Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri

Engineer Soldiers get 'historic' training opportunity

A partnership here between the John B. Mahaffey Museum Complex and the 5th Engineer Battalion is providing training opportunities for Soldiers while helping to satisfy an Army Museums directive to divest excess historic artifacts, including several static vehicle and artillery display items across the installation.

GLWACH vaccinates volunteer trainees

Several Soldiers in training with Company D, 2nd Battalion, 10th Infantry Regiment volunteered to receive the COVID-19 vaccine as part of a new pilot program here to help with readiness and put the installation on a path to returning to normal.

CESD holds FTX for permanent-party Soldiers

Taking advantage of some very valuable free space on their calendar, the 35th Engineer Battalion's Combat Engineer Skills Division held a field-training exercise last week for their permanent-party support personnel, giving them a chance to work on the engineer-skills proficiencies, warrior tasks and battle drills they don't always have time to maintain with their normal work load.

Fort Leonard Wood Soldiers earn ESBs, EIB

2nd Lt. Daniel Nyachwaya, 3rd Battalion, 10th Infantry Regiment, Staff Sgt. Aquai Alexander, 554th Engineer Battalion, and Staff Sgt. Nicholas Potter, 795th Military Police Battalion, earned their Expert Soldier Badges; and Staff Sgt. Barry Miles, 1st Battalion, 48th Infantry Regiment, earned his Expert Infantry Badge at Fort Riley, Kansas, in April.

It's tick season: Protect yourself from diseases

When the weather warms, ticks emerge. Reducing exposure to ticks is important because they transmit disease. While they are born pathogen-free, these blood-sucking arachnids often acquire a variety of diseases — some of them potentially debilitating and life-threatening to humans — from the animals they feed upon.
