were no women signers of the Declaration of Independence or the Constitution primarily because women were prohibited either by custom or education from taking part in the political process.

During the colonial era, although heavily restricted, some women became writers and poets. One of the earliest writings done by a woman was a poem written by a New England lady named Anne Bradstreet. Shortly after the Revolution, a black lady named Phyllis Wheatly became famous for her poems on early American life.

The last century brought new and dramatic changes to the status of women in America. Women were becoming physicians, attorneys, entrepreneurs and authors of books. Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell was a pioneer in the field of medicine, graduating from Geneva College (New York) in 1849. Charlotte E. Ray, a black woman, became one of the first women to graduate from law school (Howard University) in 1872. She was the first woman to be admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia.

Contrary to popular opinion, many women in the 1800s owned businesses. During the antebellum period, many southern women inherited large tracts of land in the deep south, often becoming plantation owners with large gangs of slaves. In New England a few women owned shipping lines or companies which grossed in excess of $50,000 annually. Some were partners in fishing ventures.

At the close of the 19th century, women became more forceful about achieving their rights under the constitution. Often opposed by male factions who saw their pleas as immoral, women gallantly fought discriminatory laws in many states. Some of the first states to approve of woman's suffrage were the newly developing western states such as Nevada, although states like New York and Massachusetts had already gone on record in support of the woman's movement for rights. Individual states had allowed women to vote as well as own property many years prior to the turn of the century, thanks to the work of women like Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

The push for woman's suffrage culminated with the enactment of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution on August 18, 1920.

Since 1920, women have made considerable advances in our society. Women have supported our military for over 200 years. Until the mid-seventies, they primarily served in medical and service support roles. Some, however, served as pilots in World War II.

The emergence of the volunteer military paved the way for greater involvement on the part of women.

With the abolition of the Woman's Army Corps (WAC) after 1975, women began to participate in almost every segment of military life. The Army Chaplaincy inaugurated the enlistment of women in the late 1970s, paving the way for women to have vital roles in the religious life of our country.

Now, to all the ladies whose names are not mentioned in anyone's history book, who have labored for centuries doing the ordinary in an extraordinary way, I salute you.

Perhaps, one day when the holy scrolls of God are read, the beauty of your life and sacrifices will be revealed.

Your reward will be well done my good and faithful servant!

Fiscal fire damage projected over $1 million

VII Corps fires increasing at alarming rate

By Keith B. Quigley
VII Corps PAO

VII Corps will lose well over $1 million to housing fires in fiscal year 1989 if we continue on our present course — double the amount of damage done in fiscal year 88.

In fiscal year 1988 there were 101 fires in VII Corps housing, causing $634,626 in damage. In the first three months of fiscal year '89 there have already been 23 fires amounting to $258,967 in damages. Only minor injuries have resulted from these fires, but it may only be a matter of time before disaster strikes.

The number of fires in VII Corps has been increasing at an alarming rate, according to Thomas Dolen, the acting chief of the VII Corps Fire Protection Branch. Many of these fires could have been prevented if people used more common sense and kept their homes free of fire hazards.

More than half of the fires in the first quarter of this year were caused by human carelessness. And almost all of these were the result of unattended cooking.

According to Dolen, people must take some of the responsibility for preventing fires. "The fire protection people can't be everywhere at once," he said.

"People leave cooking on the stove and go outside for whatever reason," said Dolen. "It's up to the individual to make sure they keep an eye on what they're cooking."

Another one of the biggest causes of housing fires is children playing with matches.

"The biggest thing is to simply keep matches out of the reach of kids; I believe that many times kids are just going through things and find matches by accident," said Dolen. "If you're a smoker, make sure all of your matches are put away. Don't keep extra matches in a desk drawer unless it's locked."

Kids will often take the matches into a room and play with them, according to Dolen. He advises parents to be aware of where their kids are and what they are doing.

"If they're in a room with the door closed," he said,

"I'd be a little suspicious."

Careless use of electrical cords and appliances is also a common fire hazard in many homes according to Dolen.

"Appliances in the home should be left unplugged when not in use," he said. "I've seen people put a cover over their toaster and leave it plugged in. If the toaster shorts out, the cover can catch on fire."

"Don't run cords under carpet or rugs," he said. "They will get frayed when you walk on them and may cause a fire."

Fires may also result from faulty voltage transformers, the overloading of electrical sockets and careless smoking, said Dolen.

There are many other possibly dangerous situations in the home, according to Dolen. Grease build-up in overhead air filters of stoves and trash piling up around basement heaters are both fire hazards.

Dolen suggests families take some extra precautions on a regular basis to help prevent housing fires.

"One of the biggest things, before leaving the apartment, be sure and check for fire hazards," such as a stove or an iron left turned on, said Dolen.

Dolen suggests placing a list of these fire hazards by the door of the house or apartment and getting into the habit of checking it before leaving.

Dolen warns that fires can happen to anybody and can have disastrous results.

"Fire doesn't pick on only certain people. We all need to get a little smarter about fire before somebody gets seriously hurt or worse," said Dolen. "We've been lucky so far."

The numbers to call in case of a fire are:

FOR ALL FIRES, AT ALL HOURS:

From ALL ETS phones: 117

From ALL Bundespost phones, from ALL quarters and economy housing, from ALL subcommunities: ... (0711)-819-117.

State elections registration set

Alaska update

Military absentee ballots caused the Alaska state supreme court to invalidate the results of the November state representative election in Alaska's 13th state representative district. This district included Elmendorf AFB, Fort Richardson and part of Anchorage.

In the original election, Democrat David Finkelstein won by three votes — 3,549 to 3,546. A manual recount which included some absentee votes not originally counted produced a victory for Republican Brad Bradley this time by nine votes. Finkelstein challenged the validity of the recount focusing mainly on eligibility of the voters.

Bradley won on absentee ballots by a two to one margin. The proportionate reduction reduced his total by 23 votes to Finkelstein's 12 and reversed the outcome, rendering it in the court's opinion uncertain.

A special election has been scheduled for April 4, 1989.

Missouri election dates

April 4 is municipal election day in Missouri and June 6 is special elections day. The election calendar also announces unspecified elections slated for August 8 and November 7 and school tax levy elections on October 3.

A separate federal post card application (FPCA) request is required for each election.

Missouri waives registration for members of the U.S. Armed Forces or Merchant Marine, civilian employees of the U.S. government residing overseas, members of religious or welfare groups attached to the military overseas, and spouses and dependents of the above.

These persons may apply for an absentee ballot by mailing a completed federal post card application (FPCA) to the county board of elections not earlier than 70 days before the election and not later than the Wednesday before the election. Absentee ballots are available 42 days before the election.

Customs tip

Think before using the mail

The U.S. Customs Service inspects all mail going to the States looking for prohibited items such as handguns, drugs, or switchblade knives and goods for which duty must be paid.

Your personal goods go back duty-free if you are PCSing. Put a copy of your PCS orders inside the parcel and write clearly on the outside, "Returned Personal Effects-Orders Enclosed." But you must physically take possession of these items before leaving Europe or you will pay duty on them. Things made in the U.S. which have not been enhanced in value abroad are also not subject to duty. Write on the customs declaration "American Goods Returned." Bona fide gifts are duty-free if their retail value is under $50 and the recipient does not get more than $50 worth of gifts a day. Combine separate gifts for several people in one parcel by wrapping each gift separately and listing the recipients' name on the gifts and customs declaration and keep each gift under $50. Postal laws prohibit you from mailing meat products, fresh fruits, tobacco products, and alcohol. Mailing them to the U.S. is a serious violation subjecting you to severe fines.

ADAC: 'Yellow angels' guard over today's roads

by Andrea Streeb
Editorial Assistant

"You can always recognize our cars by their yellow color, the M (for Munich) on the license plate, and the little flag on top," explained Uwe Schickle, a road patrolman for the General German Automobile Club, ADAC.

"There are private companies which also drive around in yellow cars like ours, but without these little identifiers," he continued. "They help stranded drivers too, but we never charge our customers on the spot for a service since this is arranged by our various offices."

ADAC was founded May 24, 1903 in Stuttgart. Starting off as the DMV (German Motorbikers Association), the Club numbered 3,300 members already after one year, and thus became Germany's largest motorists association. In 1905, the main office was transferred to Munich, and in 1911, the term ADAC was established.

"Today, ADAC consists of 17 regional associations, and numbers 9 million members, approximately 800,000 drivers are insured through the club in Baden-Wuerttemberg," said Hubertus Staerk, Chief of Public Relations Office in Stuttgart. "On an international scale," he continued, "ADAC is the second biggest club in the world after the American AAA which has more than 24 million members."

The "yellow angels" have been helping stranded drivers since 1928, when they consisted of motorcycles with or without sidecars equipped with various tools. It was WW II that put an end to these activities until 1954 when the vehicles were reinstated and replaced by cars in 1963.

In 1969, ADAC received its own CB radio system. Through a special technical transmission, traffic jams or hold-ups can be reported directly and during radio programs.

ADAC also has emergency helicopters at its disposal, manned by a pilot, a doctor, and a first-aid attendant. Since 1970, more than 30,000 injured persons (casualties) could have been taken care of at the scene of the accident by immediate medical help.

"ADAC provides more than a hundred services," Staerk said. "We offer a so-called Schutzbrief (Letter or Package of Protection) for either DM 60.10 or DM 65.70. The cheaper one will be prolonged automatically, the other one is valid for one year. It is an invaluable "cheque-book" to members who are fond of traveling.

"The Schutzbrief consists of vouchers for car repairs, towing, hired cars, rail journeys back home or rescue costs. For instance, if you are taken ill in a foreign country, we will send somebody who drives you and your car back home, absolutely free of charge. Or if your car breaks down abroad and cannot be repaired there, we will tow it back here."

"When you are involved in an accident, we will retrieve you and pay for the transport. Moreover, you are given an emergency credit in case you should not have the money ready.

"ADAC takes care of everything," Staerk added, "while drivers who are insured through other clubs have to take care of themselves and are reimbursed."

"ADAC fixes flats and makes minor on-the-spot repairs, and for DM 62 per year, members receive up to 20 kilometers free towing service," Staerk mentioned, "and it goes without saying that we help non-members, too, however, we will charge them for our services," he added.

"Should you break down on the autobahn," Staerk continued, "simply follow the direction of the little black arrows printed on white markers. These markers are spaced approximately 50 meters apart. The arrows point in direction of the nearest emergency telephone. You pick it up, look at the number of kilometers written on it, and tell the operator your location. An ADAC emergency vehicle will be sent for your help and service your car."

"A team of 9 to 15 road patrolmen manages between 130-150 operations per day in Stuttgart and close areas," stated Hartmut Bergmann, Head of Breakdown Service Department. "In 1966, the emergency department was established. We receive about 80,000 emergency calls per year, and in 1988, we helped in 41,777 breakdowns."

"A record level was reached January 12, 1987, when a cold spell caused 769 emergency calls in one single day, and our customers had to wait for our service up to one and a half days, but within three days, the matter was settled."

He stated that "a net of breakdown service stations covers all European countries, and our main office in Munich handles emergencies in five Mediterranean states."

"It helps to know," Staerk concluded, "that during an emergency all you have to do is call 19211 day or night, nationwide. The telephone number of the main office in Munich is 22 22 22, and is also manned 24 hours a day."

After WW II, ADAC reinstated its service with a NSU Konsul II motorcycle with royal sidecar.

Over 80,000 new jobs were created in Stuttgart since 1984 and the area's booming economy has fueled a pressing demand for services — especially housing. Since the average income was $22,100 for area residents in 1983, housing doesn't come cheap.

Stuttgart housing prospects tight until '90s

GRHP responds to soldiers' dilemma

Soldiers searching for housing in GSMC can expect hard times — at least until the early 1990s. That's the stubborn scenario which is pretty much set in concrete.

The reasons for the housing shortage are many and varied.

First, there are many workers in manufacturing in Stuttgart whose income levels throw them into direct competition with soldiers for increasingly scarce housing. The booming economy creates an equally expansive demand for services, particularly housing. Many migrant workers to Stuttgart add to the increasingly frantic scramble for available dwellings.

Baby boomers, of course, add to the number of housing hunters.

Many soldiers, then, arrive in GSMC and experience immediate difficulty in housing hunts. While searching for housing, the government bestows a Temporary Lodging Allowance or TLA.

TLA is designed to cover roughly 80% of a soldier's expenses while he awaits either government housing or housing on the economy. If a soldier can't find housing after 60 days, TLA is invariably extended.

According to Staff Sgt. Edward Strandhagen of the Housing Referral Office (HRO), there were 38 people who gained extended TLA benefits over the last 90 days. Those not granted extended TLA had the option of moving into the barracks.

The Hilltop Hotel on Robinson Barracks is a prominent temporary residence for soldiers on TLA. Rooms cost $40 for one person, $65 for two, $80 for three and $100 for a family of four. Those are daily rates, adequately covered by what soldiers receive from TLA.

Although no more than three people are allowed to occupy the small rooms, costs are calculated by the number of family members residing and not by the number of rooms needed to house the family.

After successfully finding housing and moving from the Hilltop, a typical soldier is still confronted with finding housing on the economy — which is not cheap. Housing rental rates on the economy are intertwined with income levels. So in an affluent area rental rates stay high.

The Basic Allowance for Quarters (BAQ) and the Overseas Housing Allowance (OHA) combine to meet these high rates but don't always succeed. But according to Sgt. Strandhagen, most soldiers who run out of their allotted funds to pay for housing do so because they fail to properly estimate the price of utilities which are imposed in the German economy.

Strandhagen estimates that about 5% of soldiers find their BAQ/OHA funds insufficient to cover housing costs.

All in all, projections about housing prospects for the Stuttgart area indicate a growing demand through the early 1990s before the market levels off. According to GSMC Housing Chief Franklin Wilson, Stuttgart is essentially in the process of attracting high tech industries which means, eventually, fewer workers competing with soldiers for housing geared toward those earning between $15,000 to $20,000 a year.

That trend won't become apparent for several years, though. In the meantime, Wilson anticipates that the new Government Rental Housing Program or GRHP will take some of the slack off soldiers' backs.

GRHP is a volunteer program in which the government, through HRO, assumes long-term leases for housing units initially found by soldiers on the economy. HRO has started GRHP here and is in the negotiation stage with German landlords.

"We can release (make available GRHP units) 103 apartments for the rest of this fiscal year (ending in October 1989)," he said. "We are programmed to release 1400 from 1989 through 1991. In a five-year span, the GRHP should hit 3,000 units. Within three years, we're aiming for 1,500 in GRHP," he asked.

Long term prospects for housing in GSMC are not bad, then. In the short run, housing is tight and getting tighter.

What's happening to HRO referrals?

Forced to conserve funds, MILCOM in February 1988 discontinued concurrent travel (non-military family members traveling immediately with soldiers to station). A "first come, first served" open referral housing policy was instituted. Under the open referral policy, housing units are made available by HRO to the first soldier in line on a daily waiting list.

For a while, lines were quite long but they have since shrunk to almost nothing. Why?

The answer is painfully simple. There has been no housing available.

HRO bulletin board housing lists are lean because many soldiers have not been informing the office when they depart from their economy housing. Instead, soldiers typically pass their housing on to a friend or to a new member of their own command. This informal system seems to work but creates the impression that HRO is not actively pursuing new housing, according to Brigitte Rouse, an HRO referral clerk.

That, emphatically, is not the case, she said.

HRO can't obtain housing which isn't there. Part of the reason is because housing is a scarce commodity in the Stuttgart region. On the other side of the coin, many soldiers living on the economy don't inform HRO prior to leaving their housing units. Instead they tip a buddy or acquaintance who promptly grabs the housing unit.

That's okay for the individual who's found housing through a friend but not healthy for the system in which HRO assumes an integral responsibility.

The Hilltop Hotel lies just outside Robinson Barracks and is a prominent residence for soldiers receiving Temporary Lodging Assistance or TLA.

VII Corps cruises in wins Stallions eclipse Suns

by Lionel R. Green
Stuttgart Citizen staff

The Stuttgart Stallions swept a pair of games from the Aschaffenburg Suns Feb. 26 in VII Corps basketball action at Kelley Barracks.

The Stuttgart Stallions, leaders of the Men's Western League, used a strong first half to burn Aschaffenburg 109-95 and avenge their only loss of the year.

Anthony Glaude netted 28 points to lead five Stallions in double figures. Julius Thomas flirted with a triple double scoring 23 points, grabbing eight rebounds and having nine assists. Ronnie McDaniel added 13 points, Kelvin Stephens had 12 points and 11 rebounds and Donnie Mazyck scored 10 points to round out the double figure scorers.

The Stallions started fast scoring the first six points of the game. A three-pointer by Anthony Glaude put Stuttgart up 13-2, and the Stallions ran it up 19-4 forcing an Aschaffenburg timeout with 14:18 remaining in the first half. The Suns came back though with eight in a row to cut Stuttgart's lead down to seven, 19-12, with 12:57 to play.

Then the Stallions began their first half domination.

A lay-up by Tim Coleman with 10:58 left capped off an 8-2 run that put the Stallions back in control 27-14. With the score 31-16, Ronnie McDaniel scored the next five points on his own and Fredrick Glenn knocked down a five-foot jumper to complete a 7-0 run that blew the game wide open, 38-16, with 7:40 remaining in the first half.

Aschaffenburg showed signs of life scoring the next five points to make it 38-21, but the Stallions came rolling right back proving why they're the best in the West. Stuttgart scored the next eight points in less than 45 seconds on a spectacular tip-in by Donnie Mazyck and back-to-back three-pointers by Julius Thomas and Anthony Glaude to go up 46-21 with 3:45 to play. The Stallions pushed the margin up to as much as 28 points before going into halftime with a 59-32 lead.

In the second half, Aschaffenburg whittled the lead down to 13 points, 74-61, with 10 minutes left. Stuttgart then retaliated with a quick four in a row to go back up 78-61. The Suns pulled within 11, 12 and 13 points several times during the last 10 minutes, but the Stallions never let them get closer in cruising to their 14-point victory.

With the win, Stuttgart held on to the lead in the Western League boasting a 6-1 record and continue on their quest for a second consecutive USAREUR championship. Aschaffenburg dropped to 3-5.

In the Women's game, The Lady Stallions blasted Aschaffenburg 78-55 to pull within two games of first place in the Western League.

Stuttgart was led once again by her majesty, Countess Irvin who scored 28 points. Lisa White also had a big night with 20 points.

The Lady Stallions led by a not-to-comfortable seven points at halftime, 37-30. Irvin and White combined to score 28 of Stuttgart's 37 first half points to keep the Lady Stallions on top of Aschaffenburg. Irvin had 16 and White added 12 in the first half.

Stuttgart took control of the game early in the second half and Aschaffenburg never even challenged them the rest of the way. The Lady Stallions held a 20-point or more lead from the 11 minute mark on in route to their 23-point win.

Cynthia Jackson had eight points, six of them in the second half and Ametrius Watson and Debra Wylie both added seven to support the Irvin-White performance.

Stuttgart pulled their record above the .500 mark at 4-3 and into third place in the Western League, while Aschaffenburg fell to 1-7.

SAH Stallions fall short in bid for second title

by Lionel R. Green
Stuttgart Citizen staff

The Stuttgart Stallions Varsity Boys basketball team almost did it again. Almost.

In their quest for a second consecutive Big Schools championship, the Stallions fell short one game losing to the Frankfurt Eagles 72-58 in the final game.

Mitch Lester capped off a fine season scoring 22 points and pulling down seven rebounds and Mike Davidson added 15 points to pace Stuttgart in the loss.

Frankfurt broke open a close game midway through the first quarter to lead by seven, 21-14, at the end of the first quarter. In the second quarter, Stuttgart played better, but still lost ground down 40-30 at halftime.

The Stallions whittled the lead down to as little as four points in the third quarter, but remained behind going into the final eight minutes, 52-46. Frankfurt blew the game open in the fourth quarter and went on to take the Big Schools championship by 14, 72-58.

Stuttgart was a long shot, seeded seventh out of 10 teams. In the first round, the Stallions routed Kaiserslautern with a high-scoring effort, 86-61. Stuttgart then followed that effort with two upsets of the number two and three seeds. The Stallions came back late in the fourth quarter to shock number two Ramstein, 60-52, and avenge two regular season losses. Stuttgart then defeated number three Wiesbaden in a close semifinal game, 51-48, to get a shot at the championship.

"I'm proud of what the kids accomplished this year," said coach Gene Kugler. "They won five of their last six games and won three tournament games and really played well toward the end of the season."

"Nobody expected us to go far this year," Kugler continued. "I'm just really proud of our team."

Two members of the team, Mitch Lester and Ron Thomas, made both the AAA All-Conference team and the Tournament team due to their consistent and outstanding play during the year and during the tournament.
